INTERBORO MEN TO VOTE AGAIN BEFORE STRIKING

ACRIMONIOUS CONFERENCE

THREAT OF GENERAL STRIKE

Surface Line Workers Will Also Meet to Decide About a Sympathetic Walkout.

Union employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company will decide at a mass meeting tonight whether they will declare a strike on the lines of that company, which may precipitate a general attempt to tie up all the surface, subway, and elevated cars of the city.

Leaders of the street carmen's organization issued the call for the meeting after Frank Hedley, General Manager of the Interborough Company, had more than made good the declaration of Theodore P. Shonts, the President, that the company would under no conditions recall individual service contracts made by it with its non-union men, as demanded by the officials of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electrical Railway Employes.

Impressed by the determined stand taken by Mr. Hedley, the union leaders adopted a more cautious attitude than they had heretofore displayed, and although they sent a message to Mayor Mitchel asking him to return to the city because of the "seriousness of the situation," there was considerable doubt last night as to whether they would urge their followers to call a general strike. No mention of possible interference with the operation of cars was made in a statement issued by them last night, and their sole desire seemed to be to throw the blame for the situation on the Interborough officials.

May Make Court Test.

Mr. Hedley made it clear in his conference with the labor delegates that not only was the Interborough Rapid Transit Company ready for a strike, but he actually invited them, during a spirited colloquy, to call their followers from the cars if they dared. He told them the company was prepared to support in the courts the validity of its contracts with its non-union men, and he intimated tersely that he and the other officials of the road were prepared to apply for legal redress if the union, through threats or intimidation, attempted to break the contracts by calling a general strike.

He was supported in this position by an almost identical traction controversy in Indianapolis, where the Amalgamated Association was sued recently for a heavy sum for calling a strike to break such individual contracts as those made by the Interborough Company here.

The labor leaders in New York City had the power to call a strike at once under authority given them at a mass meeting of the union employes of the Interborough Company last week, but they did not take advantage of it. Whether Mr. Hedley's thinly veiled threat of action in the courts had anything to do with this could not be learned. They decided, instead, after notifying Mayor Mitchel of the deadlock, to pass the responsibility for calling a strike back to the Interborough's union employes at tonight's mass meeting.

None of the labor leaders would say last night whether a vote to strike at that meeting would be followed by sympathetic strikes on other lines, but it was asserted that the organized employes of all the other traction companies, including those of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, would immediately be brought in touch with the situation.

To Vote on General Strike.

The possibility of joining in a general strike will be considered by the union employes of the New York Railways Company at a meeting at 9 o'clock this morning in the Plaza Assembly Hall, Fifty-ninth Street and Lexington Avenue, and by the organized employes of the Third Avenue Railroad Company at a meeting in Brevoort Hall tomorrow. No call for a meeting of the employes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company has been made public, but one of the organizers of the union asserted last night that there was no question but that a majority of them would quit their cars the moment a general strike was announced.

While the union was engaged in making these preparations, Theodore Rousseau, Secretary to Mayor Mitchel, the officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and of the other traction companies, and the police were also busy. Mr. Rousseau was informed by the labor leaders in person of the seriousness of the situation, and he lost no time in communicating with Mayor Mitchel, who is still at the military training camp at Plattsburg.

Mr. Hedley had emphatically asserted in the conference with the labor delegates that the Interborough would not consent to any arbitration of its right to make contracts with its men, and that it would be useless for either Mayor Mitchel or Oscar S. Straus, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, who returned to the city from Maine yesterday, to offer their services. He was willing, he said, that the company's contracts be tested in the courts, where witnesses were under oath, but he would

GERMANY DECLARES NEW TOBACCO EMBARGO

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Secretary Lansing today made public the text of a cable dispatch received from James W. Gerard, the American Ambassador at Berlin, sent under date of Aug. 28 and just received, giving information about an embargo just established by the German Government against the further importation of tobacco into that country. This embargo has been established to prevent the importation of most tobacco and tobacco products into Germany on the theory, it is argued, that tobacco is a luxury with which the German people can dispense.

According to Ambassador Gerard's dispatch, however, the prohibition against the importation of tobacco is not to apply to Oriental tobacco, and it is assumed that this is intended to permit Turkish tobacco to continue to find its way into Germany. The text of Ambassador Gerard's message follows:

> Until further notice the German Government has prohibited the importation of tobacco and tobacco products, not including Oriental and similar tobacco. For consignments shipped to Germany from abroad by mail or rail prior to Aug. 7, and for oversea shipments arriving in Europe before Aug. 7 and purchased by firms residing in Germany, exceptions may be made. In case of such oversea shipments appropriate certificates from the German Consul at the place of shipment are required.

ENGLAND MAY RAISE MILITARY AGE TO 45

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Reports are current that the Government intends shortly to raise the military age limit to 45 years. Some color is lent to these reports by the War Office in forming an infantry battalion from reserves of the Household Battalion. The measure will turn to good use troops who played an ornamental part in the army, and there will remain a sufficient force of Household cavalry to mount guard in Whitehall and other places and to provide royal escorts when required. With the streets full of khaki-clad soldiers, the spectacle of gorgeously uniformed cavalrymen seems almost an anachronism.

The belief that the age limit under the Military Service act will be raised soon has arisen chiefly out of Sir William Robertson's recent declaration that Great Britain must not only win the war, but win the peace, coupled with Lloyd George's refusal to give a pledge not to raise the military age limit.

Another combing out process is said to be in contemplation, Winston Churchill's allegations as to the numbers of men behind the fighting line also are being looked into, and Lloyd George is said to be considering the question of employing colored people behind the fighting line, thus releasing men from the non-trench population for fighting purposes.

WILLING TO EXCHANGE CIVILIAN PRISONERS

Germany Awaits Britain's Acquiescence in Plan That Would Abolish Internment Camps.

BERLIN, Sept. 2, (via London, Sept. 5.)—The thousands of civilians interned in Germany and England may be released and the difficult problem of concentration camps solved if a plan now under consideration is adopted. The idea is to exchange all civilians on parole not to serve during the war.

For some time the German and British authorities, through the intermediation of the American Ambassador at Berlin, James W. Gerard, have been working on a proposal to exchange all interned civilians above the military age of 45. It was recognized that this was only a half-way measure which would leave unsolved the larger problem of the thousands of civilians below that age whom neither Government wishes to retain and support at great expense, although neither is willing to release them as possible recruits for the other's army.

REJECTS ALLIES' STAND ON TRADE SUBMARINES

Lansing, in Note to Entente Powers, Refuses to Treat All Undersea Craft as War Vessels.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Secretary Lansing has sent to the Entente Powers a memorandum in the nature of a reply to their recent proposal that all submarines be treated as vessels of war and stating, it is understood, that the United States Government, which has just held the German submarine Deutschland a merchant submarine, cannot subscribe to the doctrine that submarine vessels cannot be divided into those which are merchant and those which are war vessels.

The position of the American Government is that the determination of the status of a submarine must be based on consideration of the facts in each individual case, and that the rule of conduct for a neutral Government must be the same with respect to this type of vessel that it is for other craft. Submarines may be merchant ships or warships, and their status is determined by the character and purpose of their armament, the ownership of the vessel, and whether they are privately owned or owned by a Government and commissioned as part of the naval forces of that Government.

In the case of the Deutschland this Government held that she was a merchant submarine and issued orders permitting the vessel to be cleared as such from Baltimore.

ASKS FRANCE TO VOTE $1,673,500,000 MORE

Total Appropriations of the Government Since War Began Will Then Exceed Twelve Billions.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—Alexandre S. Ribot, the French Minister of Finance, will ask the Chamber of Deputies for appropriations for the last quarter of 1916, amounting to 8,347,000,000 francs, or about 500,000,000 more francs than was asked for the present quarter.

The total appropriations asked by the French Government since August, 1914, will amount in round numbers to 61,000,000,000 francs, ($12,200,000,000.)

REVENUE BILL PASSES; INCLUDES RETALIATION PLAN

THREAT TO CLOSE THE MAILS

TARIFF BOARD IS CREATED

News Print Paper Under 5 Cents a Pound to be Admitted Free as a Relief for Famine.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Sept. 6.—The Senate at 12:20 o'clock this morning, after having been in continuous session more than fourteen hours, passed the General Revenue bill, designed to raise $205,000,000 annually for meeting extraordinary expenses due in part to the large amount of money appropriated for military preparedness.

The bill was passed by a vote of 42 to 16. All the Democrats present and five Republicans voted for it. These Republicans were Senators Clapp, Cummins, Kenyon, La Follette, and Norris, all of the Progressive wing of the minority party.

Just before the bill was passed the Senate rejected a motion by Senator La Follette to attach to it sixteen questions to be sent out by the Tariff Commission, which is created by the bill, to interested persons, calling for information as to cost of production at home and abroad, cost of labor, cost of materials, and other data to assist the Tariff Commission in making a scientific revision of tariff schedules. The vote on the La Follette amendment was 17 to 29.

The bill will go to conference today, and it is hoped that both houses will repass it promptly and final adjournment be taken tomorrow.

In order to meet the emergency in the paper market, news print paper valued at less than five cents a pound is admitted free.

Retaliation Plan Adopted.

A program of retaliation against Great Britain and her Allies was incorporated by the Senate in the Revenue bill in the form of amendments.

The retaliatory measures which the President is authorized to take are drastic, and a significant thing about the Senate's action is that it was approved in advance by the State Department.

In diplomatic establishments the Senate's course is regarded as a serious menace to continued good relations between the United States and the Governments of Great Britain, France, Russia, and Italy. If what was done by the Senate is enacted into law the President, it is contended, will find himself empowered to undertake a policy of nonintercourse. This, it is suggested, will lead to commercial warfare with all that such a warfare may mean to future relations between this Government and those of the Entente Allies.

The far-reaching importance of this legislation is fully understood here. Both political parties in the Senate are in accord with respect to it, and it is not doubted, in view of that fact and the additional force it obtains through the approval of the State Department, that it will be accepted by the House, before which it will go in the form of amendments to the revenue measure.

The retaliatory legislation is directed against the British blacklist, the British embargo on the importations of so-called luxuries, including tobacco; the British blockade of neutral ports in northern Europe adjacent to German territory, British interference with the American mails, and the opening of those mails, the censorship of cable messages, and the other measures taken by Great Britain and her partners in the war in pursuance of their policy to prevent supplies or information from getting into or out of the territory of the Central Powers.

Great Britain Will Stand Fast.

Great Britain, it is understood, has determined to make no modification of the policy at which the action by the Senate is aimed. The position of all the Allied Governments is that the embargoes against neutral products are steps necessary in conducting the war against Germany and where they seem to be unjust toward neutral Governments a settlement can be reached after the war. During the continuance of the struggle, however, Great Britain and her allies, according to the understanding here, will continue to carry out the measures regarded as necessary to bring victory to the Entente Powers.

The action by the Senate is cumulative, for since the revenue bill has been before that body several provisions have been adopted, aimed at alleged British discrimination against American trade and commerce. Senator James of Kentucky, on Aug. 30, after hearing a delegation of tobacco growers from his State and consulting the State Department, procured the adoption of an amendment to the Revenue bill providing in effect that, where a foreign belligerent during the existence of a war in which the United States was not engaged discriminated against the importation of any product of the United States or its dependencies not injurious to health or morals, the President should have power to prevent the importation into the United States of similar articles from the belligerent country and if there were no similar articles exported to the United States, then the President might prohibit the importa-

Artist Blakelock, Freed from Insane Asylum, Has Six Months' Probation to Prove His Sanity

Special to The New York Times.

WEST ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Sept. 5.—Seated at a piano in a bungalow studio built for him, Ralph Albert Blakelock, the landscape artist whom fame found long after he had quit painting and had been sent to an insane asylum seventeen years ago, told his liberators today that he would paint himself back to freedom. Softly touching the keys to accompany his words, he gave a picture of what he hoped to do, despite his 70 years.

Blakelock was brought from the State Hospital for the Insane at Middletown, N. Y., today by Mrs. Van Rensselaer Adams of Orange, N. J., to Lynwood Lodge, a private sanitarium. Mrs. Adams, who with other admirers of Blakelock's art had arranged for his release from Middletown on a six months' parole, went to the institution this morning with a writ from the Supreme Court ordering that Blakelock be placed in her care. Dr. Maurice Ashley, Superintendent at Middletown, accompanied Blakelock and Mrs. Adams to Paterson, N. J., where they were met by Dr. Walter Neldon, proprietor of Lynwood Lodge, and Dr. Charles Banks, Mrs. Adams's physician. In an automobile the artist was taken to the sanitarium and first to a room which had been fitted up for him.

Then they took him down to the little bungalow, bedecked with golden rod and roses. Because he was a musician, a piano had been put into a corner at the end of a great easel, on which hung a fresh canvas aglow with sunlight streaming through roof windows. He began to tell what he would do with brush and paint once more at hand. And then when Mrs. Adams told him the studio had been made just for him, his joy was so great that he could not speak. He seated himself at the piano, and while he played the others withdrew and left him alone.

Mrs. Adams believes Blakelock is sane and that his art, forsaken in the long years he was in the asylum, will convince the world that he is not demented. While he will be under observation at the sanitarium he will have every facility for work.

Blakelock hopes to paint such a picture as he believed is expected of him because of his election to the National Academy of Design last year. It is probable that a landscape along the Hudson will be his subject.

A fund of $10,000 has been raised for the painter. If he makes pictures such as he used to make he will soon be able to repay his benefactors. It was when he peddled his pictures in vain seventeen years ago in an effort to support his family that he lost his mind.

The career of Blakelock has been one of the tragedies of American art. He was born in New York in 1847. He never attended an art school, but studied alone and gave play to his talent. His first fame came from Indian canvases, but his landscapes won him lasting place.

JAPANESE DEMANDS MENACE OPEN DOOR

APOLOGY AND CONCESSIONS

Tokio Wants a Free Rein for Her Troops in Part of Manchuria and Mongolia.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Sweeping demands, far more drastic than any published summaries have indicated, are revealed in the secret terms being pressed on China by Japan as a result of the recent armed conflict between soldiers of the two nations at Cheng-Chiatun, in Inner Mongolia. Private dispatches received here today reveal that Japan seeks indemnities, an apology, and political concessions throughout the whole region of Inner Mongolia and South Manchuria.

> 1. Punishment of the commanding Chinese officer involved in the trouble.
> 2. Dismissal, with punishment, of the other officers involved.
> 3. Instructions to Chinese troops in Inner Mongolia and South Manchuria not to interfere in any way with Japanese troops or civilians, and to publish this fact broadly.
> 4. Recognition of "special interests" for Japan in Inner Mongolia and South Manchuria, comprising powers of police and administration, preference in loans, and in the selection of all foreign advisors, &c.

Seeks Four Concessions.

Besides the four "demands" are four "concessions" which China is asked to grant to Japan without formal demand, as follows:

> 1—The Chinese Army in Southern Manchuria and Eastern Mongolia to employ Japanese military advisers.
> 2—Chinese schools and colleges to have Japanese military inspectors. This is not limited to any region in dispatches so far received.
> 3—A formal apology in person from the Chinese Governor of Mukden to the Japanese Governor at Dairen and the Japanese Consul at Mukden for the Cheng-Chiatun trouble.
> 4—Monetary compensation to the families of the Japanese killed, the amounts to be settled by later negotiation.

Secretary Lansing refused tonight to comment on the dispatches or to outline what might be the attitude of the American Government. It is known, however, that steps will be taken immediately by the State Department to obtain detailed reports and learn the full significance of Japan's act. American interests seem at first glance to be more deeply involved than in any event in the Far East since Japan's famous ultimatum to China of May, 1915.

At most Japan had been expected not to demand the extension to Inner Mongolia of rights already secured in South Manchuria. Instead, it is pointed out, she seeks more than she has ever before demanded in this district, and besides asking full reparation for the specific difficulty, she has made it the basis for demanding political rights which are interpreted in Peking as destroying China's sovereignty in that whole enormous region.

Special attention is attracted here to the demand for a formal apology in person from the Chinese Governor in Mukden to the Japanese Governor at Dairen and the Japanese Consul at Mukden. This would require the Chinese official to humiliate his Government by going into Japanese territory.

Anxiety in Washington.

But it is the political articles which cause deepest anxiety to Washington officials. They were omitted entirely in the published demands. The recognition of "special rights" is open to the most extreme interpretation, and, it is feared, may cut directly across the American policy regarding the integrity of China. Also it has in it possibilities of violation of the open door policy and the making of the whole vast region involved a mere dependency of Japan.

Article 3 of the "demands" places Japanese soldiers and troops in this Chinese territory entirely above the control of Chinese soldiers, virtually annulling China's sovereignty there. Japanese have already won the right to their own courts and in many places their own police.

The employment of Japanese military advisers for Chinese forces in that vicinity is thought to be a first move to gain Japanese control of China's armed forces there. For a long time the military party in Japan has urged the construction of a huge Chinese military ma-

MAKE RAILROAD BILL A REPUBLICAN ISSUE

Hughes Managers Are Canvassing Sentiment on Law Among Labor Men.

WILLCOX HOME, CHEERFUL

Claims Illinois, Missouri, Kentucky, and Indiana—Says West Is Enthusiastic Over Hughes.

After conferring with Charles E. Hughes at St. Louis and with Western managers of the Republican campaign, National Chairman William R. Willcox returned to New York yesterday and held other conferences with Eastern managers, including Frank H. Hitchcock. It was practically decided that the Campaign Committee should begin to make an issue out of the signing of the railroad eight-hour bill by President Wilson.

It was agreed that, with a paucity of campaign issues, the President's action in forcing the eight-hour legislation through Congress, with the resultant criticism from many quarters, was too big an issue to be lightly passed over. Since the signing of the bill the Republican managers have had investigators out sounding sentiment among labor people generally and railroad men in particular. The investigators reported that the men directly affected by the eight-hour law were enthusiastic and would support the Democratic Administration, but that 85 per cent. of the railroad workers, on the other hand, who might not be affected, were open to arguments by skilled Republican orators.

Some of the campaign managers believe that the campaign should be based, more than anything else, upon the attitude of President Wilson and a Democratic Congress in forcing this legislation through, and abandoning the idea of arbitration. Chairman Willcox intends to feel out the sentiment among labor men thoroughly before deciding just what attitude the campaign committee is to take, but some angle of the situation is bound to be made use of in the campaign.

On his Western trip Chairman Willcox said he met the most encouraging news everywhere.

"The lowest estimate I heard made of the Republican plurality in Illinois in November was 150,000," he said. "A. T. Hart, National Committeeman of Kentucky, told me that Kentucky is certain to take a place in the Republican column in the November election. Missouri leaders told me that Republican success was assured. In Indiana, of course, there is a lively fight, with two Senatorships as well as other offices to be decided, but it is safe for Hughes and Fairbanks."

SIGNS 8-HOUR BILL AGAIN.

President Acts to Meet Objections That It Was Approved on Sunday.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—To make certain of the legality of the Eight-hour Bill for railroad employes, signed last Sunday in order to avoid the threatened railroad strike, President Wilson tonight signed the measure for the second time. He went through this unusual procedure because there was fear that the railroads, in attacking the constitutionality of the law, might allege that it was not effective because signed on Sunday.

As the enrolled bill went into the public records tonight, it bore the President's signature twice, with the dates Sept. 3 and Sept. 5.

DEMOCRATS WELCOME ISSUE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The enactment of the railroad eight-hour law promises to become one of the issues of the campaign if outbursts of aftermath oratory in the House are indicative of the plans of the spellbinders. Representative J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama, who has already been drafted by the Speakers' Bureau of the Democratic Party, replied in the House today to the attack made upon President Wilson's course yesterday by Representative J. Hampton Moore of Pennsylvania, Republican.

Mr. Heflin drew a picture of what might have occurred if the President had not intervened to prevent the strike. Mr. Moore had accused the President of "butting in" and hastily taking the side of the railroad trainmen.

Paris Sees Crushing Defeat for Foe on the Somme; Forts Taken Which the Germans Called Impregnable

By WYTHE WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—After visiting the Somme front early in August, I made the statement, based not on what I was told by military authorities, but on personal observation as a neutral correspondent, that the French offensive on the Somme was only the beginning; that it would ultimately be greater than any previous French offensive, and that it would end only in a crushing defeat for Germany.

A few days later, as if in answer to that assertion, a statement appeared in the New York papers, on the authority of a German General, that "the French offensive had failed." Almost in the same breath he remarked that no commander in this war would make a statement for publication, since it showed a lack of confidence, irrespective of what he knew to be the truth.

If proof were needed as to the character of the French offensive, the events on the Somme since Saturday go far to supply it. In two days' battle of four or five fighting hours each the French forces have inflicted defeat on the flower of the German Army, have taken more than 6,000 unwounded prisoners, with corresponding military trophies, have stormed what the Germans asserted were impregnable fortifications on a front thirteen miles in length and averaging over a mile in depth, and with minimum losses on their own side have added, it is estimated here, 50,000 men to the list of German casualties.

That is a great record, of not only French courage, but also of coordinated operations in the most difficult warfare since the history of battles began. The Bavarians on Sunday proved that when, after their first two counterattacks from the little wood of Marrière, near Le Forest, had melted with appalling losses under the fire of the French seventy-fives, their gray-green masses surged forward yet again, a scant half hour later, only to die just as hopelessly but just as bravely on ground already covered with thousands of bodies of their comrades.

Behind the French armies there is method and science, greater science and greater method than in all the much advertised clockwork attacks on Verdun. The Germans are trying to fight the war on lines already laid down by their General Staff; the French have adapted themselves and their tactics to suit each change in the military circumstances, and every Frenchman now knows that he is not "cannon fodder," butchered in the hope that the enemy will give way from sheer exhaustion, but a unit, carefully selected to accomplish a particular piece of work, and for that reason not to be sacrificed uselessly lest the whole work suffer because parts of it are undone.

Let any one, who is tempted to ask if the French offensive has failed, recall that since July 1 the French have advanced along a fifteen-mile front to a depth of five to ten miles, that everything they have won has been held against no matter what reaction, that each day's objective has always been attained and at minimum loss, and finally that the ground thus won was defended by ample forces and strengthened with every device of modern warfare. It may be said by some that at Verdun also the Germans progressed regularly for a time, only to fail in the end. But there is an all-important difference. Their advance was compelled gradually to narrow almost to a point, with the result that the concentrated fire of the French artillery broke the wedge end as often as the Germans tried to thrust it further.

On the Somme the French front of attack has steadily widened—first in the river bend, then north of the stream to Guillemont, and now another thirteen miles further south of the Somme, almost to the confines of Lassigny and Roye.

One must not imagine for a moment that the French are trying to break the German line with a sudden rupture, as of a dike, through which the whole flood may flow.

Theirs is Grant's method—inexorable pressure, steadily widening and steadily increasing, which is to be maintained until this whole sector of the German front can bear no more and gives way—a collapse that will overwhelm the invaders' whole system of fortifications from the sea to Switzerland.

BERLIN MAY FORCE GREECE TO ACT

Ultimatum Being Discussed by Chancellor and Parliamentary Leaders.

GREEK RESERVES CALLED

Five Hundred Reservists Having Homes in United States Prevented from Sailing.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 5.—The question of the Central Powers delivering an ultimatum to Greece was discussed in political circles in Berlin today, according to the Koelnische Volkszeitung.

Greece's submission to the demands of the Entente Allies is interpreted by the newspaper as an abandonment of neutrality, and it says that Dr. von Bethmann Hollweg, the German Imperial Chancellor, is today consulting with the parliamentary leaders.

ATHENS, Sept. 5.—It is reported that five classes of reservists have been quietly called to the colors.

Five hundred discharged Greek reservists, all of them having places of residence in the United States, were not permitted to embark today for New York owing to the possibility of their being called out in the new mobilization of the Greek Army. The men made a demonstration in front of the office of the Prime Minister and were dispersed by the police without any untoward incident. Steamers scheduled to sail from Greek ports for New York have postponed their departure.

The Committee of National Defense, which took over the administration of the portions of Northern Greece in which the revolutionists gained control, has issued a proclamation in which it declares it does not desire to alter the Constitution, but merely to cause the nation to rise against the Bulgarians who have invaded Greek Macedonia. The committee also announces its intention of establishing a sanitary service, a press bureau, and court-martial.

The French and British representatives have reached an agreement with the Greek Government, which has relieved the tension consequent upon the arrest of Teutonic agents by French and British secret police, against which

RUSSIANS CAPTURE 4,629 MORE MEN

Also Take Several Guns in Three-Day Battle Toward Vladimir-Volynski.

GREAT OFFENSIVE UNABATED

PETROGRAD, Sept. 5.—Any supposition that General Brusiloff's campaign had exhausted itself and come to a full stop before the gathering forces of the Austro-Germans, who are standing concentrated on the roads to Kovel and Lemberg, is apparently disproved by the recent figures of Austro-German losses as contained in reports received here.

The magnitude of the great Russian offensive, which still continues with scarcely any lessening in intensity over the whole front from the Pripet marshes to the borders of Hungary, is indicated by a report that nearly 20,000 prisoners were taken during a comparatively quiet period of the last three days. The increasing proportion of German prisoners contained in the report has caused great satisfaction here, where it is taken as evidence of the gradually changing spirit and the decreasing resistance of the German Army.

Result of Three Days' Fighting.

Three days' battles in the upper Sereth region resulted in the capture of 4,629 prisoners, according to the official announcement issued today, which says:

> In the direction of Vladimir-Volynski, in the region of the upper Sereth, we captured in battles from Thursday to Saturday 115 officers and 4,514 men. We took six cannon, thirty-five machine guns, and four mine throwers.
> In the wooded Carpathians our troops continue to advance. We have taken several more heights as the result of engagements.

General Brusiloff still continues to perform successfully his well-known tactics of sharp, unexpected thrusts along the whole front, changing the point of attack with the greatest rapidity, with the result that the Austro-Germans, according to military observers, are in continuous suspense and unable to withdraw troops from one sector to another, where for the moment they are urgently needed.

The most important of General Brusil-

German Forces Fight Desperately to Stem Tide—Total Prisoners of Allies 7,500.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Renewing their attacks on the German Somme lines today, British and French troops made further progress, especially in the region between Clery on the river and Ginchy, five and a half miles to the northwest.

On this front the Allies won substantial areas at various points. At the north the British swept forward nearly seven-eighths of a mile east of Guillemont. They also gained a foothold in Lenze Wood and captured all the ground between the wood and the outskirts of Ginchy, where fighting still continues. A strong system of defense on a front of 1,000 yards in and around Falfemont Farm fell into British hands.

Co-operating with the British in their assaults in this region the French troops captured the Hospital Farm, Rainnette Wood, and part of Marrière Wood. They also strengthened their positions just north of the river, connecting them with the southern bank and taking the village of Ommiecourt. These operations bring the French closer to Peronne from the north.

South of the Somme a furious battle raged throughout the day. The French captured a line of German trenches east of Soyecourt, and repulsed all counterattacks.

The prisoners captured by the French since Sept. 3 number 6,550, it is officially announced, and the cannon 36. The British have taken about 1,000 prisoners.

>
> North of the river, following a series of brilliant actions in which our troops gave proof of irresistible spirit, we pushed our line into the district east of Forest. We reached the west outskirts of Anderlu Wood, took by storm Hospital Farm and Rainnette Wood, captured part of Marrière Wood and occupied to the northeast of Clery the extremity of a hill traversed by the road from Bouchavesnes to Clery.
>
> We also strengthened our positions north of the river, connecting them with the southern bank and taking the village of Ommiecourt, which is entirely in our hands.
>
> The war material taken since Sept. 3 in the north sector includes 32 guns, of which 24 are heavy guns; 2 bomb throwers, 2 French guns, an important stock of 150-millimeter shells, 1 captive balloon, and a large number of machine guns. We have not yet counted the prisoners captured on Tuesday.
>
> South of the Somme the battle proceeded the whole day with extreme violence. The enemy multiplied his counterattacks, launched in mass at a great number of points along our new front, notably southwest of Barleux and southeast and south of Belloy. Notwithstanding the repeated efforts of the enemy we maintained our lines and inflicted sanguinary losses on him.
>
> Between Vermandovillers and Chilly we carried a salient and numerous isolated positions held by the Germans.
>
> East of Soyecourt an attack by our troops gave us a line of German trenches and enabled us to reach the outskirts northwest and south of Denlécourt Farm.
>
> The total number of prisoners taken since yesterday south of the Somme has reached 4,047, including fifty-five officers. In the same southern sector four heavy guns and a hundred machine guns fell into our hands.
>
> The total number of prisoners taken since Sunday on the French front of the Somme, north and south, is 6,550, and the number of guns thirty-six, including twenty-eight heavy guns.
>
> There was an intermittent cannonade on various parts of the front which was rather violent east of the Meuse, (Verdun sector,) in the sectors of Fleury and Chenois.

The afternoon statement of the French War Office reads:

> On the Somme front bad weather, which prevailed all night, hampered operations. Our troops are organizing themselves on the ground gained.
>
> North of the river the Germans delivered a strong counterattack, debouching from Anderlu Wood against our positions between Combles and Forest. Caught under the fire of our artillery and machine guns, the assaulting troops broke up and flowed back to their starting line, having suffered heavy losses. The enemy made no further attempts.
>
> South of the Somme the Germans attempted an action at only a single point of the front, to the east of Belloy-en-Santerre, where several attacks were repulsed by our fire. The enemy left about 100 more prisoners in our hands.
>
> On the banks of the Meuse (Verdun sector) the night was comparatively calm. In the Fleury and Le Chenois sectors we took fifty prisoners, including two officers. An enemy attack to the southeast of Thiaumont Work met with a complete reverse.
>
> Aviation: One of our aeroplanes, which was attacked by four enemy machines, succeeded in freeing itself from its opponents, one of which was subjected to machine-gun fire at very close range and crashed to the ground in the Chaulnes district.

The afternoon bulletin of the British War Office reads:

During the night we increased our gains in the neighborhood of Guillemont. In spite of the enemy's stubborn resistance and an unceasing deluge of rain our troops pushed forward to 1,560 yards east of Guillemont village and have obtained a footing in Leuze Wood.

Further south, after severe fighting, the whole of the enemy's strong system of defense on a front of 1,000 yards in and around Falfemont has fallen into our hands.

Fighting since the 3d of September has thus resulted in the capture of the whole remaining enemy's second line of defense on the battle front from Mouquet Farm to our point of junction with the French.

Prisoners continue to be brought in and the total up to last night since the morning of the 3d of September exceeds 1,000.

Fighting in Ginchy continues.

During the 3d of September hostile aircraft showed great activity and fighting in the air was continuous. The enemy's aircraft were forced to remain some miles in the rear of their own lines and entirely failed to interrupt the work of our machines. On two separate occasions our aeroplanes opened fire on the enemy's troops on the ground.

As the result of many combats three hostile machines were brought down and seemedly wrecked. Many others were driven down in a damaged condition. One of our aeroplanes destroyed a hostile kite balloon. Two of our machines are missing.

Tonight's bulletin of the British War Office says:

Today's fighting resulted in further strengthening our positions in the Leuze Wood, of which we now hold the greater part. Sixty more prisoners were taken.

Despite the heavy enemy artillery fire and the indifferent weather conditions, our troops are still pushing forward and are in possession of all the ground between Falfemont Farm and Leuze Wood and between Leuze Wood and the outskirts of Ginchy.

During the day we bombarded the enemy's positions in the vicinity of Hohenzollern redoubt, opposite Givenchy and south of Neuve Chapelle.

Germans Defending 18-Mile Front.

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—The battle on the Somme front in France continues, says the official statement issued by Army Headquarters today. The loss of the village of Chilly by the Germans is conceded. The statement says:

The great Somme battle continues. Our troops between Forest and the Somme are engaged in hot fighting.

South of the river our forces are defending themselves against a storming enemy on a twenty-kilometer wide front from Barleux south to Chilly. The village of Chilly has been lost.

On the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) new French attacks against our left wing east of Fleury and against the positions won by us on Sunday at Souville defile were repulsed.

HAVE TAKEN 29 VILLAGES.

Formidable Positions Wrested from Germans by Allies.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—The capture of Soyecourt and Chilly by the French yesterday makes a total of twenty-nine villages taken since the start of the offensive on the Somme front. The positions wrested from the Germans yesterday were powerfully organized.

At Barleux, one of the strongest positions on this front, repeated direct attacks were unsuccessful and the French finally resorted to a turning movement, attacking to the southwest. The Germans counterattacked no fewer than six times yesterday in a desperate effort to regain lost ground.

The fighting now going on for the town of Thiepval, in the Somme region, well deserves to be called a "great battle," says the authorized correspondent at the front of La Liberté. Last night it was in progress over a front of twenty-four miles, extending from Barleux to the extreme left of the British forces resting on the Ancre.

The scene of the attack, continues the correspondent, may be divided into two parts, one running from Thiepval to Cléry, half of which is held by the British and half by the French, the point of junction being Falfemont Farm.

The object of these forces, says the correspondent, is Combles, which is the key to the approach to Bapaume, now a veritable fortress held by the Germans.

Two days ago the British were 1,800 yards from Combles. After the advance to the village of Forest they are now only 400 yards from the town.

The other part of the front is south of the Somme, with Peronne for its objective, and for an attack on which artillery preparation now is in progress.

Between Vermandovillers and Maricourt, the writer says, the French carried the whole of the first German positions along a front of more than two and a half miles, the successive line of trenches falling into the hands of the French.

ENCIRCLED IN 17 MINUTES PRUSSIANS SURRENDERED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—Nowhere in yesterday's battle was the French success more marked than at Soyecourt, which the Germans boasted would be an obstacle to any advance south of the Somme. Only seventeen minutes after the signal was given to leave the trenches separate forces, starting from north and south of the village, were in touch with each other beyond the place.

The position was defended by a newly arrived Prussian battalion, which up to and during the lull in the bombardment enforced by the bad weather had suffered little. Taken entirely by surprise, and surrounded almost before they knew the attack had begun, they surrendered with hardly a shot fired, literally dazed by the lightninglike sweep of the French troops.

North of Chilly the fighting was fiercer, but there, after a few hours' struggle, a crack French regiment gripped the flanks and centre of a mile of German trenches and through the gap poured reserves, with the result than an hour later the Germans, leaving thousands wounded and 1,200 uninjured men prisoners, abandoned the whole front line and sought the shelter of their second position, two miles to the rear.

At the moment of cabling the French are undisputed masters of the battlefield, the German counterattacks, never pushed with great energy, having melted beneath the deadly precision of the French guns and quickfirers.

Catholic to be London's Mayor.

LONDON, Aug. 28, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The next Lord Mayor of London, who will take up his official residence at the Mansion House in November, will be Sir Henry William Dunn, who was one of Sir William Treloar's ablest assistants in his great work of making brighter the lives of thousands of London's poor cripples, and is now Treasurer of the Alton Cripple Home. He will be the third Roman Catholic Lord Mayor of London in recent years, his two chief predecessors of that faith having been Sir Stuart Knill, who served in 1892, and Sir John Knill, who was Lord Mayor in 1909.

PLAIN WORDS TO KING SENT BY VENIZELOS

Address Adopted at the Great Demonstration in Athens Aug. 27 Is a Vigorous Document.

KING CALLED TOO GERMAN

Urged to Rid Himself of Present Advisers, Trust the Zaimis Cabinet, and Turn to Allies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—A copy of the text of the remarkable address to King Constantine, which former Premier Venizelos drew up and which was approved by the great Athens demonstration on Aug. 27, has reached London. The address in full follows:

"Sire—You are the victim of persons who to destroy the work of the revolution of which we are today celebrating the seventh anniversary and to re-establish their system of corrupt government have not hesitated to exploit the respect which the nation owes to the crown and the love it bears for you, and are ready to imperil the work of regeneration achieved by five years of labor and two glorious wars in order to strike at one of those who co-operated in that work. You are the victim of your military advisers, who, taking a narrow military view and anxious to establish a system of absolutism which would make them in effect masters of the country, have convinced you that Germany will emerge victorious from the European war.

Under German Influence.

"Finally, you are the victim of your natural and human weakness. Accustomed to admire everything German, astounded by this unparalleled military preparation as by every other German organization, not only have you believed in German victory, but you have desired it. You hoped that after a German victory you would be able to concentrate in your own hands the whole power of government and sweep aside our system of liberty.

"Today we see the consequences of these blunders. Instead of expanding in Asia Minor, Thrace and Cyprus; of ending forever our quarrels of more than a thousand years with our national enemies; of creating Greece great, powerful, and rich, fulfilling our loftiest national dreams, we see the Bulgars invading Greek Macedonia, occupying Seres and towns and forts and making prisoners of detachments of the Greek army there, without our being at war declared or not declared with the invader.

"While we receive them with the irony of friendly assurance, we see them seize our munitions of war, which cost us hundreds of millions and which the General Staff criminally abandoned after our general demobilization. Although our national enemy has mobilized, this war material was left concentrated in towns near the frontier, and so became easy prey of the invading neighbor.

"From the position in which we placed Greece we see her today reduced again to a position to which she was cast down before the revolution. Instead of Greece being respected by friends and redoubtable to foes, we see her today pitied by the one and despised, scorned, and chastised by the other. Ignorant of the vital conditions of the group powers, in which alone Greece can, I do not say grow, but even live as a free state, they are driving her to an assured catastrophe.

"Today's demonstration has been summoned to express the grief of the nation's soul and to manifest in perfect order the nation's anguish and anger at the misfortunes into which the country has been led and is still being led by the present policy. This demonstration seeks to enlighten you and to persuade you that in spite of perfidious efforts the nation does not approve what has been done, whatever they may say who surround you; to appeal to your love of the fatherland to find the strength to break with the evil influences which, as we said, exploit the love of the people for you, and which are dragging you, and with you your royal house, and Greece and the nation, to a national catastrophe.

Elections Would Mask Civil War.

"Elections are due to take place so that the people may have national representation, but these elections alone cannot give a salutary solution of the question now in issue. So long as you permit, Sire, an unworthy use to be made of your name as an enemy of a great political party, what good can come from these elections which under such conditions do no more than mask an undeclared fratricidal war? How could the Liberal Party carry out its policy should it judge it necessary to do more than observe benevolent neutrality as the Entente powers rightly ask of us, since the criminal conduct of the General Staff has literally dissolved the army and rendered Greece incapable of fighting; for you must learn that even if your Government were to pronounce for intervention by the Greek army you would no longer find an army to lead to victory.

"Proclamations of the association calling itself the Pan-Hellenic Association of Reservists, professing their readiness to shed their blood anew at a sign from you, in no way correspond to the reality. These proclamations are made because those who make them have been assured Greece will never depart from the neutrality policy adopted, and, above all, the manner in which this policy has been followed has provoked a very grave malady in the national organism.

"We do not say this malady is incurable, but to treat it the forces of the nation must be concentrated, not divided. This reunion of forces must be carried out at once, for tomorrow may be too late. Leave to others the rôle of party leader, to which those who exploit your throne would debase you, and boldly face the enemy. By impious and satanic action they have tried, and unhappily with success, to divide the national forces, from the union of which alone the nation's soul expects health and the greatness of the Fatherland.

"Collaboration has become difficult today. The chief of the Liberal Party has enough abnegation not to raise any personal difficulty in the way of the work of national salvation. Assuredly, temporary Governments are not ideal, particularly in circumstances so critical for the nation, but the present Government is today a national necessity, and at its head is a wise man, who in other difficult circumstances rendered the nation valuable services.

"To this Government the Liberal Party is ready to accord its confidence. Let it be considered a political Government and do you also accord it your absolute confidence. Remove far from you, and keep far from you henceforth, all those persons who illegally, bit by bit, have usurped all the political power. Let your Government turn the political course of the State definitely toward the Entente Powers by offering them at once that benevolent neutrality which they have so long demanded and which has been so long promised them.

"Apply yourself at once with your Government, and helped by us all, to revise the national sentiment weakened by prolonged mobilization, the teaching of the barracks, and the poison of the foreign propaganda, so that Greece may once again have an army, so that when the circumstances demand it—and we are sure they will demand it—it will be able to defend her vital interests, so far as they may be safeguarded side by side this time with powerful allies, traditional protectors, and benefactors of Greece.

"You will see by today's demonstration that the Liberal Party is not the enemy of the Crown nor the enemy of the Royal House, nor the enemy of yourself. It is only the respectful guardian of free institutions and will suffer no one to injure them. That is the true interest of the Crown and only those who are exploiting the Crown seek to persuade you to the contrary. They are your worst enemies."

off's recent actions is an advance toward Brzezany, along the hitherto unattempted direction midway between Brody and Halicz, and having for its ultimate object, with other movement in this neighborhood, the occupation of Lemberg.

Despite the sharp fighting in the region of Vladimir-Volynski, where the Germans are bringing up all possible reserves to check the Russian advance on that town, the principal attention remains focused for the present upon the operations in the Lemberg region, since there now appears to be a greater chance of taking the capital of Galicia than the German centre at Kovel.

This possibility, according to the military experts, has been magnified by Rumania's entry into the war and her engagement of a considerable portion of the Austrian forces, since Transylvania and Galicia now constitute the left and right wing of the same front, and an advance into Transylvania will compel the withdrawal of the Austrian left wing in Galicia.

German gas attacks in the region of Baronovichi are apparently of a local character and without relation to the principal operations on the southwestern front.

Russians Repulsed, Berlin Avers.

BERLIN, Sept. 5, (via London.)—There has been no cessation of the heavy fighting in Galicia since the inauguration of the new Russian drive. The official announcement of today says the Russians attacked repeatedly yesterday in the vicinity of Brzezany, fifty miles southeast of Lemberg, but were driven back by the German troops. The announcement follows:

On Archduke Charles Francis's front there was stubborn fighting. German battalions again drove off repeated counterattacks made by the enemy southeast of Brzezany. In the last two days the (Teutonic) allied troops have brought in two officers and 259 men.

In the Carpathians small engagements developed at several places. Southwest of Zabie and in the region of Schipoth fighting is proceeding. Strong Russian forces were repulsed with heavy losses southwest of Fundul Moldowi.

BERLIN MAY FORCE GREECE TO ACT

Premier Zaimis protested vigorously. Under this plan the Greek authorities will complete the arrests of persons who are to be deported without further activity on the part of the foreign police.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Diplomatic circles here received a report today, which is thought reliable in every way, that Greece will enter the war within a short time on the side of the Entente Allies. The same source predicted the entry of Rumania into the war three days before it came.

BARON SCHENCK'S SPY ARMY.

His House at Athens Guarded by a Formidable Band.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Sept. 5, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—From now on no arrests will be effected here by the English or French secret police, but only by the Greek authorities. Among those already arrested is Prince Ali Riza, cousin-german of the Khédive of Egypt.

Baron Schenck has not been to the British Legation to surrender himself, as has been reported. He stands to be treated by the Greek authorities like other persons whose expulsion is demanded. The Baron's right-hand man, Hoffman, one of the most redoubtable German agents and a Major in the German Army, was arrested during the evening.

After the seriousness of the political crisis had passed, the great topic of interest in Athens was that of the doings of the Baron. He had brought the German espionage system to a high degree of perfection. His house is a handsome, commodious residence off one of the main streets and in the very centre of the city. Before his surrender a little reconnoitring soon showed how well the Baron was guarded. At all street corners his sentinels were posted, and his scouts haunted every café in the neighborhood. He evidently had quite a formidable garrison inside the house.

While I was looking at the building two nights ago the front door opened to admit one of his comitadjis, who, like his comrades in arms, was a man of fierce demeanor. The open door gave me a view of the hall, across which a bodyguard of four men immediately rushed to make sure the visitor was one of the band. The presence of an observing stranger at once put numerous members of the garrison on the qui vive. At windows heads appeared and soon after the door had closed it opened again and a man emerged to rush down the street.

This messenger raised a hornets' nest of slouching, gaitered bravos. The signal evidently was passed around that I was watching them, and from cafés and narrow streets little groups of men appeared and executed flanking movements in all directions. One particularly repulsive type of individual appeared to be the leader of the band, as he received reports from the others at intervals.

Another tour around the house and immediate neighborhood revealed the fact that written reports concerning the doings of the band outside were furnished direct to the Baron. These documents were pushed under the front door step. In the space of about five minutes I passed or was followed by nearly fifty of the Baron's bravos intent on seeing what I was up to.

The house was a university of lies and pay headquarters for a formidable band of spies and desperadoes. The Baron is said to have had a couple of score of ferocious retainers, while the watchers outside must have numbered at least one hundred. All the watchers I saw were obviously carrying revolvers in their pockets.

The War Situation

BY THE MILITARY EXPERT OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Many German critics of the war, and in fact some of the most able of the French critics, have pronounced the raison d'être of the allied offensive on the Somme to be the relief of Verdun. France was, it had been claimed, bleeding to death along the heights of the Meuse. The German attacks were tearing at her heart strings and sapping her life's blood. In order to save her, the British began an offensive on a front far removed from the Verdun battle field. That the Germans have held this point of view, is amply demonstrated by the fact that the great German concentration, effected as a means of counterchecking the offensive when it did come, was made chiefly in the region held by the British lines.

Entirely contrary to their expectations, France, instead of being exhausted, has shown a virility at least equal to that of the British, and a power to strike at least as great and, if we may judge by the results achieved, greater than she has exhibited since the trench system of fighting was inaugurated on the western front. The greatest proof of this lies in the French fighting of Sunday and Monday last.

On Sunday, the offense started north of the Somme. This action was detailed in yesterday's summary. On Monday much to the surprise of every one, and apparently to the surprise of the Germans also, the point of attack shifted to the south and the line from Barleux to Maucourt surged forward. It was not after all an illogical move. The attack in the north was as severe a blow as the German lines have yet had to stand. It was delivered after the most intensive artillery preparation, with strong infantry forces, and necessarily drew to that section all the troops which Germany could spare from other quarters.

Following closely along the lines of the strategy of Brusiloff in the east, the French, as soon as they were checked in the region north of the Somme, launched an offensive south of the river. It was just as successful as was the movement to the north. The French lines were advanced almost to the outskirts of Chaulnes, and between Barleux and Vermandovillers, southward to an average depth of about a half mile.

It is not clear as yet whether this shift of the French is merely an expedient to lessen the pressure on their lines to the north or whether it has a definite object in view. As is always the case, immediately after a material gain by the Allies a German counterattack breaks out in great strength. The French may wish to secure themselves in their newly-won positions north of the river, and as a means of lessening the intensity of the German attacks have instituted a diversion further south.

At the same time, viewed from the standpoint of an independent action, the victory south of the river is not without importance. The width and depth of the wedge which the French have been slowly driving in the German lines between Blaches and Soyecourt has been considerably increased. In addition, a new wedge has been started east from Chilly. This is forming with the line from Vermandovillers to Berny, the outskirts of which the French have reached, another pocket such as was described yesterday, with Chaulnes as the approximate centre.

It is possible that the object is to squeeze the Germans out of Chaulnes, as was done at Cléry and Guillemont. This will completely nullify the German possession of the Chaulnes-Péronne railroad, traffic over which is already being seriously interfered with. Also, by broadening the salient already existing, the French have added to the protection of its sides and made a German attack whose object would be to crush it in much more difficult. The lines from Chaulnes may remain quiet for many weeks, as they have been for several weeks past. On the other hand, we may see a continuation of the move east from Chilly which will have for its object the surrounding of Chaulnes, preparatory to just such a blow as was delivered against the northern towns on Sunday. At any rate, it will be an interesting section of the line to watch.

North of the river the French have also struck again, and have enlarged materially their successes of Sunday. Their line now is but a scant mile from the main highway between Péronne and Bapaume, and is in a favorable position to advance still further eastward. Combles is being subjected to the same sort of enveloping process that is marking the operations about Chaulnes, both the British and the French participating. Temporarily, at least, the British have abandoned their heavy attacks against the northern line about Thiepval, and are co-operating with the French in the effort to drive their lines deeper into the German positions.

Indeed, it seems that there is more to be gained by this process than by the effort to pinch out of existence a relatively insignificant salient such as the salient between Albert and Arras. If the advance of the French can be maintained for a short time, this salient will have fallen of its own accord by the constant stretching of the German lines eastward.

Let there be no doubt about the fact that the battle of the Somme is still on. The mere fact that after the tremendous volume of artillery fire which the French and British have poured into the German lines they were unable to break a gap in these lines on a wide enough front to permit them to rush through and double up the armies on either side of the break means next to nothing. The German lines in the west will, in all probability, never be broken, any more than will those of her enemies. They can be bent back, worn threadbare by constant hammering, exhausted by the incessant defense they have to make. But they cannot be broken. It is not in the nature of things.

On the other hand these lines, staunch as they are proving themselves to be, have exhibited no power sufficient to stop the steady advance of the Allies westward. The advance has been slow and expensive. The world was told that it would be. But it is being made nevertheless. In fact the Allies seem better able to gain through this line than ever before. It is a question of shell and again more shell, as one of the British statesmen put it. He might also have added, and of getting them where they are wanted when they are wanted.

This the French and British seem to be doing with the utmost effectiveness. The demands which they have placed on their transportation system are almost beyond belief. And yet, as far as we know, it has not yet failed them. No matter how fast the artillery has consumed ammunition, there has always seemed sufficient to keep things moving.

It is artillery, admirably handled by the finest artillerists in the world—the French—that is playing havoc with the German defense system, and which promises, unless present indications are all awry, to blast the German trenches out of existence until finally a vital strategic point is reached, when the great retrograde movement will come.

COSSACKS SABRE BULGAR OUTPOST

BULGARS CAPTURE A TOWN

Fortified Advanced Positions at Tutrakan Bridgehead Stormed by German-Bulgar Forces.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 5.—Russians and Bulgarians are fighting in Rumania. The War Office announced today that the first clash between the Bulgarians who have invaded Eastern Rumania and the Russians who went in to assist Rumania occurred yesterday. A Bulgarian cavalry outpost was sabred by Russian cavalry. The text of the statement follows:

The first encounter between our cavalry detachments and Bulgarian cavalry in Dobrudja took place Sept. 4. A Bulgarian outpost was sabred by our troops and one officer was taken prisoner.

German-Bulgar Army Successes.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The German and Bulgarian army which is invading Eastern Rumania has carried by storm the fortified advanced positions at the bridgehead of Tutrakan, the Berlin War Office announced today. The Bulgarians have taken the town of Dobrio. The announcement follows:

German and Bulgarian troops stormed the fortified advanced positions at the bridgehead of Tutrakan. The town of Dobrio has been taken by the Bulgarians. Bulgarian cavalry dispersed several Rumanian battalions.

German naval aeroplanes dropped bombs on Constanza (in Rumania, on the Black Sea,) and also on Russian light sea forces. Our airships bombarded Bucharest and the mineral oil establishment at Ploest with good effect.

The first day's fighting on Rumanian soil, due to the invasion of Dobrudja by Bulgarians and Germans, is said by the Bulgarian War Office to have resulted in the retreat of the Rumanians, who left hundreds of dead on the field. As previously reported by the German War Office, the invaders crossed the entire Dobrudja frontier and occupied towns near the border. The statement, issued in Sofia on Sunday, says:

On our northern front our armies on Saturday crossed the entire Dobrudja frontier, energetically driving back advanced detachments of the enemy. We occupied Kurtburnar after fighting in which we took prisoner 163 men and two officers. The enemy retreated, leaving on the field hundreds of dead, as well as a great number of rifles and a quantity of material. One of our columns occupied Akkadunlar. The march forward is proceeding on the whole line.

War Caught Austrians Unawares.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—A dispatch from Urgeni under date of Saturday to the Petit Parisien says the Rumanian hostilities were so unexpected that only a few troops of the Dual Monarchy were on the Rumanian frontier, and these were not on guard when the advance began.

Half an hour before war was declared Hungarian officers were drinking with Rumanians at a frontier railroad station. Soon afterward a Rumanian outpost entered the station, took the officers as prisoners, and then captured quantities of materials. The Rumanian offensive was so sudden that the Austrians had not time to blow up bridges or tunnels.

QUIET ON SALONIKI FRONT.

Fighting Confined Mainly to Skirmishes Between Patrols.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—A British official statement issued this afternoon, reporting military operations in the Saloniki war theatre, says:

During Sunday night the enemy turned on searchlights and opened rifle fire on our troops south of Orliwar, on the Struma front. No attack developed.

On the Doiran front there have been patrol encounters at Macukovo and Krastalio.

The bulletin issued by the Paris War Office today reads:

All along the front there was an intermittent cannonade. There was patrol activity on the left bank of the Struma. No infantry action is reported.

On the Macedonian front there was little activity. We repulsed weak attacks north of Lake Ostrovo and in the Moglenica Valley.

A hostile fleet bombarded the fortifications north of Kavala. Enemy aeroplanes dropped bombs on the villages of Starovo and Hazuatar and on Angista station. Several inhabitants, including women and children, were killed.

REPORTS GLOOM IN HUNGARY.

Members of House of Magnates Depressed by War Outlook.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The sitting of the Hungarian House of Magnates at Budapest on Saturday, when Premier Tisza explained the necessity of depleting Transylvania of troops in order to bring the Russian offensive to a standstill, telegraphs the Reuter correspondent at Berne, was marked by the utmost depression.

All the members were attired in deep mourning, the scarlet or purple birettas of the ecclesiastical dignitaries being the only touch of color relieving the sombre appearance of the House.

Owing to the difficulties of the internal situation, the correspondent adds, the Hungarian Minister of Education has ordered all schools in Hungary closed until Nov. 1.

ZEPPELIN SHOT DOWN BY 21-YEAR-OLD FLIER

ANGER OVER THE BURIALS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The Victoria Cross was bestowed upon Lieutenant Leete Robinson of the Royal Flying Corps today for bringing down the Zeppelin raider at Cuffley Friday night. The award of the cross has given general satisfaction and Robinson's name is on everybody's tongue.

Robinson's feat was described to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent by the commander of the flying squadron to which the Lieutenant belongs.

"Robinson, who has been with us about a year," he said, "was up before he came in touch with the Zeppelin. After it was all over he told me that when he had started he made straight for it, and as he approached the Zeppelin, which was now under a terrific glare of lights, suddenly plunged. Robinson drove his machine toward it. The Zeppelin was trying to dodge so as to turn back and escape, but Robinson was too quick for it. The Zeppelin broke into flames and came to the ground. After bagging the raider Robinson ran his machine back to headquarters ready for another job."

Robinson was at Cuffley on Sunday and his identity speedily became known to the crowds and he had to take to flight to escape being lionized. He is a slim fellow, 21 years of age, fair-haired, with blue eyes, and was born in India.

While Robinson was chatting with some brother officers near the scene of the wreck an iron cross was picked up among the débris of the Zeppelin.

"Pass the word to Robinson," said the senior flying officer. Robinson strode toward where this officer stood and in full view of crowds the iron cross was handed to him. The cheering of the crowds was vociferous in the extreme.

"He has won a durned sight more than that bit of old iron," said a farmer. "He's won the Victoria Cross if ever a man did. When the Zeppelin was above us he was over and under it like wildfire. I heard his gun going nineteen to the dozen. God bless him, I say."

"His mother ought to be proud of him," exclaimed a woman. "Heaven only knows how many lives he saved this morning, leaving out us whom the Zeppelins passed over. We have got to remember that a thing like this won't inspire other Hun raiders to come Cuffley-way in a hurry with their bombs."

A little later a revolver was found in the débris, and once again it was a case of the spoils to the victor. The cheering this time eclipsed all records, even stolid metropolitan policemen let their voices go. One of them gave this opinion of Robinson: "He's a proper twentieth century knockout, that's what he is. He's giving us plenty to do this night, but us don't begrudge it. Us'd turn out any durned night for a month if us had a working job like this afore us."

The Lieutenant's Own Story.

Lieutenant Robinson's own story is given in The Chronicle this morning:

"I had been up something over an hour when I saw the first Zeppelin. She was flying high and I followed her, climbing to get position above, but there was a heavy fog and she escaped me. I attacked her at long range, but she made off before I could see if I had done any damage.

"The next ship I saw I determined that I would attack from the first available position. I met her just after 2 o'clock. She was flying at 10,000 feet. Soon she appeared to catch fire in her forward petrol tank. The flames spread rapidly along her body as she made off eastward on fire. In a few minutes she dipped by the nose and dived slowly in flames to the earth.

"I was so pleased that in my excitement I pulled the 'joystick' and looped the loop several times. Then I showed my signal to stop firing and came back."

Scrape Wreckage for Souvenirs.

The pilgrimage to Cuffley continues. Crowds scratch for souvenirs, and by midday today the Cuffley hollow was as crowded as Coney Island beach in August. Mrs. W. K. Clifford, the well-known novelist, who has a cottage in the neighborhood, thus describes the scene on Sunday:

"At breakfast time, to our amazement, our unfrequented road through the wood showed a train of hurrying people. Rain was pouring in torrents, but they appeared to be wholly unaware of it. On they went with joyous cries to the little town near by. It was like a fair. Motor lorries on motor cars full of soldiers, everything on wheels that could be imagined, and especially scores of motor and other bicycles were hurrying along. By sheer good luck I got the last drivable thing in the place, a little wagonette, and soon we were part of the hurrying crowd, the happy, triumphant, jostling crowd on wheels and off, going along the narrow country road between green hedges, here and there a cottage and a gaping cottager at the open door. There was every sort of motor, many of them official. One of them carried an obviously important military person, and a mounted policeman preceeded him. At a cross road a wag had struck up a sign: 'Two miles to the Zep.' The crowd laughed and hurried by, a crowd that stretched out as far as the eye could see in front and behind, closely packed. The rain came down more and more drenching. It did not matter. Thunder and lightning did their loudest and brightest, no one cared. On we went to where absolute congestion came. It included many motor omnibuses by this time. They had hurried down from London.

"As I stood waiting while our wagonette disentangled itself a smart-looking lady leaned out of her car window. 'Is it far and easy to get to?' she asked.

"'Three fields ahead and very sloshy,' was the reply.

"'Are the bodies there?'

"'They are taking them away.'

"'Then I shan't go, and I've driven all the way from Weybridge,' she exclaimed."

Resent Funeral Honors.

An indication of the state of public feeling in regard to the Zeppelin raids is given by the protests printed in several papers after the announcement that the bodies of the crew of the Cuffley raider were to be buried with military honors in the village churchyard of Potters Bar, three and a half miles from the spot where the airship fell. The Evening Star says:

"It is unfortunate that the British official mind is so utterly out of touch with the public mind, because such blunders only give rise to unpleasant and undesirable reactions. It is perhaps not too late to reconsider this precious official blunder and to give these baby-killers a plain decent funeral such as would be given, say, to an English working man who after a long life of honest industry unfortunately dies in the workhouse. But the whole idea of gun-carriages and firing parties, and all other elements of military pageantry is grotesquely out of place in the case of these men who died while trying to murder women and children with bombs. Why should these men be treated as honorable soldiers and worthy foes? It is to be noted here that nobody wants any reprisals on dead Germans. All that is asked is their obsequies shall be plain, decent, and obscure, and not attended by any military pomp or honorable pageantry. Three hundred and seventy men, women and little children have been killed by Zeppelin bombs in this country, and their blood cries out against any sentimentalism toward their murderers."

Herbert Grover, a well-known London newspaper man, writes:

"I see it is intended to give the dead crew of the Zeppelin a military funeral. There are on the records of this country verdicts of willful murder against the Kaiser and against the Zeppelin crews. Surely we ought to expunge these verdicts of murder from our records or else stop giving military funerals to the murderers. Our present position is anomalous and absurd."

Another correspondent writes to The Globe:

"If one of our own soldiers unfortunately commits the crime of murder he is not accorded a military funeral. Then why treat such an arch enemy better than our own men? Let's have done with such misplaced chivalry toward an enemy who stands condemned by the whole world for his devilish actions."

Alongside these letters appears the report of an inquest held today in the Little Hertfordshire village of the bodies of two victims of Saturday night's Zeppelin raid, the daughters of the village blacksmith, one aged 25 and the other aged 12. When the bombs began falling the girls ran into the open for safety, but actually ran right into danger, their home being untouched, although several cottages nearby were demolished. The village church was badly damaged and the old rectory wrecked. Fifteen high explosive bombs were dropped in the locality, but two-thirds of them fell in fields and gardens, causing no worse damage than big upheavals of earth. The elder girl was struck by a missile from one of the bombs, which passed through her body, killing her instantly, while the younger girl's leg was blown off and she died twenty-four hours afterward.

The jury returned a verdict of death due to injuries caused by a bomb dropped from hostile aircraft.

FIND PARTS OF AIRCRAFT CAR.

Thought to be That of the Observer of the Zeppelin.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 6.—The Daily Mail says this morning:

"No dout is entertained that the parts of a Zeppelin found in East Anglia constituted, when intact, an observation car, made of aluminum and 12 feet to 14 feet long. A compartment was elaborately fitted for the observer, containing woolen mattress upon which he lies the whole time he is suspended in car as standing was out of the question. The car, moreover, was fitted with a sliding door, through which he crept to his bed.

"A telephone was installed for the observer to communicate the result of his observations to the Zeppelin commander overhead, and the latest scientific instruments for observation, including batteries and torches were there.

"The car may have been suspended from the Zeppelin by a wire cable, nearly a mile of which was found with the wreck, besides ropes, &c. No trace of an observer has been found, and it is believed he managed to regain the gondola.

"Earlier in the war there were frequent reports from eye witnesses in Belgium and France of the use of observation cars by Zeppelins. These, however, were of a different pattern from that described, being apparently smaller and constructed for the observer to stand up and look over the side like an observer in the basket of a kite balloon."

THE suggestion to take Sanatogen would at once come from friends who have had experience with this natural food-tonic. For it is a fact that thousands upon thousands of men and women, weakened through the stress and strain of work and worry have thus regained vitality and working power.

When Sir Gilbert Parker writes: "Sanatogen is a true food-tonic, feeding the nerves and giving fresh vigor to the over-worked body and mind," he but expresses the thoughts of multitudes of others.

That over 21,000 physicians have endorsed Sanatogen in writing; that many physicians, including famous nerve specialists, use Sanatogen in their own families—these facts speak for themselves.

And thus you may be sure you can find no more trustworthy safeguard for your health at such times than Sanatogen.

FREE TRIAL OFFER
On request we will send a 25-gram Sample Package of Sanatogen, also the "Text Book of Sanatogen," telling of its tonic and upbuilding value. Address The Bauer Chemical Co., 26 Irving Place, N. Y.

BRITISH UNION MEN BAN FOES' WORKERS

American Federation Proposal for Worldwide Labor Congress After War Rejected.

BLAME MEN WITH RULERS

Held Equally Responsible for Conflict—Retraction Demanded from Lloyd George.

BIRMINGHAM, England, Sept. 5.—The forty-eighth Trades Union Congress, representing nearly 2,000,000 workingmen, today rejected the proposal made by the American Federation of Labor that a labor congress and a peace congress be held simultaneously at the end of the war.

During the discussion of the proposal, which was that at the end of the war there be a conference representing organized labor of all countries, William J. Thorne, M. P., said he would favor a conference representing the United States and the Entente Allies, but if the proposal contemplated inclusion of representatives of the Central Powers he would oppose it.

"I don't believe for a moment that the Parliamentary Committee of the Labor Party would agree to a conference to which Germans, Austrians, Bulgarians, and Turks might be invited," he said, adding that he would have no discussion with Germans "until every German is cleared out of France and Belgium—and out of England."

Must Disavow Terrorism.

Most of the delegates in addressing the congress declared that it was impossible for Britons to meet workers of the Central Powers for friendly discussion of the labor program until the German democracy disavowed the "methods of terrorism employed by the German Government in submarine and Zeppelin attacks on undefended ships and cities."

Mr. Thorne and George Henry Roberts, M. P., seemed to express the general view that the workers of Germany were equally responsible with their rulers for the war. They argued that just before the war the German delegates at the Basle International Conference promised to oppose military ventures on the part of their Government, but that when they returned to Germany they voted virtually unanimously for war credits and supported every action of the German war party.

While rejecting the idea of German participation in the discussion of labor's claims, the speakers insisted that workers who had fought, sacrificed and paid for the war were entitled to an influential voice in the settlement and should not be left unconsidered, as hitherto always had been done.

Whether a congress which will include Entente allied, American and other neutral workers' organizations will be arranged has not been decided, but the meeting showed such antipathy toward German and Austrian workers that the proposal from the American Federation of Labor was rejected by a majority of three-quarters of a million votes.

The American delegates, William Mahon of Detroit and Matthew Woll of Chicago, were present. Both will speak tomorrow.

For State-Owned Railways.

A determined stand for the nationalization of the railroads of Great Britain was taken. The congress demanded acquisition of the railroads by the State and a voice in their control for the workers. The project for the creation of a Minister of Labor also was approved by a large majority.

Assertions made by David Lloyd George, Secretary for War, that workers were not doing all that they should were denounced unanimously, and it was pointed out that 90 per cent. of the soldiers in the trenches were workingmen. Many hard words were spoken in regard to the Secretary and a retraction from him was demanded.

The possibility of industrial conscription was discussed at length, and the Congress registered a strong protest against the sending of soldiers to work in factories unless placed on the same footing as civilians in regard to treatment and wages.

Opposes Economic War.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—In some respects the outstanding feature of yesterday's meeting of the forty-eighth Trades Union Congress at Birmingham was the outburst of loud and continued applause which followed President Harry Gosling's remarks about the proposals which had been made to pursue an economic war upon Germany after the military hostilities are at an end.

"Many there are," said Mr. Gosling, "some from sordid motives, others with a desire for revenge, who speak and write exultantly of trade wars and tariff wars. We are not going to let it be supposed that we countenanced our entry into this terrible war for the purpose of capturing German trade. Our motives, I mean the motives of the overwhelming majority, in entering this war were to enforce recognition of treaties."

Ask More from Clyde Workers.

GLASGOW, Sept. 5.—Arthur J. Balfour, First Lord of the Admiralty, after a tour of the Clyde shipbuilding and munitions works, told a gathering of trades union delegates here tonight that the Clyde workers were making a splendid contribution to the allied cause. But, he added, he was there to tell them in behalf of the Admiralty that there was still more wanted.

It was true, said the First Lord, that since the outbreak of the war Great Britain had vastly increased her strength in capital ships and was incomparably stronger in cruisers and destroyers. Men might reasonably ask why still greater efforts were needed, and he must remind them that the enemy countries were proceeding, not by the old-fashioned method of fleet action, but by methods appropriate to a weaker party. If the secrets of the German General Staff could be penetrated, he said, it would be found that they had little hope of defeating Jellicoe's fleet in an open fight.

"It must therefore be borne in mind," declared Mr. Balfour, "that as we increase the size of our fleet so we necessarily increase the number of ships which from time to time require to come in for refitting and repairs."

PROF. SIEBERT KILLED IN AIR

Belgian Conqueror Pays Homage to Former Exchange Professor.

BERLIN, Sept. 5, (via London.)—Professor Siebert, who, several years ago, was an exchange professor in the United States, was killed recently in aerial action over the western front.

The following day the Belgian victor dropped a bouquet of roses for the funeral with the inscription: "A Belgian aviator's homage to a foe defeated in aerial battle."

LEOPOLD IS CERTAIN THE LINE WILL HOLD

HEADQUARTERS OF THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE GERMAN ARMIES IN THE EAST, Monday, Sept. 4, (via Berlin, Sept. 4, and London, Sept. 5.)—How little Rumania's entrance in the war worries those in command of the German Eastern armies was indicated today when Prince Leopold of Bavaria said to The Associated Press correspondent: "The Rumanians have placed themselves in a very bad position. They will get their whacks, you may be sure, and if others come in they will get their whacks, too."

These words of the Prince were in reply to a question regarding the possible or probable effect of Rumania's declaration of war.

The Prince's expression of complete confidence that Rumania would be defeated was in the nature of a climax to countless declarations of belief from other officers that Russia would never be able to effect any important break in the German lines. The correspondent was permitted to make an exhaustive inspection of miles of trenches which are more like fortresses than anything else. They surpass any other fortifications the correspondent had seen during many trips to the eastern and western fronts.

After the interview with the Prince, which he, apparently intentionally, kept as free as possible from political and military questions, his chief of staff, Colonel Hoffmann, took up the eastern situation more in detail. It was clear he voiced the precise sentiments of Prince Leopold when he humorously assured the correspondents they might consider they were dealing with "the firm of Leopold, Hoffmann & Co."

"Rumania's entrance," Colonel Hoffmann continued, "probably will mean prolongation of the war. It certainly will mean that the Entente will take courage again and pitch in on another forlorn hope of accomplishing something. But it is unthinkable that it will in any way affect the eventual outcome.

"It is probable that Russian troops were admitted to Rumania weeks ago, in violation of neutrality, but we are not worried in the slightest degree."

The Colonel declared that the Rumanian advances thus far had been unimportant and would soon come to a standstill.

Turning his attention to the Russians, the Colonel pointed out the strategic importance to them of Kovel and Baranovichi, each a railroad centre at which roads from the east, west, north, and south meet. For possession of these points the Russians have made the most desperate efforts since last March; efforts so great, in fact, that the Germans believe it entirely possible that the Russian losses in the last six months have exceeded 1,000,000.

PRESS TURKS IN ARMENIA.

Russians Are Forcing the Porte's Forces to Retreat Hurriedly.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 5.—Fierce battles are in progress in the region west of Ognott, in Turkish Armenia, says today's Russian official statement. The Turkish troops are said to be retreating hurriedly, and are said to have burned their ammunition stores. The text of the announcement says:

> On the Caucasian front attempted night attacks by the Turks on our position in the region west of Erzingan were repelled by our fire and hand grenades.
>
> In the region west of Ognott fierce battles are continuing. Hurriedly retreating, the Turkish troops burned the ammunition stores which they had established on their position.
>
> In the region southwest of the town of Sakkiz in Persia we are pressing the enemy.

BERLIN, Sept. 5, (via Sayville.)—A Turkish official statement issued at Constantinople under date of Sept. 2, says:

> Our troops on the Caucasian front are attacking the enemy positions twelve miles northeast of Ognott and forced the Russians to withdraw to the northeastward.
>
> On Sept. 1 eight Turkish aeroplanes successfully bombed Port Said and returned unharmed.

INSIST BREMEN IS CAUGHT.

Passengers Back from Europe Confident British Got the Submarine.

Passengers arriving last night on the American liner Philadelphia from Liverpool, including several British and American officials, declared positively that the German submarine Bremen had been captured by a British destroyer and taken into Sheerness or Chatham dockyards. For some reason the matter was being kept secret by the Admiralty in order that the Germans would not know what had happened to her.

An Australian officer, who did not wish his name to be used because it might go back to the Admiralty in London, said he was positive that the Bremen had been captured, and was in Dover Harbor ten days ago.

Among the passengers was John Bass, war correspondent for The Chicago Daily News, who has just come from the Somme front. He said there were no signs of peace anywhere, and would not be any until one side or the other has been beaten to a finish.

"From all I could learn from the British, French, and Russian officials in London, Paris, and Petrograd, the war will last at least another year," he said. "The Allies must drive the Germans out of Belgium and France back into their own country before they will begin to think of accepting peace."

ITALIANS CAPTURE HEIGHTS.

Take Commanding Positions in the Upper Bovi Sector.

ROME, Sept. 5.—Several commanding positions of the Austrians on Punta del Forane, at the head of the Rio Felizon Valley, in the Upper Bovi, were captured Saturday night by detachments of Italian infantry, Alpini and volunteers, says the Italian official statement issued today. Violent Austrian counterattacks were repulsed. The statement reads:

> The usual artillery activity took place on the Trentino front. The enemy artillery fire was especially intense against our positions on Mount Civaron, in the Sugana Valley, and on Mount Cauriol, in the Fiemme Valley.
>
> At the head of the Rio Felizon Valley, in the Upper Bovi, during Saturday night, detachments of infantry, Alpini, and volunteers succeeded, by a daring surprise attack, in capturing several commanding positions on the Punta del Forane. A violent enemy counterattack was decisively repulsed, a company being annihilated by our fire.
>
> In the Upper But and Upper Chiarzo Valleys enemy artillery shelled several villages, killing three wounded soldiers in a field hospital in addition to a few civilians. Our artillery replied by shelling some billets in the Koschach Gail Valley, where destructive fires were observed.
>
> On the middle Isonzo and on the Carso there was only intermittent artillery activity. Our batteries destroyed a captive enemy balloon near Sela Selo.

On the night of Sept. 3 an Italian dirigible, according to an announcement made here today, successfully bombarded the Austrian military works at Lussinpiccolo, in the crown land of Istria. The airship returned undamaged.

SAW WARSHIPS IN BATTLE.

Sea Captain Tells of Fight Between German Destroyers and U-Boat.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 5.—The Captain of an incoming ship reports that he observed, outside of the Stockholm Skaergard yesterday, four German destroyers in an engagement with a big submarine.

Suddenly the Germans fled southward, and fifteen minutes later returned with four torpedo boats, but no submarine was then visible.

HAILS 8-HOUR LAW AS SOCIALISTIC STEP

THINKS CONGRESS DUPED

Doesn't Believe Law Can Be Enforced—Sure Public Will Pay $5 for Every $1 Wage Advance.

Victor Berger, editor of the Milwaukee Leader, a socialist daily, and the first socialist to be elected to Congress, who is now in New York, discussed the recent action of Congress in passing the railroad eight-hour law yesterday. He said the passage of the law was a step toward government ownership of the railroads, which Congress had taken unwittingly.

While he welcomes the passage of the law as a step in the direction of government ownership, Mr. Berger added that in his opinion the settling or "temporary postponement" of the strike was, after all, a piece of buncombe in which Congress and the public generally were the dupes.

"Congress," said Mr. Berger, "has taken one of the most momentous steps in the history of our country, one of the greatest steps in the direction of socialism ever taken, and when it took that step Congress did so without knowing what it was doing. For the first time in the history of our country, Congress has passed legislation fixing the hours of work and practically also the scale of wages in privately owned enterprises, for the railroads of America are privately owned. Heretofore Congress has scrupulously refrained from enacting legislation of this kind.

"In my opinion, everybody has been buncoed, Congress, the general public, and the workers. In the first place, Congress has passed a law which it has not the ways and means to enforce. You cannot force the railroads to pay a certain wage as long as they are privately owned. You cannot compel the railroads to do this any more than you can compel the owner of an American newspaper or any other privately owned enterprise to pay a certain wage.

"I do not know what the United States Supreme Court is going to do. But, unless President Wilson appoints enough new members of the Interstate Commerce Commission to make possible the granting of an increase in passenger and freight rates to the railroads, the railroads will simply say that they cannot pay the new wage scale because they must pay dividends and interest on bonds or declare themselves bankrupt. Then the Government will have to step in and run the railroads. This is all said under the supposition that the Supreme Court decides that the law is constitutional.

"But now, let us suppose that the Supreme Court decides that the law is unconstitutional and void. In that event the men will get neither the eight hours nor the increased wage, and then there will be nothing to keep them from striking again, and we will be face to face with the same situation we were up against last week, the only difference being that it won't be seven or eight weeks before a national election, and that Mr. Wilson, or whoever happens to be President, will not hasten to send special messages to both houses of Congress to pass laws for his especial favor in order to help along the personal boom of a nominee.

"The worst buncoed element in any case, however, is the great public, including the working classes,. who not only will have to pay the difference in wages for the men, but also $5 in profits, dividends, and interest for every $1 of increased wages paid by the railroads to the men. Moreover, in the event the wrangle between the managers and the brotherhoods leads to a strike after all, business will be paralyzed, there will be a general cessation of work, and the people will face starvation during the period the managers and brotherhoods are fighting the matter to a finish.

"Very soon the country will have to come to the only solution of this matter, which is collective ownership and governmental management of the railroads.

BLANKET TEST FOR LAW.

All the Railroads to Join in Case Against Adamson Act.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—A blanket test case of the Adamson eight-hour law is planned by all the railroads, according to statements made today by G. Lathrop, General Solicitor of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé.

Lathrop said the individual roads now had their legal staffs working out the details separately, would compare conclusions later, and formulate a blanket test case for all roads at the same time.

MAKE RAILROAD BILL A REPUBLICAN ISSUE

Gray, General Freight Agent of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, resigned from the club for the same reason. As a result ten new applications for membership were received. According to Norbert J. Donovan, Secretary of the club, the applicants said they wanted to line up with the President in his stand for an eight-hour day. There are other memberships in prospect, Mr. Donovan said.

REVENUE BILL PASSED BY SENATE

tion of other articles from the belligerent country or its dependencies.

This amendment was aimed directly at the action of the British Government through an Order in Council in declaring that certain articles were luxuries and forbidding their importation into British ports unless under special license. Subsequently it was provided by the British Government that one-third of the amount of tobacco imported into the British possessions in 1915 might be imported under special licenses. When this amendment was proposed by Senator James he was asked if it was in conflict with the favored nation clauses of any treaties and gave assurance that this matter had been examined by the State Department, which had found that there was no conflict. The State Department, Mr. James said, approved the amendment. Senator Smoot, one of the Republican leaders, said that he was in favor of the amendment if it was not in conflict with any treaty obligations.

The James amendment it is held will apply to discriminations against American shippers and ships in the detention of American cargoes consigned to neutral countries of Europe and may be construed to apply to the detention of American cargoes consigned to the ports of the Central Powers if the President is satisfied that the detention is contrary to established laws and practices.

This Government has contended in its several diplomatic notes to Great Britain that the British blockade was illegal, and under this contention the James resolution could be interpreted as meaning that the refusal of Great Britain to permit American cargoes to go to Germany afforded ground for retaliation.

May Withhold Clearance.

The most drastic amendment adopted by the Senate with reference to retaliation against Great Britain was offered by Senator Thomas of Colorado, a Democrat and a firm friend of the Administration. It provides that the President, during a war in which the United States is not engaged, can withhold clearance from all vessels which discriminate against American shippers and withhold privileges from vessels of nations which withhold privileges accorded to the shipping of other nations by the United States. The amendment authorizes the President to use the army and navy of the United States to prevent the departure of ships which offend in the particular stated. Severe penalties are provided for attempts to violate the provisions of the amendment.

The ease with which the amendment was adopted showed how thoroughly the Senate, with respect to party lines, was in accord with the purpose of this drastic provision. The amendment is aimed particularly at vessels which refuse to carry shipments of firms whose names appear on the British blacklist. Generally, it attempts to overcome the purpose of the blacklist. A fine of not less than $2,000 or more than $50,000, or imprisonment not to exceed two years, or both fine and imprisonment, are the penalties provided for violations of the amendment.

On top of this, and with the same ease, the Senate adopted an amendment proposed by Senator Phelan of California, which was directed at the British detentions and seizures of American mails and mail censorship and censorship of cable messages. It provides that whenever the President, during the progress of a war in which the United States is not engaged, shall be satisfied that American ships, citizens, or firms and corporations are not enjoying any of the facilities of commerce, including the unhampered traffic in mails, "the President is hereby authorized and empowered, in his discretion, to deny to the citizens, firms, companies or corporations of such belligerent countries the use of the United States mails, or the facilities of any express company engaged in interstate commerce, or of any telegraph, wireless, or cable company."

Any person or organization concerned, making such prohibited use of mails or telegraphs, will be subject to a fine of not less than $2,000 or more than $10,000, or by imprisonment for not more than one year or by both fine and imprisonment.

Unlike the Thomas amendment, that offered by Senator Phelan was not submitted to the State Department for approval, but its adoption was accomplished without difficulty. The allied diplomatic establishments are said to be particularly opposed to the provision in the Thomas amendment permitting the President to use the land and naval forces to enforce the statute.

To Retaliate on Canada.

Still another retaliatory provision attached to the revenue bill is directed against Canadian discrimination against American fish. This amendment was offered by Senator Chamberlain of Oregon. The attention of the Canadian Government was attracted to it and it brought representations from the Dominion. The Ottawa Government expressed great surprise that such a provision had been offered, and the suggestion was made that it be withdrawn and the subject taken up diplomatically between the British and American Governments.

The amendment provides that ninety days after the passage of the Revenue bill no fish or frozen halibut or salmon from the North Pacific Ocean or its tributary waters shall be admitted into the United States through any foreign country except when bound for an American port.

In the course of the debate in the Senate, Mr. Smoot, discussing the financial panic of 1907 and denying an assertion of Senator Thomas that its effects extended into the Wilson Administration, said:

"It is common knowledge that prior to the panic of that year the executive branch of the Government had been conducting a crusade against a class of people whom it characterized as malefactors of great wealth. In my judgment there was justification for a part of that crusade. It was at that time and still is my opinion that the crusade gathered a momentum which carried it beyond the point of reason. This was recognized by President Roosevelt himself, who called a halt when he realized the extent to which enthusiasm had carried his co-laborers.

"But while I was then, and still am, of the opinion that the crusade, however wisely begun, was carried to unwise extremes, yet I have never for a moment doubted the sincerity of the man who started that crusade. Neither is there any doubt on that point in the minds of the American people."

One amendment to the Revenue bill adopted by the Senate is intended to prevent dependent wives and other relatives of National Guardsmen called into the service of the United States from being deprived of money appropriated for their support while the National Guard is engaged in duty in connection with the Mexican emergency.

Senator Lee told the Senate that the Controller had rendered a decision that none of the $2,000,000 appropriated for the support of dependents of National Guardsmen would be available for dependents of men who had enlisted after President Wilson's call on June 18, or the period subsequent to June 18 for those guardsmen who were already in the service.

The amendment provides for overcoming the legal point raised by the Controller, and makes the money available for the dependents of guardsmen for the period subsequent to June 18.

TARIFF BOARD SALARIES CUT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—While the Senate adopted the Tariff Commission section of the General Revenue bill, it refused, by a vote of 35 to 18, to raise the salaries of the members of the commission from $7,500, the amount fixed by the House, to $10,000, the amount paid members of other Federal commissions. The Tariff Commission, however, was strengthened and its permanency made more secure by a provision that an annual appropriation for the expenses of the commission should be continued from year to year for twelve years.

Senator Cummins led the effort to increase the salaries of the members of the Tariff Commission from $7,500 to $10,000.

"I want this commission," Senator Cummins said, "to be composed of three of the biggest and greatest Democrats in the United States and three of the biggest and brainiest Republicans in the United States, and if the President fails in making his appointments to recognize the real spirit in which the legislation is sought, he will prove false to the duty which the statute imposes. While this amendment proposes an increase of salary, the real question is that the standing of the commission in the country and the influence of its reports on legislation shall be worthy of the highest confidence. If we reduce this compensation below that of similar commissions we will have said to the country in advance that we are not sincere in regard to the helpfulness of the commission."

Senator Smith of Georgia opposed the amendment, saying that the salary had not the slightest thing to do with the dignity or ability of the commission. He recalled that he had urged cutting down the salaries of the members of the Shipping Board and the Rural Credits Board.

Senator Colt made the plea that the higher compensation should be given because the country had reached a critical stage of international economics, and the old principle of free trade where there was fair competition, had passed. After the war in Europe, he said, there must be tariff preparedness. Germany, he said, had adopted a system of organizing her industries into vast syndicates for the sole purpose of capturing foreign trade, and England had abandoned her free trade policy and become a protectionist country.

Senator Sherman at this point asked in a dramatic manner if the proposed increase of salary would increase respectability. "If it does," said the Illinois Senator, "let's double our salaries and thereby double our respectability."

Senator Thomas of Colorado supported the Cummins amendment in an argument for taking tariff problems out of the arena of partisan debate. There was a measure of honor and confidence in the salary proposed, he said, which would be reflected to some extent in the work of the commission just as it was in many offices in the judiciary and in various commissions."

When the Cummins amendment was put to a vote it was lost, yeas 18 and nays 35. The following Senators voted for the Amendment: Ashurst, Chamberlain, Chilton, Fletcher, Husting, Johnson of South Dakota, Lewis, Meyers, Pomerene, and Thomas, Democrats; and Clapp, Colt, Cummins, Curtis du Pont, La Follette, Smoot, and Weeks, Republicans.

Those who voted against the amendment were: Bankhead, Beckham, Bryan, Hughes, Lane, Lea, Lee, Martin, Martine, Phelan, Pittman, Ransdell, Reed, Shafroth, Sheppard, Shields, Simmons, Smith of Georgia, Smith of South Carolin, Stone, Swanson, Taggart, Thompson, Underwood, and Vardaman, Democrats; and Fall, Gallinger, Jones, Kenyon, McCumber, Nelson, Norris, Penrose, Sherman, and Sterling, Republicans.

Blakeslee Apologizes to Senators.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—James I. Blakeslee, Assistant Postmaster General, who recently was called to account by members of the Senate for charges he made in letters to Postmasters that the Post Office Committee "surrendered to the railroads" in their action regarding rail pay in the Post Office Appropriation bill, wrote a letter to Chairman Bankhead today disclaiming intention of reflecting on the Senate. Senator Bankhead said tonight this would probably close the incident.

London Pastor Called to Brooklyn.

The Rev. Richard Roberts of London, England, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Congregational Church of the Pilgrims, Henry and Remsen Streets, Brooklyn. Mr. Roberts resigned as the pastor of the Crouch Hill Presbyterian Church, London, several months ago. He will come to Brooklyn next January.

DESCRIBES HARDSHIP IN RUHLEBEN CAMP

Civilian, Here After Release, Says Prisoners Are Ill-Fed and Punished Harshly.

William Simpson, a wool merchant of Sydney, Australia, arrived here yesterday from Liverpool on the Anchor liner Cameronia on his way home, after spending eighteen months in the civilian prison camp at Ruhleben, seven miles from Berlin. He is 57 years old and obtained his release after a delay of many months on account of being past the fighting age, which the German Government decrees is 55.

"It was about two months after the war had begun," Mr. Simpson said, "when I landed at Marseilles from Sydney and started to make a short tour through Switzerland and Holland to London. I was told in Berne that there would be no difficulty in my going from Basle through Germany and down the Rhine to Cologne because the Government was not interfering with colonials, and only people from Great Britain were being interned. At the frontier I showed my letters from the Government of New South Wales and the Germans very politely allowed me to travel as far as Cologne without interference.

"I arrived at the Dom Hotel in the evening, intending to leave on the afternoon train for Amsterdam, but after dinner I was told by the manager that an officer wished to see me and that I was to be interned as an enemy alien for the duration of the war. I had to travel next day to Berlin, where they sent me to the camp on the race course at Ruhleben. I was given a sixth share in a horse box ten feet square, which was about two feet deep in filthy, damp straw. My fellow-prisoners told me that as a colonial I ought not to have been arrested, and urged me to go to the Governor, Baron Schwerin, and protest. I took their advice, and made such a noise about my incarceration that I nearly got sent to a dungeon in Berlin for six months on dry bread and water.

"Baron Taube, the second in command, was intended for a pirate king of the worst type. For the slightest offense a prisoner was put on bread and water for seven to fourteen days. He was ably seconded by Dr. Gaiger, the Chief Surgeon, who had to pass the prisoners to be invalided out. On one occasion two patients escaped from the hospital and got away, which enraged the Baron so much that he ordered all the other patients to leave the building and walk through a heavy snowstorm to the horse boxes, and three of them died of exposure.

"After a few months we were served with mattresses and a pillow stuffed with bristly shavings. We had fish twice a week, very often putrid; meat twice a week, and thick potato soup three times weekly, which was our rations. Every morning each prisoner was given a fifth of a loaf of war bread, which was 80 per cent. potatoes and 20 per cent. coarse bran, and uneatable. Since I left Ruhleben I have gained thirty-four pounds, but still I am not up to my normal weight. If it had not been for the parcels of food sent to us from American and English women I should have died. The tea was made from chopped birch twigs tinged with tannin, and the coffee from roasted acorns."

THE CITY MUST PAY MUCH OF WAGE RISE

OFFICIALS SEEK FIGURES

Say Generosity of Rapid Transit Managers Is Not Wholly Philanthropic.

The recent announcement that the Interborough Rapid Transit Company had granted another wage increase to its employes, making the third within eight months, and that the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company has also granted an increase, is interesting city officials who are watching the working out of the contract between the city and the two companies. These officials pointed out yesterday that the announced generosity on the part of the two companies must not be considered altogether as a philanthropic contribution on their part, as the city in some form must bear a share of this increase of wages.

On Jan. 1 the Interborough granted a wage increase amounting to $200,000 a year. On Aug. 1 it granted another increase amounting to approximately $300,000 a year. On Aug. 30 another increase was announced, amounting to $1,250,000, making a total of $1,750,000 since the first of the year. This applies entirely to employes on the subway and elevated lines which come under the dual system contract. The B. R. T. a few days ago announced an increase in wages of its employes of $650,000, but this applies to subway, elevated, and surface lines.

Under the terms of both the Interborough and the B. R. T. contracts the first charges against income after the contracts become effective will naturally be for operating expenses, including the cost of labor. The deductions next in order, in the case of the Interborough, would be:

1. The rent of the city on account of the old subway lines.
2. The preferential of the company, representing the earning value of the old lines.
3. The interest and amortization charges on the company's new investment.
4. The interest and amortization charges on the city's investment.

After this is deducted, the surplus profit on the new system is to be divided equally between the city and the company. The order of deduction in the case of the Brooklyn company is the same, except that there is no rent to be paid to the city on old accounts.

It was explained by the representatives of the city at the time the contracts were negotiated that during the first several years of their operation there would be deficits to be carried under the last item mentioned, that is, the city's carrying charges. Whatever increase is permitted in operating expense will, of course, defer correspondingly the date upon which these deficits will cease to run. All the city's deficits are to be treated as cumulative, to be paid off out of future earnings before there is any division of income in which the company shall share.

The city, therefore, will lose nothing in the long run; but it will have to finance the carrying of deficits while they do run, either through annual charges in the tax budget, or otherwise, and it is this fact that is making city officials wonder just how long the increased wage schedules will defer the time when the city begins to share in the returns upon its investment.

Under the dual contracts while the city will have no voice in actual management it will have the right to challenge any item of operating expense. Upon such a challenge the question, in all probability, would go to arbitration.

DENY FIXING CHICKEN PRICES

Poultry Men Tell Swann Western Shippers Are to Blame.

Fifty representatives of the Live Poultrymen's Association, whom the retail butchers accuse of having advanced the price of chickens in anticipation of the threatened tieup of the railroads, called yesterday on District Attorney Swann and Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling, in immediate charge of an inquiry into the situation, and declared that the Western shippers alone were responsible for the increases.

They told Mr. Dooling that one man in West Washington Market, who styled himself the agent of the shippers, dominated the poultry business in the city and fixed prices. They asked the aid of the prosecutor in protecting their interests, and promised to help in any way he could suggest.

Another conference between the association and the District Attorney will soon be held.

Clevenger Out of Primary Race.

Supreme Court Justice Philbin handed down a decision yesterday, removing the name of Joseph Clevenger from the primary ballot as Republican candidate for Congress from the Seventeenth District. The court sustained the contentions of Lindell T. Bates of 783 Fifth Avenue, who is a candidate against Clevenger, that 119 of the signatures on Clevenger's petition out of a total of 258 were illegal. Mr. Bates is now the sole Republican candidate. Victor Morawetz withdrew last Friday. A protest against Clevenger's Progressive petition will be heard today.

Hughes Noon Meeting Today.

Philip J. McCook, President of the New York State Committee of the Hughes Alliance, and Miss Amelia Bingham will speak at a noon meeting at 221 Broadway today. Mrs. William R. Willcox, wife of the Chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Mrs. James B. Reynolds, wife of the Secretary, will be among the hostesses. Daily meetings are to be held under the auspices of the Women's New York City Committee of the Hughes Alliance. Miss Alice Carpenter will preside. Dolls, the boys in service uniforms, the girls in patriotic dress, will be among the souvenirs sold today to help pay the expenses of the campaign.

FOUND 'CROCKER LAND' TO BE ONLY A MIRAGE

Lieut. Green of the MacMillan Arctic Expedition Is Confident Peary Was Deceived.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday from Copenhagen on the Scandinavian-American liner United States was Lieutenant Fitzhugh Green of the United States Navy, who represented the Government on the Crocker Land expedition under Donald B. MacMillan, which left New York in 1913. The Lieutenant confirmed the previous reports that "Crocker Land" did not exist, and said the rest of the party would arrive in Nova Scotia toward the end of this month on the steamer Denmark.

"I accompanied Mr. MacMillan," he said, "on his three months' trip from Cape Thomas Hubbard, where the ship was disabled, 150 miles over the Polar Sea toward where Admiral Peary claimed to have seen Crocker Land. According to his observations, Peary was only 130 miles from the coast of Greenland when he made his discovery of the supposed new land.

"We were favored by clear weather, and, after taking numerous observations and careful soundings, getting no bottom, we determined that what Peary had seen was a mirage. This was further confirmed on our return to Cape Thomas Hubbard, where we saw the mirage of mountains, which might easily have been mistaken for land. The temperature was never below 30 degrees below zero and the weather was fine and clear the whole time."

Lieutenant Green started on his homeward journey on Jan. 16 with Dr. Maurice C. Tanquary, Jerome Lee Allen, the wireless operator of the relief motor schooner, George B. Cluett, and Dr. F. O. Hovey, who led the relief expedition from New York in August, 1915, to make a 1,300-mile journey across the ice with dogsleds. The cold was so intense that Dr. Hovey turned back after going sixty miles, and is coming home on the Denmark. Dr. Tanquary reached home in June and Allen arrived here in August.

The Lieutenant said that he would go to Washington on Monday to make his report to the Navy Department, and then hoped to take a holiday. He said the time spent in the arctic regions had been well spent in exploration and mapping along the northerly Greenland coast.

Mr. MacMillan, he added, had gathered a valuable collection of skins, minerals, and other exhibits, which he was bringing back in the Denmark.

VENICE ATTACKED AGAIN.

Austrian Aviators Drop 20 Bombs, but Do Little Damage.

ROME, Sept. 5.—An Austrian naval aeroplane squadron dropped bombs on Venice Monday night without doing any damage, says an official statement issued here today. On Sunday and Monday nights Austrian aircraft dropped bombs on Gorizia and three other towns in that vicinity. Three persons were killed in Gorizia and the roof of the Church of St. John was damaged.

ARREST IN WHITMAN CASE.

Constable Furness Accused of Forging Names to Governor's Petition.

Special to The New York Times.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Sept. 5.—District Attorney William S. Cassedy this afternoon caused the arrest of Charles Furness, the constable and notary who obtained the Progressive signatures to Governor Whitman's nominating petition. Furness was arraigned in the City Court on a charge of forgery in the second degree. He appeared as his own attorney, waived examination, and put up $3,000 bail for his appearance before the Grand Jury.

Although Mr. Cassedy says he has in his possession affidavits from local Progressives that their names were forged, he merely charged Furness with forging the name of Henry C. Brust. The arrest of the constable follows charges made by Wendell P. Murray of this city, Progressive candidate for Secretary of State.

PARKER MAY TOUR THE EAST

Progressive Nominee Will Speak for His Own Party Only.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 5.—John M. Parker, Progressive nominee for the Vice Presidency, announced today that he probably would make a speaking tour before election, principally of the Eastern States.

"The speeches I shall make, if the tour finally is decided upon," said Mr. Parker, "will be entirely in the interests of the Progressive Party with the view to keeping it actively in existence. I will not advocate the candidacy of either the Republican or Democratic nominee for President."

Mr. Parker said that according to present plans his tour will begin early in October in New York, and that he also might go into Pennsylvania and Ohio.

King George Sees Battle Film.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Following upon the discussion as to the desirability of public expression on the Somme battle film, the War Office announces that the film was shown to the King and Queen at Windsor Castle Saturday. The King afterward expressed to the officials responsible for its presentation, his approval of the pictures. The Queen also expressed keen appreciation.

Armed Italians Held for Examination

The seven armed Italians who were taken from an automobile at Second Avenue and 106th Street early yesterday morning by Captain James Brady and four plain-clothes men from the East 104th Street Station were arraigned yesterday in the Fifth District Court, East 125th Street. The men, charged with violation of the Sullivan law, would have nothing to say, and when accused of being members of an upper east side gang they merely shrugged their shoulders. The entire party was held for examination today at 10 o'clock.

Strikebreakers in Car Barns.

The Inteborough Rapid Transit Company, in the meantime, was rushing strikebreakers to its car barns and going ahead with its preparations as if it had no doubt that a strike by the union would be voted. Hundreds of these strikebreakers were enrolled yesterday, and it was announced that 8,000 men available for this kind of work would be on hand by this morning. Mr. Hedley and other officials of the company established temporary headquarters at the Hotel Belmont, and newspaper reporters were told to go there last night to get such statements as the company might care to make.

Acting Deputy Police Commissioner Godley canceled all vacations of policemen as a precautionary measure. This raised the number of uniformed men available for strike duty to about 10,000. All of these, it was said at Police Headquarters, were being held in readiness for strike duty, and would be detailed to guard cars and company property.

It was noticeable, however, that all of these preparations were conditioned on a far more serious view of the situation than the labor leaders seemed, publicly at least, to take of it. Most of them predicted, privately, that a general strike would be called, but formal statements to reporters carefully avoided such promises.

HEDLEY, IN ANGER, ENDS MEETING WITH LEADERS

Countercharges of Falsehood Mark Conference Over Strike Situation.

The conference between leaders of the carmen's union and Frank Hedley, General Manager of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, in the latter's office at 165 Broadway, yesterday morning, was more than acrimonious. Mr. Hedley plainly informed his callers, after briefly stating his position, that they could not make their visit too short. He accused them of having intimidated employes into joining the union, and of having attempted to browbeat the company by threatening a general strike.

Louis Fridiger, counsel for the union, denied that the men who called on Mr. Hedley had been guilty of any of the acts attributed to them, but the General Manager of the Interborough Company refused to be convinced. Although accompanied by William B. Fitzgerald, general organizer of the union, and by a committee of employers of the Interborough Company, the lawyer did most of the talking.

Mr. Fridiger told Mr. Hedley that on last Friday more than 3,000 employes of the Interborough Company had unanimously adopted a resolution demanding that the company recall its "master and servant contracts" binding employes to work for two years without asking for more wages, and Mr. Hedley's reply was terse and prompt.

Hedley Gives Flat Refusal.

"Well, I give you my answer on that," Mr. Hedley said. "We will not do it."

The lawyer for the union told Mr. Hedley that the union only asked for the cancellation of such contracts as had been made with organized employes, but the General Manager said the company would not recede from its position.

"We stand absolutely on what we told you before," he said, "that none of these agreements will be returned until first I could be satisfied that they were signed by any man who did not know what he was signing, and I cannot conceive that it is possible for any man to convince me of that. Any man holding one has the right under the Constitution to resort to the courts and let the courts of the country determine. We will absolutely continue, positively continue, with our work of continuing to make individual contracts with our men."

Mr. Fridiger indicated a desire to advance proof that some of the men who signed the contracts did so without knowing what they were doing, but Mr. Hedley said he would not be satisfied unless proof was furnished in the courts. He was asked if he would consent to have the Public Service Commission arbitrate the differences growing out of the contracts, and he said he would not.

The lawyer attempted to continue the argument, but Mr. Hedley would not listen to him. Both showed signs of anger, and later they accused each other of making misstatements.

Tells of General Strike Threat.

"I will not discuss any other feature of this entire matter that you gentlemen have had before me, especially since you gentlemen have gone out and caused a very small majority of our men to threaten us with a strike," said Mr. Hedley, "and to tie up this city from the Bronx to Coney Island. Until that is disposed of, I decline to talk with you about any of these other matters."

Mr. Fridiger hotly denied that he or any of the other leaders had "caused a small majority" "to threaten a strike. "Permit me to state that this is an absolute misstatement of fact, and I am very charitable when I use that term, that it is a misstatement of fact," he said. "None of thes men have gone out and done any such thing as you have suggested. Some 3,000 men brought about this situation, simply because of their feeling of resentment at what they believed was the absolute unfair methods of the company in attempting to obtain these signatures to these contracts of employment. It was the desire of these 3,000 men to have a strike vote immediately, and it was 'you men,' quoting your expression, who—"

"If you want to do that, it is up to you," interrupted Mr. Hedley, shortly. "I cannot help that."

There was some further argument, whereupon Mr. Hedley burst out: "I do not propose to and the company will not tolerate the threats and intimidations that have been going on with the few union men we have got among our employes that are not union men. Immediate action will be taken in these cases."

"We hope so," said Mr. Fridiger.

Company Ready to Act.

"All this matter of your union men getting on cars and threatening a man because he has not joined your union is going to stop forthwith," said Mr. Hedley, "and the company is going to take action in every one of those cases. Now you might just as well understand it clearly that I have my instructions in this matter, and that is all I have got to talk to you about. Now, it is up to you, gentlemen. It is entirely up to you, and I absolutely decline to discuss any of these other matters."

Mr. Fridiger attempted to interrupt, but Mr. Hedley was in no mood to listen to him.

"I decline to discuss any other matter with you, Mr. Fridiger," he asserted pointedly, "until that is settled."

Mr. Fridiger would not be silenced, however, and retorted that his sole desire was to see that none of Mr. Hedley's "wild statements" were unanswered in the record.

"We have seen times," the lawyer said, "when a statement goes unanswered that it is deemed, perhaps, as an admission of the fact. So far as any action your company is going to take with reference to the men making threats and of intimidating your own men, we hope that action will be taken, because there is nobody who has advised or have advised—"

"If you do that," retorted Mr. Hedley, "I will dismiss the men in this room immediately."

"Go ahead, that is your privilege," said Mr. Fridiger, and Mr. Hedley retorted that he would certainly maintain it.

"I have never seen a greater piece of intimidation and coercion than the statement issued by your company in which you stated that any man who desired to go out on strike," broke in the lawyer, "or who remains away from his employment during the pendency of such a strike will do so at the penalty of absolute dismissal."

Refused to Arbitrate.

He asked again if the company would not arbitrate, and Mr. Hedley said it would not. Attorney James Quackenbush, one of the lawyers of the company who was present, said the same thing.

Mr. Quackenbush said the Public Service Commission had no jurisdiction, in the first place, and that in the second place witnesses appearing before such a body could make false statements without being in danger of going to prison.

After the conference adjourned the labor leaders at once called on Theodore Rousseau, the Mayor's secretary, and informed him of the result of the meeting with Mr. Hedley. They reminded Mr. Rousseau that they had promised Mr. Mitchel not to call any strike on the Interborough lines until they had first given the Mayor reasonable warning, and that they had gone to the City Hall to fulfill that promise.

When the union leaders left they said they would hold a meeting at 3 o'clock in the afternoon to decide on their next step. Instead of holding a meeting at the Hotel Continental, Broadway and Forty-first Street, where all of the labor leaders are registered, they met in a hall at 110 East 125th Street. There they discussed the situation with a committee composed of employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and decided upon the mass meeting tonight. This mass meeting will be called to order at 8 o'clock.

SAYS TRAINS WILL RUN.

President Shonts Denies Any Agreement with Carmen's Union.

Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, announced at the Hotel Belmont last night that the company would operate cars notwithstanding any strike that might be called by the carmen's union. He said:

"The question of vital interest to the public, of course, aside from the points in dispute between the company and the carmen's union, is whether we are going to run cars or not. We are going to run trains, come what may. How much of a schedule we shall be able to put into operation the future alone will develop. We are assuming that the number that have already signed individual agreements with the company will remain loyal to the company. In addition to that number we shall also call upon others who have already been engaged to fill the places of those who walk out on strike."

Mr. Shonts then handed out the following typewritten statement, showing, among other things, that the Interborough Company was not bound by the agreement signed by the New York Railways Company when the surface car strikes were settled on Aug. 7, last:

As officers of the Amalgamated Union announce they will lay before the Mayor and Chairman Straus the issue they have raised as to the individual agreements made between this company and its employes, numbering yesterday 8,000 and today 8,500 of its employes, it is important that the public know the facts:

1. There is and has been no agreement between the Interborough and the Mayor and Chairman Straus covering relations between the company and its employes.
2. The only agreement between the Interborough and any of its employes is the individual "working agreement" signed by the company and over 8,500 of its men.
3. With that agreement the Amalgamated Union has and has had nothing to do. It was the outgrowth of conferences between this company and representatives duly chosen by the vote of an overwhelming majority of the employes.
4. It is these agreements which the union officers—representing but a small minority of the men—ask us to cancel. We have received no such requests from the men who did sign.
5. The employes of the Interborough have formed a brotherhood of their own, and have manifested in a variety of ways their desire to deal with the company independently and to be free from the attempted invasions upon their work and freedom.
6. There is no issue between this company and the more than two-thirds of its men who have signed a contract covering their service for the company for the next two years.
7. The whole situation involves an effort by the outside union, of which but a minority of our men are members, to create an issue, whereby through strike, or threats of strike, the majority of our men shall be compelled against their will to join the outside union.

Effort has been made to confuse the Interborough situation with the agreement which grew out of the recent strike on the "green" (N. Y. Railways) surface car lines.

All we ask is that the contracts voluntarily entered into between ourselves and over 8,500 of our men be understood to have that same binding effect upon all concerned which the conditions under which the contracts were made fully warrant.

If the union feels that any of these contracts are invalid, they are free to appeal to the courts to set them aside. The question of the validity of a contract is one clearly for court determination.

Mr. Shonts was asked if it were true, as alleged by leaders of the carmen's union, that employes of the Interborough Company had been dismissed for refusing to sign the individual service contracts.

"No, absolutely no," he replied. "No such thing as that has happened." Turning to Mr. Hedley, who was in the room, he said: "Isn't that so, Frank?" And Mr. Hedley said that it was.

"In order to discredit us," said Mr. Shonts, "these union leaders are taking every means to attack us and our purposes. I understand that Mr. Fitzgerald has stated that these contracts were obtained only from men who feared they might lose their positions if they did not sign.

"As a matter of fact, the men were not influenced in any way. The people we sent out to solicit enrollment were not men who held positions of authority over the men. The men desired to form a non-union brotherhood, and we told them to go ahead and organize."

MEN ACCUSE THE COMPANY.

Fitzgerald Says Officials Have Never Ceased Opposing Organization.

William B. Fitzgerald, general organizer of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, issued a typewritten statement at the Continental Hotel last night blaming the officials of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for creating a situation that might result in a second traction strike.

After explaining that a statement had been made necessary by the published assertions of officers of the company, the document recites events leading up to the agreement of Aug. 7, and asserts that despite it the attitude of the company of opposition "to the progress for advancement in the organization of their employes" did not change, and was disclosed by the submission to employes of a contract of employment which they were required "to sign without their knowing of its sweeping effect." The statement continues:

At the first conference between the employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the officials of the company, held on Aug. 31, 1916, this contract of employment first came to the attention of the committee and the true purposes and intent of the same were brought out in the open. The committee requested Mr. Hedley that no more signatures be sought until the men could be informed what Mr. Hedley and Mr. Quackenbush, the attorney for the company, admitted was true, that is, that any employe who signed this contract of employment would be precluded from joining any organization or participating in any movement for the betterment of his working conditions or for an increase of wages for a period of two years, and that any employe who did sign this agreement and who dared to participate in such a movement would be guilty of a breach of the contract and subjected to discipline and would also be subjected to a suit for damages which could be brought against him by the company. This is not our construction of the agreement, but one which has even been placed upon it by Mr. Quackenbush, attorney for the company, as appears from the stenographic record of the conference of Aug. 31.

A mass meeting was called, the statement says, and 3,000 men demanded that the company return these contracts, but the company refused, telling the men to seek relief in court procedure. Then the statement says:

We have no desire to inconvenience the traveling public, and the statements that have been made by Mr. Shonts are not in accord with the facts. We offered at this morning's conference to arbitrate the question as to the fairness or unfairness of this contract of employment and also the methods that are being used in forcing the men to sign the same. To this the company would not agree and we offered to submit the whole matter to the Public Service Commission and the company also refused that, claiming that the Public Service Commission had nothing whatever to do with this matter. We did everything in our power to adjust the matter amicably, asking them to help us do it, but they refused, and stated that we have to take each individual case (even if they ran into the thousands) into court, and it made no difference to them how many years it took before these matters were settled in court.

Next come charges that men who refused to sign the employment contract have been locked out, that strikebreakers have been put among the men, and that the company has done all in its power to force a strike and so rob the employes of the good-will of the public. The statement goes on:

Let it be understood that if the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and its policies and their intentions are to exterminate the organization of the men of the Interborough lines—their officials being the same as upon the lines of the New York Railways Company—the men of the systems other than the Interoborough controlled by these officials should not be blamed if they are forced to take steps to protect themselves against what will undoubtedly occur to them in the immediate future

(Signed.) W. B. FITZGERALD.

Mr. Fitzgerald refused to add anything to the statement.

"That covers the position of the union completely," he said.

MAYOR WILL NOT HURRY HOME

Not Worried About the Strike, He Will Motor to New York.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Mayor Mitchel announced this afternoon at Beekmantown, six miles from here, where he is in camp with the Plattsburg training brigade, that he would not return immediately to New York notwithstanding the differences between the Interborough officials and the employes. The Mayor takes the position that he is in the service of the Government, and that it is his duty to continue a member of the camp until his regiment disbands tomorrow morning.

Furthermore, Mayor Mitchel said, he had arranged to return to New York by motor, leaving tomorrow afternoon, and he would not change his plans. The threatened nation-wide railroad strike made him decide to take the automobile trip, and Mrs. Mitchel arrived at the Hotel Champlain, at Bluff Point, near here, this afternoon to accompany him home.

Upon his arrival today the Mayor received a message to communicate with the City Hall, and he talked on the telephone with his secretary, Theodore Rousseau. After his conversation with Mr. Rousseau he said he would not change his plan to motor home.

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 5.—William J. Bryan completed his season's work on the Chautauqua platform today and left this evening for a two weeks' vacation after which he will devote his time to the campaign under the direction of the Democratic National Committee.

SUES DALY FOR $500,000.

Son-in-Law Says Central Vice President Alienated Wife's Love.

The complaint in a $500,000 alienation suit against Charles F. Daly, Vice President of the New York Central Railroad, was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by his son-in-law, Willard R. Barnett, formerly an Assistant General Passenger Agent for the New York Central. He alleges that Mr. Daly induced his daughter, Charline Daly Barnett, to leave the plaintiff's home, at 2,030 Broadway, on March 12 last and go to the defendant's home, at the Biltmore Hotel.

Mr. Daly has been directed to appear before Supreme Court Justice Platt in Westchester County today, with his daughter, in an effort by Barnett to get a court order permitting him to see his wife.

The summons in a second suit by Barnett against Mr. Daly and the latter's secretary, Herman E. Willer, for conspiracy, was also filed, but the amount to be asked for in this suit has not been determined.

Mr. Daly and his daughter have been living recently at the Gramatan Inn, in Westchester County, but the papers were served on him at Lake Placid.

The New Novel by the Author of "The Salamander"

THE WOMAN GIVES BY OWEN JOHNSON

HERE is a big story that Owen Johnson has written, a story of real throbbing life in the heart of New York, with a heroine so resolute that she gives herself unselfishly to redeem a talented man. Mr. Johnson transports you to a veritable Bohemia where youth and joy reign, and in those surroundings Inga Sonderson gives, and gives freely, to regenerate a fellow artist. "The Woman Gives" is unquestionably Mr. Johnson's most mature and enduring novel.

7 KILLED BY AUTOS; 16 OTHERS INJURED

THREE AVIATORS IN CRASH

Two Women Meet Death in Newark Streets—Boy of 4 Crushed at Rockaway.

Seven persons were killed and sixteen injured in automobile accidents in New York and vicinity yesterday. In several cases the chauffeurs were arrested.

While returning in the darkness to Newark from an outing an automobile containing four men overturned near Montclair. Bernard Limpert, 68 years old, of 768 Mount Prospect Avenue, Newark, died of his injuries. Albert Castle and Isadore Feitlinger, both of Newark, were injured. The former received a broken leg and the latter a broken nose and many lacerations.

Henry Campbell, 70 years old, was killed by an automobile in North Caldwell, on Monday night. Frank Williams, the chauffeur, had as his passenger Frederick J. Fischer of Brooklyn, the owner of the car. The driver saw the man ahead, and turned to avoid hitting him. The lamp of the car struck Campbell and crushed his skull, killing him.

An automobile overturned while making a curve in the road near the Writtenors Hotel in Midvale, N. J. Thomas Matthews, 36 years old, of Midland Park, N. J., was killed. Richard Chapman, of the same place, was perhaps fatally injured. The others injured were Jacob Amos, Albert G. Oest, William Mollinero, and Frank Balleto. They were returning from Greenwood Lake.

Four men were injured early yesterday morning when the car in which they were driving overturned at the intersection of the Old Westbury and Manhasset Roads, near Manhasset, L. I. Three of the injured are connected with the Transatlantic School of Aviation in Port Washington. They are in the Nassau Hospital. Howard Ingalls, said to be the son of a wealthy Chicago man, has a fractured leg and contusions; William Sullivan, a pilot, of Hammondsport, N. Y., and Julian Goodrich of the same place were also injured. The car skidded at a sharp turn in the road.

Two women were killed by automobiles in Newark. Mrs. Pauline Berrien of 266 Fifteenth Street was struck at Springfield and Belmont Avenues. The body of the other woman lies unclaimed in the morgue. She was well dressed. She was killed at the Belleville Avenue and Nursery Street crossing.

William L. Scheuring of Brooklyn and Miss Margaret Ewing of Spottswood were seriously injured when they were run down by an automobile at Spotswood, N. J. The car sped on, leaving both unconscious in the road. The police arrested Irving Kletzing and William Davison of Spotswood, and they were held in $3,000 bail each on charges of atrocious assault and battery.

The driver of an auto delivery truck surrendered to the New Brunswick, N. J., police yesterday and said that he had just knocked down and killed Jens Neilson, 62 years old, at Ford's Corner. There were no witnesses to the accident. Hansen said that Neilson staggered along the road and stepped directly in front of the car. Hansen was held in $3,000 bail.

While running across the street in front of his home, at 21 Walter Court, Rockaway Beach, in the afternoon, Nathan Balberg, 4 years old, was struck by an automobile and died before an ambulance reached him. The owner and driver of the car, Samuel Larsen of 115 Boulevard, was exonerated by the police. He said the child ran directly in front of his machine.

71ST BREAKS CAMP HOMEWARD BOUND

Special to The New York Times.

McALLEN, Texas, Sept. 5.—The Seventy-first Regiment left its camp at 8 o'clock tonight and marched to the railroad to entrain for Camp Whitman. It is expected that both sections of the train bearing the regiment and officers, together with Brig. Gen. George R. Dyer and his staff, will leave here early tomorrow morning.

Although it was said at headquarters yesterday that the Fourteenth Regiment would be the first to leave, a change in the orders was made today following an increase in the number of cases of paratyphoid in the Brooklyn organization. The Seventy-first was directed to break camp at once, and tonight what was considered the best-looking infantry camp in the division was again bare desert, marked only by abandoned shacks and the embers of campfires.

The men of the Seventy-first were singing. It was said at headquarters today that staff officers did not know when the Third and Fourteenth Regiments would leave.

The supply company left behind to guard the wagons and other equipment of the Seventy-first is to be commanded by Major J. M. Hutchinson, who is also to supervise all construction work in the division camps.

chine under Japanese officers. Japanese military inspectors in Chinese schools and colleges would mean a start on this policy.

Well informed Chinese sources see nothing for China but submission, believing any delay is apt to mean the occupation of the territory by Japanese armed forcees. China's condition is desperate, and her army equipped with none of the transportation devices or heavy guns necessary for a modern campaign.

Moreover, the present quarrel is very close to Japan's forces along the Manchurian Railroad, and considerably removed from China's base. There is no expectation here that China can do aught but enter a general protest and seek to ameliorate the demands as much as possible.

Japan's "Monroe Doctrine."

No foreign country, save possibly the United States, is expected to offer objection to Japan's course, because of conditions abroad, and some diplomats here believe Japan has seized this time to put in force her "Monroe Doctrine" for China.

Finance presents the gravest difficulty at present. Europe cannot lend money and American bankers have not been satisfied with the terms and the lack of Government support. The proposed $30,000,000 Japanese loan, almost completed, was thought by the Japanese Embassy here today to have been held up indefinitely because of the strained relations.

The seriousness of the situation was heightened today with reports of another conflict between Chinese and Japanese troops at Chaoyangpo. Private advices from Peking assert that the Japanese troops attacked the Chinese garrison there when the latter was pursuing bandits. The Japanese contention is that the Japanese troops were seeking to mediate between the Chinese troops and Mongolian brigands when the Chinese attacked.

Denounced by Chinese Press.

PEKING, Sept. 5.—The Chinese press strongly denounces the Japanese demands made in China in connection with the conflict between Chinese and Japanese troops at Cheng-Chiatun, Mongolia, on Aug. 13, which resulted in the killing or wounding of many on both sides. The demands call for the dismissal of the Chinese officers in command of the troops, the withdrawal of Chinese troops from the district, indemnification of the families of the Japanese killed, and police rights for Japan in inner Mongolia. The Peking Gazette says:

"The demands of Baron Hayashi (Japanese Minister to China) upon China respecting the Cheng-Chiatun incident have created profound disappointment. At the moment China was beginning to credit the Japanese with good will, Tokio took a step which is unintelligible except on the theory of continuity of the Japanese policy as applied against Yuan Shi-kai. That policy is aggressive, if not predatory. China, alone and single-handed, cannot withstand its pressure."

The Gazette asserts that the demands threaten China's sovereignty, and urges the appointment of an investigating commission composed of representatives of the United States, Great Britain, France, and Russia.

Japan Assures America.

TOKIO, Sept. 5.—Japan has officially assured the United States that the alliance recently made by Russia and Japan will not affect the status quo in the Far East.

E. H. GARY, IN TOKIO, FLOUTS JINGOISM

Assures Dinner Hosts That Americans Would Oppose a Conflict With Japan.

TOKIO, Sept. 5.—Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, was the guest of honor at a dinner here tonight which was attended by men high in political life and business. In his address Mr. Gary spoke of the relations between Japan and the United States, which he declared were amicable and should remain so.

In opening his address Mr. Gary referred to statements which he said were occasionally uttered or published in the United States, and perhaps in Japan, with regard to the possibility of a serious conflict between the two countries at some time in the future. He declared emphatically that the business men in the United States did not anticipate any trouble between the United States and Japan.

"They would stubbornly oppose any suggestion of a conflict with all the force and influence at their command," said Mr. Gary. "This undoubtedly is the pervading and controlling sentiment of citizens generally throughout the United States of America."

The speaker said the absence of ground for serious disagreements between the United States and Japan was due to the desire of the United States to retain the friendship and co-operation of Japan in world development and the realization of Americans that war generally defeats the victor, bringing impoverishment and devastation. The strongest economic reasons also existed for no change in the amicable relationship of the two countries. The American people did not look with jealous eyes on the strength and rapid growth of Japan, but, on the contrary, would applaud her successes, and if they could render substantial aid it would not be withheld.

Mr. Gary insisted that every question arising between the two countries could be finally settled if submitted to representative bodies of citizens of Japan and the United States, whose will their respective governments would be bound to respect. He urged business men to unite to combat the influence of demagogues and others who are actuated by selfish designs.

"Japan and America," he concluded, "have the desire and the brain to work together while honorably and fairly pursuing separate lines of activity."

The address plainly impressed Mr. Gary's auditors, who voiced their approval of it by frequent applause and later by personal congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary are being made the recipients of unusual honors during their tour of the Empire. They have been officially greeted in every city by Governors and Mayors and have had imposing receptions in Tokio, in addition to a series of luncheons and dinners.

LA FOLLETTE WINS IN PRIMARY CONTEST

Returns Indicate His Renomination by About 2,000 Majority Over M. G. Jeffris.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 5.—United States Senator Robert M. La Follette has survived the onslaught made upon him by the conservative State administration, and has been renominated by about 2,000 over M. G. Jeffris, the strongest candidate the conservatives could find to place against him except Governor Philipp, who refused to run for the Senate until he had done what he considered his work of cleaning up the State administration.

Governor Philipp's victory was certain when the first returns were seen. Two years ago he received 43,000 out of 124,000 votes cast for five Republican primary candidates. Today's figures show he obtained a majority over the two Progressive opponents.

UNTERMYER HITS AT ROADS.

Denounces Officials in Maine Speech for Their Attitude Toward Labor.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGVALE, Me., Sept. 5.—Samuel Untermyer of New York City, in a speech here tonight, upheld the constitutionality of the newly enacted eight-hour law as applied to interstate railroads, paid high praise to President Wilson for bringing about the enactment of that law, and denounced officials of the railroads for their attitude toward labor organizations and the stockholders of the roads.

"The heads of the railroads always lack vision in their contact with progressive environments," said Mr. Untermyer. "They bitterly opposed the organization of the Interstate Commerce Commission and have blindly and consistently resisted compulsory safety appliances, and, in fact, every reformatory movement that has proved of benefit to them.

"But whether the President was right or wrong, the fact remained that the recognition of the principle that was demanded was necessary to avert a catastrophe for which the public was not to blame and for which it would have to suffer, and so he promptly and fearlessly proceeded to protect the public against the paralysis of business and other disastrous consequences of the impending struggle

"The real railroad control of the country is in the hands of fewer than a dozen men, who are so closely banded together by a common interest that they constitute a virtual unit in action. We have just had an object lesson of the extent of that unity. All the roads acted virtually as one man."

Miss Gunkel to Wed C. R. Roesch.

DANISH ISLES TREATY PLACED BEFORE SENATE

Foreign Relations Committee Reports in Favor of Purchase—Danes United on It.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—A report from the Foreign Relations Committee recommending ratification of the treaty with Denmark for purchase of the Danish West Indies for $25,000,000 was submitted to the Senate late today in executive session. Senator Stone, Chairman of the committee, announced that he would call the treaty up tomorrow and move its ratification.

Probability of the treaty being ratified at this session of Congress, however, is regarded as remote. Senator Stone said no effort would be made to delay adjournment if any opposition developed. Senator Borah, for one, is opposed to the purchase, and any opposition to immediate ratification will serve to send the treaty over until the next session.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 5.—Just before the third reading of the Government's bill to put the new fundamental law into force should have taken place in the Folkething today, the Conservative Party delivered to the Premier its proposal to reopen the negotiations about the formation of a coalition Cabinet. The Premier at once communicated the letter to the House, suggesting to the Speaker to discontinue the meeting. This was done.

The opposition finds itself the target of public opinion, and in proposing to accept the personal composition of the coalition Government as proposed by the present Cabinet also will agree to the Cabinet's demand that a plan for the settlement of the sale of the Danish West Indies be accepted.

While nobody in Denmark now opposes the sale of the islands, the compromise suggested is in reality a vote of confidence for the present Cabinet, and more especially for the Foreign Minister and the Financial Minister, who have been chiefly concerned in the sale question. It is not altogether unlikely that the foreign minister may be the Premier in the new Cabinet, but at all events all parties agree that he must at least retain his present office, which he has administered in time of great difficulties with the skill and ability of a statesman.

The Railroad Correspondence of this country is largely dictated to The Dictaphone

In no other industry is system developed to such a degree of efficiency as in American railroads. The Dictaphone plays an important and fast increasing part in this system.

"They have more than paid for themselves wherever used." (This from the Frisco Lines.)
"Our Work has been turned out much more economically by the use of Dictaphones." (This from the Rock Island.)
"With the installation of The Dictaphone, especially in a big office like this, ends the stenographic trouble." (This from the Missouri Pacific.)
"Our stenographers were writing all the way from 50 to 65 letters per day. Now our output is from 100 to 125 per day. Every investigator makes the statement that he would not be without it." (This from the Southern Pacific Lines in Oregon.)
"We are using 42 dictation machines and 18 transcribers with satisfactory results." (This from the Southern Pacific System.)
"Our stenographers are turning out practically double the work that they did under the old method." (This from the Boston and Maine.)

And so on all through our letter files, railroad letters and every other kind of Big-Business letters—for the full value of The Dictaphone is for every office where time-saving is important; wherever system is established, wherever a typewriter is employed, The Dictaphone is indispensable.

STILL FIND NO CLUES IN THE PARK MURDER

TRAGEDY NOT RE-ENACTED

Ridiculed by Coroner and District Attorney, Detectives Give Up Rehearsal of Killing.

The murder of Dwight P. Dilworth, lawyer, of Montclair, N. J., on the unfrequented Golf Links Road in Van Cortlandt Park Sunday night, remains as much of a mystery to the police, aside from certain theories they advanced yesterday, as it was when they were called to the place of the shooting by Miss Mary McNiff of 102 West Seventy-fifth Street, who was motoring with the lawyer at the time of the tragedy.

The meagre descriptions of two stockily built highwaymen, who, Miss McNiff said, attempted to hold up her companion and who killed him when he surprised them by vigorous resistance, in a general way appeared to fit highwaymen who have been reported as having held up couples strolling in the lonely by-way in Van Cortlandt Park, not far from Mosholu Parkway.

The plan to have a re-enactment of the tragedy, with Miss McNiff as the principal actor, showing the police how the attack was carried out, was abandoned by the police after they had concluded there was little tangible to be gained in that way.

The proposal to stage such a review of the crime was openly ridiculed by Coroner William J. Flynn and Assistant District Attorney William Quigley of the Bronx. They thought it would look more like a motion-picture rehearsal than a serious effort to procure light on the shooting. The Assistant District Attorney said he was convinced that Miss McNiff had already given such facts as she could recall, and his office was proceeding on the assumption that her version of the tragedy was correct.

At the office of Inspector Cray it was said he also did not consider it important to have Miss McNiff carried back over the scene of her harrowing experience.

Meanwhile the young woman apparently had regained her composure. She was at her office at 225 Fifth Avenue.

"While I have not been requested by the police to rehearse the shooting of Mr. Dilworth," she said, "I still hold myself in readiness to do as directed. I will gladly co-operate with the police in their efforts to solve the murder."

Miss McNiff said she had recuperated from the shock of her experience after having spent a day and night of quiet. According to the police, she spent Monday afternoon and evening at a Long Island seashore resort.

Lieutenant Michael J. Murphy, who is temporarily in charge of the Fifth Branch Detective Bureau in the Bronx during the vacation of Captain Andrew J. Wines, said last night more than a dozen of his men were at work on the case, but he said he was not at liberty to discuss what they were doing.

The police were strongly inclined to the theory that Dilworth was a victim of an attempt originally to blackmail him. If such was the case, the men who attempted to take money from him became frightened when Dilworth offered resistance and made the quickest and surest escape by shooting him.

In the forenoon Lieutenant Murphy went to Police Headquarters where he had a long conference with Inspector Cray. It was after this conference that the plans to rehearse the tragedy were said to be considered unnecessary.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 5.—Funeral services over the body of Dwight P. Dilworth, who was murdered by highwaymen in New York on Sunday night, were held this evening in the undertaking parlors of Arthur K. Brown, 446 Bloomfield Avenue, after which the body was sent to Kansas City, Mo., where it will be taken in charge by his wife. The services were conducted by officers of the Montclair Lodge of Masons, of which Mr. Dilworth was a member.

Army Y. M. H. A. on Border.

The Army and Navy Department of the Council of Young Men's Hebrew and kindred associations announced last night that it had established headquarters and opened a large building at Douglas, Ariz., for the benefit of the soldiers there. Falk Younger, Field Secretary, is in charge. At El Paso, Texas, Rabbi Martin Zielonka has opened another headquarters for the soldiers, and still another large headquarters has been opened at San Antonio by the local community there, with Rabbi Aaron Eiseman in charge. Reading and writing rooms, games, and shower baths have been provided, and religious services have been arranged for. A request has been made for funds to continue the work. Money may be sent to S. S. Rosenstamm, Chairman, at 61 Broadway.

ART PRIZES WON HERE.

Society for Electrical Development Announces Awards of $2,200.

Three New York artists and one Jersey City art student won four of the nine national prizes valued at $2,200 awarded yesterday by the Society for Electrical Development in the country-wide competition, which closed last month. The local winners are: John A. Bazant, 991 Jackson Avenue, Bronx; Vincent Aderente, 145 West Fifty-fifth Street, Manhattan; Armand Moreda, 233 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn, and Edward Staloff, 294 Jackson Avenue, Jersey City, N. J.

A total of 781 electrical designs were entered in the contest, including 214 posters, which were the works of high school students, 194 done by students of art schools, and the remainder by professional artists. New York's high school students entered 82 designs in the contest, the largest entries being Washington Irving High School with 22, Wadleigh High School with 11, Commercial High School of Brooklyn with 10, and De Witt Clinton High Schol with 9.

The complete list of the prize winners follows: $1,000, Harold von Schmidt, 1,501 Larkin Street, San Francisco, Cal.; $500, John A. Bazant, 991 Jackson Avenue, Bronx; $300, Vincent Aderente, 145 West Fifty-fifth Street, New York; $200, Edward Staloff, 294 Jackson Avenue, Jersey City; $100, Harold H. Kolb, 72 Fremont Street, Somerville, Mass.; $50, William E. McKee, Jr., 1,250 Formosa Avenue, Hollywood, Cal.; $25, Armand Moreda, 233 Putnam Avenue, Brooklyn; $15, Ruth M. Jameson, 342 Fourteenth Street, Buffalo, N. Y., and $10, Edna E. Crowley, 1,445 Washburne Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Among the judges of the contest were John Quincy Adams, Secretary Art Commission of the City of New York; Dr. James P. Haney, Director of Art in New York High Schools, and Herbert S. Houston, President Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. The purpose of the contest was to obtain an emblem for the country-wide electrical celebration this Fall, Dec. 2 to 9, which will be known as America's Electrical Week.

SUIT AGAINST PARKHURST.

Action on Note for $2,500 Aftermath of Candy Co. Failure.

A suit against the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst on a promissory note for $2,500, given in connection with the clergyman's investments in the defunct American Candy Manufacturing Company, of which he was Vice President and Acting President at the time of its collapse, was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday. The plaintiff is Edward Herrmann, a New York lawyer, who sues on an assigned claim of John F. B. Atkin, a lawyer of Bordentown, N. J., who was active in the affairs of the company last year. The complaint alleges that the note was payable on demand, and was given by Dr. Parkhurst to Atkin on Dec. 31 last.

Dr. Parkhurst has testified that he was induced to sell first-class securities to raise funds to invest $83,000 in the concern that failed later. The papers in the suit against the clergyman were served on him at Lake Placid last Friday.

SHACKLETON THANKS CHILE.

Sends Appreciation of Aid in Rescuing His Comrades.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 5.—Lieutenant Sir Ernest Shackleton, who arrived at Punta Arenas, Chile, on Sunday with the members of his antarctic expedition who were marooned on Elephant Island, has sent a telegram to the Chilean Admiralty, thanking it for having provided the Chilean steamship Yelcho for the relief expedition.

The Admiralty responded that the Chilean people were happy to have been able to assist in the rescue of the explorers.

Sues Son's Widow's Surety.

Isaac Jacobs, as administrator of the estate of his son, Henry Jacobs, a Harlem gambler who was killed by a rival six years ago, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday to recover $8,641 from the Title Guaranty and Surety Company, which bonded the decedent's widow, Annie Jacobs, as administratrix of his estate, for $13,000. The complaint says that letters of administration to Mrs. Jacobs were revoked on Sept. 23, 1912, and she was directed to account for $6,294 in cash, $1,217 in jewelry, and pay costs aggregating $1,130, but she has paid nothing.

First Accounting of Goodwin Estate.

The first accounting by the executors under the will of James J. Goodwin, formerly a partner in J. P. Morgan & Co., who died in Hartford, Conn., on June 23, 1915, was filed yesterday. The accounting says the total amount received by the executors was $7,277,021. The appraisal of the personal estate fixed the value at $6,510,145. The executors have distributed $970,625, which includes the following payments to the heirs: Mrs. Josephine L. Goodwin, widow, $511,992; Walter L. Goodwin, son, $176,000; James L. Goodwin, son, and Philip L. Goodwin, son, $51,000 each.

VICE SQUAD IN RAID NEAR CARNEGIE HALL

BOTH HELD IN $10,000 BAIL

So-Called "Social Climbers" Said to Have Been Blackmailed in Seventh Avenue House.

Acting on information given by a witness in Narragansett Pier and a well-to-do New York business man, who said that he had been victimised, Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith, in charge of District Attorney Swann's vice investigation, early yesterday morning, accompanied by Detectives McGlynn and Duffy, raided a house on Seventh Avenue, near Carnegie Hall. While only two persons were arrested, Mr. Smith said he was more than satisfied with the result.

The prisoners were Mrs. Georgia Thym, a gray-haired woman, and Rudolfo Guglielmi, a cabaret dancer, who said that he was a recent dancing partner of a woman well known on Broadway. Both were arraigned before Judge Rosalsky in the Court of General Sessions and held in $10,000 bail each as material witnesses. They were locked up in the House of Detention.

When taken to the District Attorney's office, Guglielmi sought permission to telephone to a "friend." The prisoner used the telephone and called up a person whom he said was Frank Lord, Second Deputy Police Commissioner. According to the District Attorney he said over the phone:

"I'm in trouble, Frank. I wish you would come down here and help me."

Mr. Smith said that in a preliminary examination Guglielmi furnished evidence which would be used against a member of the Police Department now under indictment. For many years Mrs. Thym's place has been the scene of many vicious parties, Mr. Smith asserted, and not once have the police interfered. He added that he had received information from a reliable source that many persons of means, principally "social climbers," had been blackmailed after indiscreet visits to this house.

Detectives from the District Attorney's office are investigating the disappearance of three young women who are known to be friends of a Turk employed by an uptown hotel as steward. This man, who is polished in manner, is said to be affiliated with members of the underworld in the white slave traffic. Mr. Smith intimated that he would be arrested today.

Detectives McClune, Van Leer, and Hughes, who were sent to Philadelphia on a search for fugitive witnesses, returned and reported that a number of men and women promised to come to New York and aid in the investigation, if they could be assured protection. All of them admitted, according to the detectives, that they feared physical violence from the underworld and certain members of the police force.

Nathan Patinsky, or London, who was indicted with David Parish, known as Dave Siberia, on a charge of white slavery, sent word to the District Attorney yesterday that he was willing to confess the part he played in the trade on the east side. Patinsky, who had only been in this country four months when arrested, has already admitted that he was the "business agent" of Siberia, spending his time in the cafes and coffee houses of the east side, where men were apt to congregate in large numbers. Assistant District Attorney Smith will hear the man's story today.

OFF TO SUFFRAGE MEETING.

Hundreds of Women Go to Atlantic City for National Convention.

Hundreds of suffragists left New York yesterday afternoon for Atlantic City for the opening session of the big National Suffrage Convention which will take place in St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church at 9:30 o'clock this morning. The officers of the national association and many of the leading women workers left New York on Saturday to be on the ground and see that things were ready for what was described as a meeting that would mark an epoch in the work for the cause.

The headquarters of the leaders will be the Hotel Marlborough-Blenheim. Miss Mary Garrett Hay has been in charge of the hotel end of the work, and most of the delegates had reservations made for them some weeks ago. Mayor Harry Bacharach of Atlantic City will welcome the women this morning, and the Committees on Program, Local Arrangements, Credentials, and Membership and the officers will submit reports. The afternoon session will be the first important one of the convention. There will be a three-cornered debate on the question: "Shall the national association work only for State legislation, shall it work only for Federal legislation, or shall it continue its present policy of working for both State and national legislation?"

With the refusal of three of the most important national officers to accept re-election and with several vital questions to be discussed, the convention promises to be an exciting one. It will close Saturday.

BRITISH ARMS PLANTS PLANNING TO COMBINE

Hope to Form $150,000,000 Combination and Pool Their Issues in Interest of Future Trade.

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 6.—Negotiations have been proceeding for some months to bring about a working agreement between most of the principal arms and ammunition companies and firms in the kingdom, according to The Daily Mail, which adds:

"The scheme involves an aggregate capitalization of £30,000,000. It is not proposed that any great business shall sacrifice their individual entity, but that each shall share the fortunes of all. The arrangement will place the British arms and ammunition industry in a powerful position to compete in the struggle for the world trade after the war."

According to The Times, Mr. Balfour's present trip to the shipbuilding centres marks the inception of a new policy of the more direct and active participation of the Admiralty in the development of British shipbuilding resources and their utilization to the fullest capacity. This, it says, applies to merchant shipping as well as naval, and may be regarded as another step in Great Britain's preparations for the post-war period.

WEBB BILL WITHDRAWN.

Opponents Insisted on Debating Foreign Trade Measure at Length.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The Webb bill, designed to permit American exporters to combine to compete with European trade combinations, was put to sleep in the Senate tonight for the rest of the present session of Congress. Senator Lewis of Illinois, in behalf of the Committee on Interstate Commerce, withdrew the measure, stating that it could not be passed without prolonging the legislative session.

President Wilson this afternoon called Senator Simmons of North Carolina on the telephone and asked him to try to have the Webb bill attached to the General Revenue bill as an amendment. Senator Simmons made a canvass of those opposed to the bill.

In addition to Senator La Follette, those opposed to the measure were Senator Reed, Democrat, and Senators Cummins and Gallinger, Republicans. Senator La Follette contended that the bill would vitiate the Clayton anti-trust law, and Senator Reed held that the proposed combinations might become monopolies through which alone American goods could be sold in Europe.

NAJIB S. MALOOF IS KILLED.

Special to The New York Times.

TUXEDO, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Najib S. Maloof, a lace importer at 31 Rector Street, New York, died in the Tuxedo Hospital today an hour after he was injured in an automobile accident on the outskirts of Tuxedo Park.

With three companions, Mr. Maloof was on his way from his Summer home in Milford, Penn. In attempting to avoid striking another car, the automobile in which he was riding went into a fence, tearing up five posts and turning around. Mr. Maloof was thrown out, striking on his head. A. Faydal of Brooklyn, who was driving the car; Dr. Muselman of Chicago, and L. Tweel of Brooklyn sustained minor injuries.

Mr. Maloof, who lived at 4,616 Sixth Avenue, Brooklyn, was President of the Syrian Relief Association. His body was taken to the Brooklyn home tonight.

WOMAN SUES JONES TWICE.

Says Lawyer Failed to Marry Her and Has $7,000 of Her Money.

Mrs. Ada E. Cantwell, a divorcée, of 620 West 116th Street, filed one suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against Arthur H. Jones, a Chicago lawyer, to recover $50,000 for breach of promise of marriage, and another for $7,000, which she alleges she intrusted to Jones to invest for her. Jones denies that he ever promised to marry Mrs. Cantwell, but admits he received a certain sum of money to pay debts she had incurred, and says he has receipts from her for every cent he handled.

HUGHES EMPHASIZES STRIKE CRISIS ISSUE

Renews Attack on Wilson in Kentucky Address, Saying That He Gave In to Force.

FIRST EULOGIZES LINCOLN

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 5.—Charles E. Hughes made it evident today that it was his intention to make the passage of the Adamson bill, granting an eight-hour day to the railroad brotherhoods, one of the big issues of his campaign. He handled the topic without gloves in his address here before an audience of 8,000 persons in the City Auditorium, and, while more than half of his auditors were Democrats, he was cordially applauded.

Mr. Hughes charged that President Wilson and Congress by bending the knee to organized labor and forfeiting the principle of arbitration had endangered the stability of "the priceless institutions of this land which distinguish us as a free country." By submission to the rule of force, as opposed to the rule of reason, in the recent emergency, he asserted, the Administration had "gone very far toward that day when we shall have any action under pressure, instead of a consideration of the facts."

Kentucky is cordial to President Wilson, and the feeling that he was in the enemy's country stirred Mr. Hughes to much the same kind of fighting spirit which animated his address of last night in Nashville. He attacked the President's address of acceptance, saying that it gave the impression that the Democrats believed that the world began on March 4, 1913, when President Wilson went into office. He cited progressive legislation passed by Republican Administrations and ridiculed Mr. Wilson's contention that "humanitarian aspirations" had guided his course toward Mexico.

In closing his address Mr. Hughes reiterated his independence of any control other than his wish to serve the American people. This came as an added warning to the bosses, on whom he served notice of his complete independence when he said that he frequently "displeased my Republican friends of New York" and knew what independence meant. Mr. Hughes summed up progressive measures he favored, adding: "I propose that what I say now shall be carried out in deeds, for I am not talking for effect."

Takes Text from Lincoln.

Mr. Hughes led up to his attack upon the Adamson bill by a eulogy of Abraham Lincoln, who was born in Kentucky. He said:

"What was it, perhaps more than anything else, that distinguished him and has given him his eminence? It was that he incarnated the spirit of the plain people of this land. Endowed with extraordinary ability, having a remarkable clarity of judgment, wise in policy, farsighted in statesmanlike vision, he was the interpreter of the heart and the thought of the plain people of America. No American feels a stranger to him because of his greatness. He is brother to us all. He is kin to the humblest because he interpreted the spirit of the plain people.

"What is that spirit? It is the spirit of reasonableness; it is the spirit of fairness; it is the spirit of generous thought and judgment; it is the spirit which demands the rule of calmness and reason and repudiates the demands of oppression, of tyranny, and of force.

"We have a new spirit abroad in these recent days in America. It is the spirit that demands legislation in advance for investigation. It is the spirit that demands executive action and Congressional action in advance of an examination of the facts upon which action should be based. It is the spirit that says, 'Legislate now and investigate afterwards.' It is the spirit of force. It is not American.

"To the bottom of my soul I desire fair dealing in this country between man and man. There is no one more anxious than I that there shall be equity in connection with all our relations I want to see our human resources conserved by wise and intelligent action. I want to see every particle of class antagonism vanished in the presence of the application of just principles. I want to see our men knit together in a comomn fellowship. I want labor to have safe means of work, sanitary conditions of work, wholesome opportunities for recreation, reasonable hours for work, fair wages, provision for old age. I want what is reasonable for labor.

Reason the Way, Not Force.

"There is one thing that underlies all, and that is that in our efforts to secure what is just we keep the priceless institutions of this land which distinguish us as a free country and separate us from all the autocracies of the world. It may be very important that here or there there shall be a change in the wage scale. I know not. It is a matter for careful examination. I should be the first to recognize any demand that is just. There is something that precedes any demand, however, and that is the willingness to abide by the results of reason. It is the demand that when we do anything in this country we should understand the way we travel, where we put our foot down, and never surrender to any force of any kind.

"It is, as the future will unfold, our priceless heritage that we have a country where intelligence reigns, where there are many opportunities of education, where we are trying to stamp out every abuse working against our institutions. We prize the rule of informed public opinion. We submit ourselves, with respect to our greatest national concerns, to the arbitrament of the public judgment every four years. We submit our arguments, tell what we think and desire to be done; then we go to the polls and express our convictions, and then every American citizen, whether he is victorious or defeated, goes home satisfied, and reason rules. But the day must never come—and I regret to say we have gone very far toward that day—when we shall have any action under pressure, instead of on a consideration of the facts."

Asserting that the Democratic Party would not be saved by the European war, he said:

"I am proud of the achievements of the Republican Party. Sometimes, when we read distinguished utterances on the other side, it seems as if it was thought that the world began on March 4, 1913. Now, considerable had happened before that eventful date, considerable in the way of progressive legislation. We had the Interstate Commerce Act, the Safety Appliance Act, the Hours of Service Act, the Federal Employers Liability Act, the Meat Inspection Act, the Pure Food and Drugs Act, the Hepburn amendment controlling rates under the Interstate Commerce Act, and there was the amendment of 1910 to the Interstate Commerce Act—a long series of what might be called progressive legislation of a very important character."

"I am very serious because that sort of thing cannot be made good by the protestation of humanitarian aspirations. If we are to cherish humanitarian sentiments, very good, but let us be correct in our diplomacy or we will get into serious trouble and forfeit the opportunities by which we can make our sentiments effective. We must be correct internationally. We must win the respect of nations and enjoy our own self-respect."

Sums Up His Policies.

Here is the summation by Mr. Hughes of the policies for which he stands:

"I have not time to elaborate many things I would like to say, but I will try to condense in a few words what I stand for; and you may understand this that if I am elected to this great office I propose that what I say now shall be carried out in deeds, for I am not talking for effect. I had not wanted to take the title of this office and leave the congenial work in which I was engaged. I appreciated the office. I dreaded the responsibility, but I am in this with zeal and enthusiasm and only because there is opportunity, if the American people desire it, to put all the power I possess into having efficient government for the United States.

"I propose that we shall have the principle of the merit system recognized and enforced. I propose that we shall make a sincere effort to cut out waste and extravagance. I propose that we shall improve our financial system so that we shall have a proper executive budget. I propose that we shall make merit and competence the standards of appointments. I propose that wherever we send a diplomat he shall be a man received, not only with the formal courtesy due any representative of ours, but with the special courtesy due to any eminent man with a reputation for special skill obtained in the field of work.

"I propose that this nation in international intercourse shall try to remove all sources of trouble; that we shall take our part in developing a world court and council of conciliation and promote conferences for making legislative rules and expanding international laws. I propose that we shall endeavor to preserve the world's peace while these councils of conciliation are being resorted to. I propose that we shall have upbuilding policies for the United States, cutting out all abuses and advancing every honorable American achievement."

The arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Hughes in Lexington was a big event. There were crowds in the hotel and on the streets, people having gathered from miles around. The Auditorium was filled early. Hundreds were unable to gain admission and Mr. Hughes addressed an overflow meeting. The nominee was in fine trim. He drove home his arguments against the Wilson policies with vigorous gestures and raised voice. The crowd seemed to like his style of oratory.

The Republicans say they feel there is a chance to carry the State, but they are not particularly optimistic. Mr. Hughes and the leaders were cheered by the news that the Progressives held a meeting at the Phoenix Hotel this morning, presided over by National Committeeman Leslie Combs, and indorsed the Republican nominee.

President Wilson carried the State by 1,307 majority over Taft and Roosevelt in 1912. Governor Stanley, Democrat, won by a plurality of 458 two years ago.

Mr. Hughes left at 6:20 P. M. for Cincinnati and the East.

Will Visit Plattsburg Camp.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 5.—Charles E. Hughes reached Louisville at 8 A. M. today en route to Lexington, and held a brief conference on his private car with A. T. Hert, Western representative of the Republican National Committee. A brief rear-platform address tentatively on the program was abandoned.

It was announced that Mr. Hughes would visit the training camp at Plattsburg on Sept. 12 instead of going to New York City then, and that he would return to New York on Sept. 13.

Mr. Hughes left here at 8:30 o'clock. A brass band and a large delegation of Republicans accompanied him to Lexington.

MINIMIZES HUGHES ATTACK.

Offered No Solution While Strike Threatened, McCormick Points Out.

Vance McCormick, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said yesterday that the committee would not take seriously Mr. Hughes's criticism of the settlement of the threatened railroad strike in his Nashville speech.

"Mr. Hughes runs true to form," said Mr. McCormick. "He criticises and attacks everything that has been accomplished at Washington, but discreetly and designedly refrains from telling what he would have done under similar circumstances. The Republican candidate didn't 'peep' during the crisis at Washington, when his views might have been worth while. He maintained his sphinx-like silence and contributed no word or thought that might have been helpful in averting the threatened calamity that confronted the nation. After the Democratic Congress, responding to the wishes of the people it represents, enacts legislation that has averted the calamity, Mr. Hughes arrives on a freight train to attack and criticise the method of settlement, but offers no suggestion as to what he would have done, or what else might have been done to meet the crisis."

S. B. Amidon, who was Chairman of the Kansas State Democratic Convention and who headed the Kansas delegation to the St. Louis convention, called upon Chairman McCormick yesterday and told him of conditions in his State.

"The Progressives have not returned to the Republican Party in my State," he said. "They were disappointed in Mr. Hughes's speeches in Kansas. The attitude of Victor Murdock's newspaper, The Wichita Eagle, is typical. The Eagle could scarcely be more friendly than it is to President Wilson, and its influence is not to be questioned."

BIG RUSH OF IMMIGRANTS.

Arrivals on Five Liners Overtax Ellis Island Accommodations.

Five transatlantic liners arrived yesterday from European ports bringing a total of 4,175 passengers of all classes. This was the biggest day's total since the beginning of 1915. The Italian liner Giuseppe Verdi, from Genoa, headed the list with 2,000. The America, from Naples, brought over 800, the American liner Philadelphia, from Liverpool, 554; the Anchor liner Cameronia, from Glasgow and Liverpool, 396, and the Scandinavian-America liner United States, from Copenhagen, 425.

The Immigration Bureau at Ellis Island, under war conditions, accommodates only 2000 steerage passengers and was able to receive the immigrants from the United States, the Cameronia and America only. Those on the Giuseppe Verdi and the Philadelphia had to remain on board for the night and will go to the island today.

When the Verdi arrived in quarantine the Captain sent a wireless message for a police boat, and when the Patrol arrived alongside, the officers handed over ten hostlers who had been kept in irons since Aug. 28 for stabbing some of their fellow workmen. They were sent to the Tombs. Passengers said that during the riot among the 300 horsemen, six men were shot and stabbed and they were fighting the whole voyage. Four of the injured men were able to leave the ship's hospital and go ashore, but John Meehan of Canal and Greenwich Streets, Manhattan, had been so severely stabbed in the left side that he was taken to the City Hospital.

"MR. LAZARUS" IS FULL OF CHUCKLES

Excellent Performance of a Pleasant Little Comedy by O'Higgins and Ford.

DIXEY IN THE TITLE ROLE

This Rare Comedian in Good Form as a Man Who Somewhat Ruefully Comes Back from the Dead.

MR. LAZARUS, a comedy in four acts, by Harvey O'Higgins and Harriet Ford. At the Shubert.

Mr. Lazarus	Henry E. Dixey
Dr. Sylvester	William T. Clarke
William Booth	Tom Powers
Mrs. Sylvester	Florine Arnold
Patricia Molloy	Eva Le Gallienne
Edith Sylvester	Marie Ascaraga

"Mr. Lazarus" is an altogether pleasant and quietly enjoyable little comedy which was presented to New York for the first time last evening, after Chicago had already tried it and found it good. It is in the happiest vein of Harvey O'Higgins and Harriet Ford, who have turned out several plays between them, but are most fondly known in this neighborhood as the authors of "The Dummy." Their new play is unpretentious, slight of substance and at no point calculated to set you roaring with laughter, but it is fresh in story and method and filled from beginning to end with smiles and chuckles. It ambles easily along and has its fun in so modest and quiet a way that it is a welcome relief from the more vigorous assaults with which the vast majority of our theatrical entertainments seek their way unto our hearts.

Helen Tyler has done well by "Mr. Lazarus." She has brought it to the Shubert Theatre with a cast that is all you or the authors could ask, and with the title rôle in the deft and accomplished hands of no less a comedian than Henry E. Dixey. In this comedy he is the Lazarus, the man raised from the grave, the man who, somewhat ruefully, comes back from the dead to attend to a few matters that were troubling his conscience, and then goes on his way, deciding a little sadly, and yet with some relief, that the dead cannot return. It is not an exacting rôle, nor one rich in opportunities, but to say that Dixey is in good form is just to say that he plays it as well as any other man in the American theatre could play it—and probably a little better.

Twenty years before John Molloy and his querulous bride were caught in a railroad wreck from which she emerged tearful, but without a husband. She lived happily at first in their house and on his insurance money, but an ill-advised second husband has finally reduced her and her daughter to poverty and woe. Things are going pretty badly with them, when there comes to the house a mysterious paying guest named Mr. Lazarus, who plays good angel to the whole establishment.

To dispose of this brutal second husband once and for all, he identifies himself as the missing Molloy, then secretly admits he is merely an old friend and fellow passenger of Molloy's, and finally, as he feels the renewed domesticity getting a bit suffocating for an old maverick, confesses that after that wreck he never could remember whether he was Molloy or Molloy's friend, Mr. Lazarus. So he fades away never to be seen again, and they are all left wondering. Wasn't he John Molloy after all? Or was he? And the curtain falls.

Now, according to reports from Chicago, the playgoers there were also left wondering, and, indeed, the posters and pamphlets made some pretense of mystification in the matter. But, unless the play has been violently rewritten during the last few weeks, this seems incredible, for really no shadow of doubt falls across the comedy at any time. Why, the very name of the mysterious stranger would tell you, even if you were not told at a dozen other points in the play and at a hundred points in Mr. Dixey's performance.

That performance, easy and mellow, illuminates "Mr. Lazarus." From beginning to end, it is a delight to watch. But there are others. There is Florine Arnold, for instance, who seems at first as if she were trying a little too hard and too anxiously to be funny, but who rises splendidly in the excitement of the third act.

And then there might be a whole column written on the charming work of two young players who provide the pretty romance of this new play. These are Tom Powers and Eva Le Gallienne. Mr. Powers's performance has rare grace and Miss Le Gallienne plays with a delicacy of which she has hitherto remained unsuspected. In her first two appearances here last season she bounced and whooped it up scandalously, but this is all gone. Perhaps she is mending her ways. More likely she has come at last under an intelligent director.

These two do much for a comedy that is well worth going to see. You are pretty sure to enjoy it.

BERNHARDT SAILS SEPT. 30.

W. F. Conner, Back from Paris, Says Actress Looks in Good Health.

William F. Conner, the manager for Mme. Sarah Bernhardt's coming tour, returned yesterday on the American liner Philadelphia after visiting the French actress in Paris to arrange for her voyage to New York.

He said that Mme. Bernhardt looked in the best of health and younger in appearance than when she was here on her last tour in 1913. She had a number of pictures taken with her children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren at her Summer home near Paris which Mr. Conner brought back with him.

Mr. Conner said that Mme. Bernhardt would leave Liverpool on the American liner St. Louis on Sept. 30 for New York, and that it would be the first time in her life that the French actress had sailed under a foreign flag. She will be supported by Max Undian and Angelo as leading men, and several young actresses. One of her leading juveniles would be a great surprise to the American public, Mr. Conner said.

"Flora Bella" at the Casino Monday.

"Flora Bella," a new operetta, with music by Charles Cuvillier, composer of the score of "The Lilac Domino," will be presented next Monday night at the Casino. Cosmo Hamilton adapted the book from the original of Felix Doermann, Percy Warman wrote the lyrics, and Milton Schwarzwald composed some additional melodies. Lina Abarbanell will be seen in the principal rôle, and in her supporting cast will be Lawrence Grossmith, Charles Purcell, W. H. Weldon, Adolph Link, Robert O'Connor, Gilbert Clayton, Muriel Hudson, Juliette Lippe, and Kate Stout. Richard Ordynski staged the production. "Very Good Eddie" will be transferre to the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre to make way for the newcomer.

'INTOLERANCE' IMPRESSIVE.

D. W. Griffith's New Picture Is a Stupendous Spectacle.

Ever since the remarkable film, "The Birth of a Nation," was unreeled before an amazed public more than a year ago, the question of whether it was an accident or whether D. W. Griffith, the man who directed its taking, was really a new master of the cinema has interested those who study the personalities that manipulate the puppets of stage and studio. The answer came last night when Mr. Griffith's second big picture, "Intolerance," was exhibited in the Liberty Theatre before an audience that might have gathered to witness the premiere of some favorite dramatist's latest work, so dotted was it with prominent folk of the theatre.

The verdict "Intolerance" renders in the controversy concerning its maker is that he is a real wizard of lens and screen. For in spite of its utter incoherence, the questionable taste of some of its scenes and the cheap banalties into which it sometimes lapses "Intolerance" is an interesting and unusual picture. The stupendousness of its panoramas, the grouping and handling of its great masses of players, make it an impressive spectacle.

An excerpt from the highly literary program will give some idea of Mr. Griffith's latest offering.

"The purpose of the production," so runs the foreword, "is to trace a universal theme through various periods of the race's history. Ancient, sacred, mediaeval, and modern times are considered. Events are not set forth in their historical sequence, or according to the accepted forms of dramatic construction, but as they might flash across a mind seeking to parallel the life of the different ages.

"There are four separate stories, each with its own set of characters. Following the introduction of each period there are subsequent interruptions as the different stories develop along similar lines, switching from one to the other as the mind might do while contemplating such a theme."

What Mr. Griffith has attempted to do in his eight or nine reels of film is to show that intolerance has always been a vice of man. To prove his point he has unfolded a tale of Babylon when Belshazzar was King, has prepared a series of a few rich tableaux of the persecution of the Nazarene, has pictured with a wealth of atmosphere the massacre of St. Bartholomew, and paralleling these has spun a lurid, modern melodrama in the prevailing mode of the screen.

Shorn of the impressive bibliography recorded on the program and of the somewhat hazy symbolism that flickers between the episodes, "Intolerance" is a regulation photo-drama, superior to the average feature picture because of the skill with which it is handled, and an amazingly accurate and thrilling picture of Assyrian civilization.

The French scenes and those of the life of Christ constitute only a smart part of the film. They were apparently included to develop the idea of the presence of intolerance through the ages. In spite of their general excellence and the faithfulness with which they have been reproduced, tehy do nothing but add to the general confusion and might well be eliminated. This is especially true of those scenes in which the Christ is impersonated, always a questionable proceeding if the feelings of many are to be respected.

It is the Babylonian portion of the film that will commend it to the great public. These pictures of the wals of Babylon, broad enough for chariots to pass at ease, of the great gates thronged with picturesque caravans, of the palace of Belshazzar with its myriad slaves and dancing girls, and of the seige and fall of the city are indeed masterpieces of the cine.

They are so splendid that it seems a pity the story was not deleted.

DANCERS TO WALK THE DOG.

Teachers in Convention Decree New Steps, but Tango Lives.

The American Society of Professors of Dancing, organized in 1883, is holding its annual convention at the Majestic Hotel to settle the all-important question of the proper steps for the devotees of Terpsichore in the coming season. The task, according to one of the delegates, is not an easy one when the fickle New York public has to be taken into consideration.

"The keynote of dancing this season will be simplicity and grace," said Miss Rose I. Byrne of Boston. "The Russian ballet and the more elaborate exhibition dances have done much to interest amateurs in the artistic in dancing. They are only now beginning to realize the poetry of motion and the beauty of simple steps well done. Standardized routine is being abandoned, with the result that all dancing is becoming more inspirational, and the dancers of today are continually seeking new expressions for music.

"The present dances are extremely popular everywhere and it is very unlikely that they will change materially, although it is a little early to forecast. Of course, new ideas always spring up at this time of year and there is just now a decided tendency toward the military and the Hawaiian. The Military Trot will undoubtedly gain in favor. It originated in Boston. The steps are very simple and it is most inspiring danced to one of Sousa's marches."

Mrs. Evelyn Hubbell is introducing the London Taps, which is just now very popular abroad. It is danced to fox trot time, but the music is played intermittently. From the description it will take considerable practice. Mrs. Hubbell says the Hawaiian music will surely prevail and, greatly modified, those exotic dances will eventually rank in favor with the tango.

Now that the dances have become simpler and every one is more facile in the steps the men are to be required to lead backwards. This will be good news to many girls who have complained bitterly against this steadfast rule of being sent backwards, and by some men just as though they were chairs.

Contrary to the prevailing opinion, the tango is not to go, but it will never supplant the waltz, which will stay on for ever, so the dancing teachers say. Then there is the Walking the Dog, the Bugle Fox Trot, Tactics Militaire, and any number of others if you really must learn some new ones.

The convention will continue until Friday, when all rules will be firmly fixed, and there will be no excuse for any one making a false step.

Leaps Eleven Floors to Death.

Anna Kruetty, 22 years old, a maid employed in the family of William H. Jacobus in the Rivera Apartment House, 790 Riverside Drive, committed suicide by jumping last night from the window of a bathroom in the apartment where she was employed on the eleventh floor. Her body fell into an areaway, after breaking two iron railing an inch thick on its way down. Nearly every bone in the girl's body was broken. The family had been warned by Irma Kruetty, a sister of the dead girl, who was formerly in their employ, that Anna should be watched. Her strange behavior was attributed to brooding over the death of her mother in Hungary. Yesterday morning Irma went to the Jacobus apartment from her home in Cedarhurst, L. I., to look after her sister, but the maid eluded her.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The Winter Garden's Sunday night concerts will be resumed next Sunday. The principals of the current revue will be the entertainers. Ed Wynn, Florence Moore, Swor and Mack, Timberg and Darling, Fred Walton, and the Ford sisters among the number.

John Houston has replaced Edward Langford in the rôle of Blakely in Otto Hauerbach's drama, "The Silent Witness," at the Fulton.

Charles Dillingham has received a cable of congratulation on the success of his new Hippodrome production from Leon Bakst, who designed the scenery and costumes for the Pavlowa ballet. Bakst also asked permission to negotiate with the Grand Opera in Paris to use the designs when "The Sleeping Beauty" is presented there.

"Manhattan Madness," the film for which Douglas Fairbanks was acting when he was painfully injured by the discharge of a blank cartridge near his eyes, will be next week's offering at the Rialto.

MOTOR BOATS BEGIN DEFENSE OF HARBOR

Naval Officers Teach Owners of Mosquito Craft Signaling and Fleet Formation.

ROUGH WATER HAMPERS

Captain Kaiser Orders Fleets to Meet Inside Sandy Hook—To Use Dummy Submarines.

The Mosquito Fleet of fast, privately owned and operated motor boats began its week's manoeuvres yesterday, which it is expected will introduce the owners to their part of the greatest tactical problem of our navy, the defense of New York's harbor. Naval officers spent the entire day drilling into the commanders of the motor boats a thorough ground work in signaling and in handling their tiny craft in fleet formation so that bungling might be eliminated and the chance of accident in the manoeuvres lessened.

Rough water outside, too choppy by far for the little power boats, caused a shift in the proposed line of defense at the last moment. Captain Louis A. Kaiser of the battleship New Jersey, senior officer of the manoeuvre fleet here, ordered that, instead of defending New York on a line off Long Island and extending as far as Long Branch on the Jersey coast, an inner line of defense be adopted and the defending ships will meet the enemy inside Sandy Hook.

The motor boats, nicknamed by the navy the Mosquito Fleet, made a pretty picture, with twenty or thirty of the small white, rakish-looking craft, any one of which can equal the speed of a railroad train, dotting the waters of Gravesend Bay. Just outside of them lay the mother ships, the great gray batleships, New Jersey, Maine, and Kentucky, while near at hand were anchored the destroyers Flusser and Warrington.

These destroyers, aided by a fleet of hydroaeroplanes and one or two of the larger and more powerful of the mosquito craft, are to form the attacking squadron, and will try to creep through and attack the battleships. It is the problem of the motor boats to ward off such attacks and to keep their larger protectors informed of the movements of the enemy in every direction.

Submarines, of course, are reckoned in the calculation of the mosquito boat commanders, but the congested traffic of New York's waters forbids submerging by an American submarine, so that dummy periscopes have been rigged up. These will be used to teach the motor boats how to discover and fight an under water vessel. In addition, a course in mine sweeping is planned.

Lieutenant John W. Wilcox, Jr., U. S. N., spent the day yesterday with the Committee on Power Boats, Division of the Naval Training Cruise, including Orson D. Munn, Henry L. Hollins, Hermann Oelrichs, Harold S. Vanderbilt, B. H. Borden, Stewart Davis, Charles H. Jackson, Lieutenant A. M. Cohen, and A. F. Aldridge, in mapping out plans.

The Mosquito Fleet was divided into three groups which will act in conjunction with the battleships. The groups lettered A. B. and C are commanded as follows: A— R. B. Roosevelt, flagship Sunbeam II.; B—L. B. Dyer, flagship Atlantis; C—Matthew Rock, flagship Florence. Signal men from the battleships were sent aboard each motor boat yesterday and taught the navy signals and how to use the Very flash pistol and the red and white signal lights. The motor boat sailors were also instructed in the art of wig-wagging and the use of the semaphore.

The work which the hydroaeroplanes are expected to do was not neglected, for a group of civilians and navy men spent the afternoon mapping a course for the air craft, going over charts and selecting places where the aviator could volplane to the water as easily and safely as possible.

Captain Kaiser said yesterday he hoped the training given the private citizens who owned fast power boats and who were willing to volunteer would be invaluable in time of war. It was not so much that they would become adept at handling their own boats, he said, for in many cases those boats were too small—they must be at least large enough under war conditions to mount a three-inch gun—but the knowledge of how to work together and how to follow navy signals, the realization of what could be done and what must be accomplished by their craft against an enemy, the Captain thought, would be worth far more to the Government than the money and labor which have been expended on this phase of national preparedness.

17 HURT IN SIGHTSEEING BUS

Three women were badly hurt and fourteen other persons were bruised and shaken up at 10:45 last night when a Broadway surface car practically demolished the rear end of a sight-seeing bus at Broadway and Fourth Street.

The women, all of whom were sent to St. Vincent's Hospital, were: Mrs. Vincent Chicco, 50 years old; her daughters, Miss Natalie Chicco and Mrs. Walter Strauss, all of 247 West Forty-fourth Street. The first two were suffering from lacerations of the body and limbs, and Mrs. Strauss, in addition to similar lacerations, had her back badly wrenched.

The car struck the rear wheels of the bus, tearing them off. There were screams from the nine women passengers, and the vehicle was thrown to one side, narrowly missing an excavation. Nearly all were thrown out to the street, and for a few moments there was a panic.

An ambulance surgeon treated the bruises of several of the passengers before taking the women to the hospital. The worst hurt among these were William Hartigan of the Broadway Central Hotel and Robert Tompkins of 1143 South Second Street, Plainfield, N. J., both of whom went home.

Traffic was tied up for nearly an hour.

SUBSTANCE OR SHADOW?

Would it be wise and worth while for the men employed by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to go out on strike merely to secure the privilege of having their business with their employer transacted by Mr. Fitzgerald of the Amalgamated Association rather than by committees of their own choosing? If that is not avowedly the question at issue, the strike, if it should be successful, would have that result and apparently no other of much importance to the men. They have individually signed an agreement with the company, some 8,000 of them out of 11,000, according to the statements of Mr. Shonts and Mr. Hedley. The agreement was drawn up at conferences between representatives of the company and committees chosen by the men. The committeemen, selected from all branches of the service, accepted the agreement or contract, it was put before the men, and according to the statement of the company was signed by more than three-fourths of them. Mr. Fitzgerald, as a representative of the Amalgamated Association, dislikes the agreement. In his opinion it impairs their liberty of action, and for some days he has been insisting that if the company would not do away with it and release the signers of the contract he would call them out. That is the question at issue, as the public understands it. There is the threat, too, that the employés of the surface lines, the New York Railways Company, will go out in sympathy with the employés of the elevated and subway lines; and this notwithstanding the agreement reached through the Mayor and Chairman Straus that all differences should be submitted to arbitration.

It is a matter of common observation that the men employed on the surface lines and on the elevated and subway lines have for many years got along very well with their employers. Between February, 1910, and Aug. 1, 1916, there were increases of compensation to the employés of the Interborough amounting to $1,117,000 per annum. To these increases aggregating $1,250,000 per annum, with shorter hours, were added by the individual contracts. It is evident, therefore, that if there should be a strike it would not have been provoked by hard conditions.

It is a question peculiarly appropriate for candid consideration by the men. They signed contracts which their own representatives assisted to draw up and approved. There is no evidence beyond mere assertion that they did not know what they were about when they signed. It is incredible that contracts signed by so very large a proportion of the men can be unreasonable or oppressive. Would it be worth while, therefore, for the men to break and repudiate their two-year agreements, quarrel with conditions and wages that are so evidently fair and just, bring upon themselves the inevitable loss of a strike, and put upon the public the inconceivable injury of a suspension of service upon all the transportation lines in this great city? We can understand Mr. Fitzgerald's point of view. He wants to see the thousands of employés of these transportation lines brought within his Amalgamated Association and made subject to its rules and its control. What would the men gain by surrendering themselves into his hands, what would they gain in real substance, we mean? They are now a democracy. They have a brotherhood of their own. They are governed by and for themselves. What would it profit them to surrender control over their affairs and interests to the chiefs of the Amalgamated Association? Is not that a mere shadow, impossible of reduction to terms that express measurable benefit?

It is said that a very large proportion of the Interborough employés, represented to be half or more than half, have already reached the conclusion that it would be the part of unwisdom to surrender so much substance for so little shadow, and according to report they would not go out. That decision would be highly creditable to their intelligence. Intimations to that effect seem to have reached Mr. Fitzgerald, for while up to yesterday the talk was all of no compromise and of a certain strike unless the company yielded, it has now been decided to defer the strike and submit the question to a mass meeting to be held this evening. The suggestion has found favor, too, that the assistance of our much-harassed Mayor should again be invoked.

It is a pretty efficient body of men that the Interborough has in its employ. This is shown by the fact that during the last eleven years the company's lines have transported more than six billion passengers with a record of safety "not approached by any "other transportation company in the "world." Exhibiting that degree of efficiency, the conclusion is inevitable that the men are intelligent, too intelligent, we are confident, to let themselves be persuaded to go out for no substantial reason, with the certainty of great loss to themselves and incalculable injury to the city.

THE BATTLE ON THE SOMME.

At last in the west there has been a real battle of the old-fashioned kind, a battle of armies in the open, a battle of bayonets between great forces. The war of trenches was suspended. Armies went forward to meet each other just as they did in feudal times, but on a vast scale and with real fighting. The feudal baron ran no great risk when he advanced to meet his foe, gallantly scorning advantages of position. That is just what the French and Germans did on Sunday, with much more courage. The French came out of the trenches cheering and singing, the Germans rushed to meet them. At Soyecourt the French charged the enemy with the bayonet, took their machine guns away, and turned them on their former owners. The British, at their end of the line, were fighting the same way. "Aviators, who looked down "upon the scene, saw it as a mad "football scrimmage of struggling "figures."

There has been such fighting before in this war, but never on such a scale in the west. Brigades have fought hand to hand, but these were armies. This was a great battle, a battle in the old-time sense; and it was a clean-cut victory. The assertion so often made by Frenchmen and Englishmen, that, terrible as the German is in the mass, he is no match for them man to man, may be proved and disproved often before the war is over. This great battle has given the French and English some color for their boast, for the time at least. The German was not able to retrieve his losses, either, as he has so often done; he was too badly punished. He did make small gains here and there, but no such fight to regain his place as he has been accustomed to make. He was beaten thoroughly, and beaten in the open. His resistance was brave and vain, his recuperation languid.

"A TIME OF NATIONAL EXIGENCY."

> I have not desired this nomination. I have wished to remain on the bench. But in this critical period of our national history I recognize that it is your right to summon and that it is my paramount duty to respond. You speak at a time of national exigency, transcending merely partisan considerations.

The moment he received the news of his nomination Justice Hughes sent this information by telegraph to the Republican Convention. He wanted to stay on the bench, but he couldn't, because this was a "critical period of our national history," "a time of national "exigency, transcending merely parti-"san considerations." What was this national exigency which forced this reluctant Justice off the bench? What makes this period critical? Wherein does it transcend partisan considerations? There are many Americans, many Republicans, who could answer these questions. We know how Colonel Roosevelt, Senator Lodge, Mr. Root, Mr. Wickersham, Mr. Bacon, Mr. Choate, would answer them; but the question is how Mr. Hughes has answered them. He has been talking for a month, and we know.

This is a solemn hour, so solemn that no mere Fairbanks or Burton or Cummins could meet it, and the Republicans had to take a Justice off the bench. What makes it solemn, as we learn from Mr. Hughes, is that the President put some Republicans out of office and put some Democrats in. It is a "critical period of our national history" because Tittmann and Durand lost their jobs. It is "a time of national exigency" because, while we are now prosperous, the Wilson Administration will surely bring about hard times in the long run. It "transcends merely partisan considerations" because the Underwood tariff is unsatisfactory to those who liked the Aldrich tariff. In one city the period is critical for one reason, in another for a different reason. As Mr. Hughes ambles on around the country, new reasons occur to him every moment for thinking that the period is critical, the time is exigent, and partisan considerations are transcended. Each time he hits on one of these reasons he is visibly astonished and delighted. At Nashville he discovered that the time was exigent because of the President's action in the railway strike. "Aha," you can hear him say; "I knew it all the time. I said in "June that the country was in dan-"ger, and now in September I've found "out why."

Searching for issues, he journeys from State to State; each day he ransacks the morning papers to find out why the period is critical, the time exigent, partisanship transcended. A month has passed, and he has forgotten the national exigency created by the departure of Tittmann and Durand from the Government service; his exigencies, his crises, like the mercies of the Lord, are new every morning.

Is it not strange that, hunting thus eagerly to find out what is that national exigency to meet which he sorrowfully quit the bench, he has never happened to stumble on this one?

> The seas were not broad enough to keep the infection of the [European] conflict out of our own politics. The passions and intrigues of certain active groups and combinations of men amongst us who were born under foreign flags injected the poison of disloyalty into our own most critical affairs, laid violent hands upon many of our industries, and subjected us to the same divisions of sentiment and purpose in which America was contemned and forgotten.

This is the "time of national exi-"gency, transcending merely partisan "considerations," which President Wilson saw. Yet Mr. Wilson was not hunting for exigencies and crises. Mr. Hughes has a poor opinion of his breadth of vision. Is it not strange that the near-sighted Wilson could not avoid seeing this "critical period," and that the eagle-eyed Hughes, hunting for critical periods with a search warrant from the Underwood tariff to the civil service law, could not see it with a telescope? If he really did "wish to remain on the bench," it is a pity he left it, for the kind of national exigency he thinks he sees does not really need him. Fairbanks could have handled that.

STRIKES BY GOVERNMENT EMPLOYES.

The nationalization of railways has often been suggested as a means of avoiding the suspension of service by strikes. Just so the nationalization of mines was suggested during the recent coal strikes. It is a natural enough suggestion to come from those who know nothing of the subject. The idea that there is anything "unthinkable" or "impossible" about a strike of Government employés is negatived by abundant records in all sorts of Governments and all sorts of services. The manner in which France stopped a strike on the French Government and private railways has been mentioned more than once, and is far from being solitary. In 1914 there was a strike of great proportions and great disturbance and inconvenience on the publicly owned railways of South Africa. The French railway strike was in 1910, and only the year before there was a strike of the French Government telegraph clerks and postmen. In 1904 there was a serious strike on the State railways of Hungary, and in 1903 on the State railways of Victoria.

The nearest approach to freedom from strikes on Government undertakings is in Prussia, where membership in unions is forbidden to Government workers. It is not thinkable that our men would submit to exclusion from unions as a condition of Government employment. In fact, railway workers dislike political control of their activities so strongly that it is one of the great obstacles to Government ownership. Our Government owns two railways and the men know that the Government considers itself free as respects both from the Interstate Commerce Commission's regulations binding upon all other railways. The Railroad Employé remarks this week that in Canada the private railways treat their men better than the Government on the publicly operated railways. For example, positions are more sought on the Canadian Pacific than on the Intercolonial. The boomers of Government ownership are the theorists, not the workers.

THE JOINT HIGH COMMISSION.

The Mexican and American International Commission begins its sessions at New London today under favoring auspices. While, for political reasons, a deal of stage thunder and lightning is manufactured by the Republicans, it is not the past but the future of Mexican-American relations that interests the public. Weary of long controversy, desirous of a permanent settlement of lasting peace and order on the frontier and in Mexico, the people of the United States, aside from a few noisy and interested agitators, look forward hopefully to a constructive program.

To the withdrawal of the American troops from Mexico there will be no dissenting voices. The protection of the border and the suppression of trouble-makers and fomenters of insurrection and intervention on both sides of it concern both Governments. The protection of American interests and investments in Mexico, referred to by Mr. Lane in his speech at Washington on Monday, is a condition precedent of good relations between the two countries; but the protection of all foreigners and foreign interests, the assumption and maintenance of the obligations which Mr. Carranza inherits from preceding Governments, will be expected of him if his power, of whose increase and solidification good reports come to us, is to be durable, if after all the waste of war and anarchy his is to be the mighty and honorable task of rehabilitating Mexico.

"I hope most earnestly," said Mr. Lansing in his admirable speech to the Commissioners, "that your sphere "of discussion will widen as you meet "from day to day." Whatever limitations may have been set to the subjects to be considered, such an extension is natural and seems inevitable. The Commission is composed of men of high talent meeting in an amicable spirit. Convinced of the good faith of each side, the Commissioners have the opportunity to go to the root of the matter. A mere surface arrangement would be futile. The economic reconstruction of Mexico is vital to her and of momentous import to her friendly neighbors. It is impossible to think that the Mexican Commissioners, who, by the way, have produced already a favorable impression, were not chosen with a view for their especial fitness for economic and financial discussion and project. Two of them, Mr. Bonillas and Mr. Pani, are distinguished engineers. Mr. Pani has accomplished the surprising feat of keeping in operation two-thirds of the Mexican railroad mileage in a time when revolutions were hot and frequent and railroad bridges and other property were freely blown up. The Mexican Chairman, Mr. Cabrera, is an energetic and accomplished administrator, who holds the post of Minister of Finance in Mr. Carranza's Cabinet. To such men the restoration of the railroads, the financial resuscitation of Mexico, the revival of agriculture and industry may well be intrusted, subject, of course, to the approval of Mr. Carranza. To him, however, the prime need of economic regeneration of his country, of prosperity as the basis of peace, must be apparent.

Mexico has sent us three of her ablest men. They meet three as able Americans. May the scope and method of their deliberations and conclusions be such that, in Secretary Lansing's words:

> Seeds of future controversy can be destroyed and entire confidence restored, so that the Mexican Government and people may build on the ruins of war and disorder a new and more lasting prosperity than the republic has ever known, a prosperity founded on liberty and justice under a government supported by the united will of a free people.

A FELIPEDIST TRANSLATION.

> There should be in this country a system of universal obligatory military training in time of peace, and in time of war universal service in whatever capacity the man or woman shall be judged most fit to serve the commonwealth.

This is said to be a translation of the same into Hughesese, made at Nashville, Sept. 4:

> I hope the time will come when everybody in this country will feel it an honor to be ready for the service of the country.

"Mr. Hughes makes a Byzantine logothete look like Poor Richard," we seem to hear the Colonel roar, as he rages up and down his library at Oyster Bay. "By Godfrey, he is as "straightforward as the Oracle of "Delphi and as bold as a sheep. Why, "he is an amphibological dodge-mean-"ing, an Iranian felipedist." And the Colonel shies Liddell and Scott's Greek Lexicon at the Persian cat stealing softly over the hearth rug.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Wisdom Open to Question.

It is with what are vaguely but intelligibly described as "mingled emotions" that the friends of Thomas Mott Osborne will learn of the proceedings instituted by him to bring to the sort of justice allotted by courts men who, partly as a means, partly as an incident, of restoring a system of prison management from which they had profited for many years, coolly undertook to destroy his reputation both as a man and as an official.

On the one hand, it is, of course, desirable that those who originated and as far as they could carried out this method of ousting a Warden of Sing Sing whom they found worse than useless for their purposes should get the publicity and the punishment deserved by them. So if Mr. Osborne is sure of proving his case in court—which is a very different thing from feeling a moral certainty of their guilt—the Grand Jury investigation now in progress is a commendable beginning of action and all good citizens will hope for its success.

On the other hand, however, conspiracy is of all crimes the hardest to establish, and in this instance it will be especially difficult because the case involves to such a large extent questions whether discretionary powers were or were not honestly exercised, and also those of motive—where all certainty ceases.

A third consideration is the fact that Mr. Osborne has already won a brilliant victory over his foes, and it is properly held superfluous to beat the bones of the thoroughly dead. To do so will distract his own and the public's attention from a more important task—that of carrying into effective operation the new ideas of prison management, of which, in no small degree because of the attacks to which he was subjected, he has become the best known and therefore most effective exponent. In a way, therefore, he owes a sort of gratitude to those who made his triumph possible. He even might have strained magnanimity to the point of remembering that his conflict was with men who by misfortune rather than fault were survivals from a political era in which the practices he interfered with were so customary as sincerely to be held legitimate. So remembering, he might have seen that animosity on his part was unnecessary, and have been content with having reduced the "prison ring" to permanent helplessness.

He Made a Hit at Last!

Candidates for office in this country have encountered before now audiences as hostile to their aspirations as was the one gathered in Nashville Monday for the purpose, seemingly, not of hearing, but of silencing, Mr. Hughes. Such episodes, however, though common enough in the land whence most of our political customs came to us, are rare enough in this country not only to be more than unfamiliar, except in the very lowest circles of politics, but also to be very distinctly displeasing to all fair-minded observers.

To differ with Mr. Hughes on any or all subjects is clearly the right of his fellow-citizens, and their right to express, in proper times and places, that disagreement is not less obvious. It is, however, a way we like to call American to give a fair hearing to all seekers for public place, and certainly there is nothing in the record, reputation, or character of Mr. Hughes to excuse, anywhere, the withdrawal from him of the commonly accorded privilege of justifying his ambitions if he can.

The interruptions suffered by him in Nashville passed, according to the telegraphed reports, beyond discourtesy into insult, and yet he has, perhaps, no great reason to complain of what happened there. It afforded an opportunity to display notable ability in meeting effectively a difficult and embarrassing situation, it illustrated his power to keep his temper when the provocation to lose it was great, and it even proved him able to perform the hardest of all tasks—that of giving a lesson in manners in a way to please, instead of offending, its recipients.

A Presidential candidate couldn't ask for better fortune than that, and, while there is little likelihood that Mr. Hughes changed any Nashville votes by his speech, he seems to have made some personal friends there, and that is always worth while, in or out of a campaign.

A Judicious Display of Generosity.

In burying with full military honors the men who met such a terrible death when the airship with which they were invading England was pierced by shells and fell blazing to the ground, the British authorities were well advised. In the senseless and useless slaughter of civilians, and in the equally senseless and useless destruction of civilian property, which are practically all that the Zeppelins have accomplished in their raids—and it was exactly this sort of work that these very men were engaged in when they met their fate—there was something more than excuse for according to their dead bodies treatment entirely different from that accorded to enemies slain in ordinary war. There was, however, as much of practical wisdom as of magnanimity in recognizing how slight was the personal responsibility of these air sailors for the execution of the orders under which they acted.

The only real justification for denying to them military burial, with their country's flag on their coffins and the usual salute over their graves, would have been the expectation that thus further raids of the same kind could be prevented. For that expectation there would have been as little basis as the like one on the part of the Germans that by the raids the British people can be cowed into seeking peace rather than victory. But vengeance on, or punishment of, the dead, besides its utter futility as a remedial measure, would have embittered hatreds already sufficiently aroused, and would have led to reprisals from which British prisoners in Germany would have been sure to suffer. The generosity displayed by giving these men the honors they received was profitable, therefore, as well as admirable.

The Allies, too, have done some air raiding themselves that is not without need for defense as a military operation—not much of it, or systematically or intentionally, their friends like to believe—and on that account, also, it was judicious to remember Karlsruhe and the royal palace before proceeding to harsh extremities in disposing of the Zeppelin's crew.

Danger in the Quickest Way.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am a suffragist, but I do not want to win the vote by a Federal amendment. There is too much Federal control over the States now. I don't think all the States should be forced to have certain laws because a few of them want them. There are too many "causes" lurking around, all ready to jump in such an opening. That is one thing we shall have to fight and fight hard against in the future—that "quickest and easiest way" to gain something which Mr. Hughes favors via a Federal amendment. We must labor hard to retain a few State rights. And when we women win the vote I want it to come to us in the most honorable way, and in the way that will not bring in a lot of evils with it, if not so quick and easy, for the quick and easy ways are generally the dangerous ways.

MARY CLARK.

New York, Aug. 23, 1916.

Senator Newlands's Proposals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Thank you for publishing the interview with Senator Francis G. Newlands concerning the Federal incorporation of railroads. Please quote the inclosed for the benefit of all your readers:

> By such incorporation and control the taxes of railroads could be made fixed and certain. That would also be true of dividends, so that hereafter any increase of business would tend mathematically, either to a betterment of the road, to an increase in wages, or to a diminution in rates.
>
> Our present railroad system, even though it is the best in the world, is needlessly complicated and expensive, involving the maintenance of many unnecessary corporations. There should be unity of ownership, recognized by the law, of such railroads as are now linked together in interstate commerce, regardless of State boundaries. As State legislation cannot accomplish this, the railroad corporations should be national—the creation of the Government whose jurisdiction is as broad as interstate commerce itself.

New York, Aug. 28, 1916. A. MARSH.

THE COWARD?

Dear God! I hate to hear that fellow groan!
I'll stop my ears and try to get some sleep.
I thought that I was hardened into stone,
But he has set my nerve-roots all a-creep.

Their shrapnel sweeps this cursed hilltop bare.
And yet, and yet, I wonder, should I dare?
It can't be done—I hope the chap is dead!

I'll think of happier things. 'Tis good to feel
Her letters in the packet near my heart;
Her love has held me firm as wall of steel,
Has spurred me on to do a soldier's part.

I wonder, were she now beside me here,
Would she lie close and let yon soldier groan,
Or would she think my prudence kin to fear,
And risk a rescue, though she went alone?

I know the answer—she who ever dared,
Who gave the largess of her love to me,
Would call me coward—I for whom she cared!
Her scorn would drown me deeper than the sea!

I'll venture now—there seems to be a lull!
A well-filled flask may help him through the night.
I hate to stir, my very brain seems dull!
Out, slacker, out! You've but yourself to fight!

* * * *

To fall and fail! I'm glad, though, that I tried!
My love will know, and she will understand—
Her proud heart joy that thus her man has died,

TURNS TO WILSON.

A Progressive Republican Who Cannot Support Hughes.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Aug. 31, 1916.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Though I am a Republican with Progressive inclinations, I have taken keen delight in your editorial articles on Mr. Hughes's campaign speeches. The "sleek, timorous, tabby politician," that "sputtering, ineffectual candle in the West," has only succeeded in making me miss the more "the brilliant and powerful light of another leader." As you truthfully say, Hughes springs only at small game. Here we are in the midst of the greatest crisis in the world's history, when the minds of all thinking men should be bent upon the solution of mightier problems than ever before beset the path of man, but what do we hear from the former member of our Supreme Court, now aspirant for election to the greatest office within the gift of a free people? We are chiefly harangued upon evils of government long characteristic of both great parties. We are told in awed tones of a Census Bureau chief losing his place. There is a wild effort to substitute poor, little, fretful Mexico for big, dangerous Germany as the great problem in our foreign affairs.

The Republican candidate has not dared to say what he would have done or will do about the only thing that really matters in any great world view of things. By the very logic of the situation, if Mr. Hughes was an advocate of Americanism it was his duty to make himself as distasteful to the hyphenated voters as President Wilson has made himself. My own objection to President Wilson is that he has handled Germany too tenderly. I was alienated when he failed to protest against the invasion of Belgium. I was humiliated as an American citizen when without instant challenge he permitted the German Ambassador and his underlings to intrigue against our neutrality. I felt disgraced when he failed to sever diplomatic relations after the Lusitania affair, and I vowed after the tedious notes on the submarine outrages, and the false, fulsome compliments to Germany about her upholding international law, that I would fight President Wilson's re-election with all the force there was in me. Now, however, I shall be driven to vote for him and to work for him unless Mr. Hughes speaks up like a man and arrays the "hyphens" against him as they are arrayed against Mr. Wilson.

To have the taint of German influence in the election of a President of the United States would be one of the greatest evils that could come to our country. All that part of the civilized world whose institutions are most like our own would regard us with scorn. If Mr. Hughes intends to seek success in the coming election by silence about the wretched, un-American conduct of the "hyphens," he ought to meet overwhelming defeat at the hands of all true Americans who are ready, regardless of racial origin, to defy Germany's shining armor and mailed fist when she takes American lives unrighteously. It is true, very shamefully true, in my judgment, that the mass of the American people are pleased that Wilson has kept us out of war.

If Hughes wants a real issue, big as the world and lasting as time, he should ignore that fact of the popular satisfaction with a policy which has left us ignored and despised. Burke once said that the duty of a statesman was to educate and lead the people to see their own best interests. Hughes should seek to lead and educate the people of the United States to see that their permanent interests lie not in present ease and comfort but in the assurance of the continuance of this happy existence through insistent defense of those ideals and institutions which have let us enjoy this life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness. He should drive deep into the American mind the idea that, after this war, when it shall be seen that England and France have saved the cause of democracy, it will be a source of lasting regret to all thinking men in America, and to her friends abroad, that this great but selfish country refused to do her duty in the world's greatest crisis. It is true that in doing this Mr. Hughes might go down to defeat, but he would go like a statesman of courage and convictions, and not, as he now promises to do, like a petty politician, too weak and timorous to talk about the one thing which lies uppermost in all men's minds.

"British Failure."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A writer in one of your contemporaries seems to be badly affected by the "British blunder" bacillus. Never an article but stares forth at us the gruesome head or sub-head, "British failure," "British blunder," or "British delay." Undoubtedly, if the Allies lose this war, it will be because the British have thrown down glorious France, valiant Russia, intrepid Italy, to say nothing of shamelessly deserting gallant Serbia and devoted Belgium.

In a review of the battle of the Marne this writer tells us that the French won this battle with the "least possible assistance from the British," and then proceeds to show us a diagram with the British army placed directly in front of the most dangerous factor in that battle, von Kluck. This military expert doesn't tell us that every available soldier in Britain was thrown into Flanders while the superlative generalship of France was evidencing itself in a political invasion of Alsace-Lorraine that was both costly and fruitless.

The saddest part of all this is that the thick-headed British don't seem to realize that they are falling down on the job. They just go plodding along, controlling the seas, furnishing an army of four or five million or so, lending their hard-battling partners a few hundred million now and then, starting up five or six thousand factories so that they and their allies shall have plenty of cannon and shells, and seizing a mere detail of a million square miles of German colonies—all the while keeping the wheels of commerce moving so that our dear old United States can build up its foreign trade to the extent of several hundred million by virtue of British shipping. Certainly a parlous state of affairs!

W. TANCRED.

New York, Sept. 4, 1916.

"Vae Victis."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If, as I am led to believe, the article by Dr. Ervin Acel-Stahrenberg, appearing in the Sept. 1 issue of your paper, was written in seriousness and sincerity, it is but another striking example of the incomprehensible Teutonic mind. Says the editor: "The fate of Belgium, Serbia, and Montenegro should remind Rumania of 'Vae Victis.'" He reminds Rumania of Belgium, Serbia, and Montenegro's fate for their treacherous and unprovoked assault upon unsuspecting and defenseless Germany! Consider Rumania's baseness; how, after years and centuries of oppression, aye, and bondage, now that her opportunity is come, that for which she has existed and longed and prayed, she contemptibly turns on her oppressor!

A warning, Rumania; remember the fate of Belgium, Serbia, and Montenegro, and fawn upon your oppressors. Withdraw your troops, mumble your shamefaced apologies, lend your aid to those who have wronged you, and, while you are still sane, remember the fate of Belgium, Serbia, and Montenegro.

FREE MAIL FOR PRISONERS OF WAR.

We Are Asked to Do as Much as Little Switzerland, Which Generously Bears a Heavy Expense.

By C. OBERUCHEFF,

Secretary of the Central Committee in Switzerland for the Relief of Russian War Prisoners.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few days ago I received a letter from a prisoner of war, one of the correspondents so dear to my heart, though unknown to me, who are languishing in concentration camps.

It has been my habit, as Secretary of the Central Committee in Switzerland for the relief of the Russian war prisoners, to answer such letters immediately; and Switzerland had accustomed me to the idea that letters to prisoners of war were forwarded free of charge. I was sure that it was the same in America, especially as the letter I had received had no stamp, and bore the inscription, "No charge for postage. Prisoners of war mail. New York."

In order to take no chances, however, I inquired at the Post Office. To my surprise, I was told that, while letters sent by prisoners of war from their camps are free of charge, those sent to prisoners of war from this country are subject to the ordinary rates.

This was not what I had expected from great and rich America, especially after my two years' experience in poor little Switzerland.

As a result of her situation amid the belligerent countries, it has been Switzerland's lot to become a centre of help to the war victims. As the prisoners of war are among these, Switzerland has done everything to alleviate their sufferings; and since one of their important problems is that of correspondence with their families, Switzerland handles all mail to or for prisoners of war free of charge.

To show what this means to the Swiss Post Office, I call attention to the following figures, from the monthly postal report for last April, the latest report published before I left for this country:

During April the Swiss Post Office forwarded to prisoners of war a daily average of 326,241 letters and postal cards, 19,551 parcels weighing up to one kilogram, and 82,658 parcels weighing up to five kilograms (twelve pounds.) It also handled on an average 7,904 money orders a day. At present the figures must be a good deal larger, as the volume of mail sent through Switzerland is growing every day. And that mail is distributed in all possible directions.

I have had an opportunity to observe personally the operations of the special Transit Department of the Berne Post Office, where a force of over one hundred extra clerks, with the help of mobilized militiamen, are performing an enormous but highly useful work.

Between the beginning of the war and the end of the year 1915 the Berne Transit Bureau, which had been created for this purpose, forwarded to France, Germany, Italy, Austria-Hungary, Great Britain and her colonies, and Turkey a total of 74,256,858 letters and post cards addressed to prisoners of war, besides 14,743,286 large and 4,284,906 small parcels. These small parcels, which are sent from one belligerent country to another through Switzerland, often arrive badly torn, and the Swiss Post Office has to rewrap them. The number rewrapped at the Transit Bureau averages 1,000 per day; and every such case is reported to the Post Office from which the parcel was sent.

During the same period nearly 3,000,000 parcels were sent to prisoners of war and to interned civilians from Switzerland itself; and the Swiss Post Office transmitted 3,066,597 money orders, aggregating 43,271,782 francs.

And all this work has been done by the Swiss Post Office free of charge.

In addition, all the societies for aiding the war prisoners—and these organizations are very numerous in Switzerland—have been granted the privilege of post-free correspondence, both for mail addressed to and sent by them.

Estimates of the losses to the Swiss Post Office resulting from the post-free distribution of the prisoners' mail show, for the year 1915 alone, the total of 11,000,000 francs. And that for a small and poor country.

And here in America, to send a letter to a prisoner, I had to pay at the full rate. And if his correspondent had happened not to have five cents, the poor captive would have remained without the consolation of the letter.

Let those think of it who have the power to solve the problem of post-free mail for prisoners.

The Post Office would have to suffer certain losses, but these would be compensated by the amount of good such a measure would bring to those suffering in captivity.

I think there is but one way for the American Union to solve this problem and that is by following the example set by her elder sister, the Swiss Union, which, although so small, is always ready to make every sacrifice for the benefit of the suffering.

SPOKESMEN FOR IRELAND.

Are They Not the Majority of the People Who Live There?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you permit me to examine Kuno Meyer's attempt to "correct" another's view of the Irish disturbance?

In effect he contends that, as England and Ireland have had certain differences, their interests in the war must be on opposite sides. If so, how can the Allies be united, several of them having differed heretofore on other matters—or how can different people, lacking accord on some things, have a single interest against certain other forms of plague as well as that of Germania?

What assurance attaches to the alleged pro-Irish declaration by Germany stronger than the memorable "scrap of paper" demonstration of the quality of German fidelity?

Why should not the people of Ireland be the sole spokesmen of her policy rather than persons who mostly have never seen her shores, and don't intend to, whose sole interest in the matter is the hugging of an ancient hate, long overdue for decent burial, and so treated by those really concerned? The propaganda of this section has been signally and consistently spurned by the people of Ireland and their chosen leaders, one of the most noted of whom memorably named them "the organized ignorance."

When and if a majority of the people of Ireland proclaim a yearning for German victory, with the attendant perpetuation of agony to other peoples, some of them Ireland's historical and cherished friends, then Kuno Meyer's "correction" might be a little less "flagrant" than his charge of that quality against the absolutely truthful view he claims to "correct," but only discloses his dislike of, by a perversion of reason so transparent as even his eminent prestige in other domains cannot mitigate.

Meantime Ireland gives strongly contrary expressions of her policy through her people's self-chosen public bodies, including the corporation of her capital city, as it might be expected Kuno Meyer would still remember.

J. C. GALLAGHER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is a delightful naivete in Professor Kuno Meyer's criticism of Susan Grace Kinch's letter in your issue of yesterday's date. He states that "the German Government, at the instance of the late Sir Roger Casement, issued a proclamation in which it is explicitly stated that Germany does not regard Ireland as a hostile country." Does a "proclamation" come under the same heading as a "scrap of paper"? The position of Ireland as a base for a German invasion of England would not be an enviable one, and it would be interesting to imagine the value of a "proclamation" with the "distressful country" as a harbor for a German Army Corps. The extraordinary affection that Germany has shown for Ireland since the war rings somewhat false to the ears of any one who knows anything about the administration of German Poland.

A Victory for Labor?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is quite likely that organized labor will interpret the recent enactment of the eight-hour law as an epoch-making victory for its own cause. To be sure, the spectacle of a handful of brotherhood leaders, representing a doubtful fraction of our interstate railroad operatives, driving a much-harassed President and a panic-stricken Congress to the frenzied passage of a bill concerning whose merits the unnerved lawmakers confess themselves utterly "in the dark," whose wisdom is gravely questioned, whose very constitutionality is held in doubt, may well bring a smile of triumph to the lips of the proletariat. But the neutral citizen, mindful of the ideals of the Republic, tenderly cherished for 130 years, cannot view the Government's reluctant and humiliating compliance without the gravest feelings of regret—and alarm.

Neither Congress nor yet the President merit blame for their part in the work. Their motive was frankly announced—to save the nation from a stupendous calamity whose seriousness the people themselves did not begin to understand. In the belief that only their prompt obedience to labor's demands could avert a nation-wide strike, the legislators willingly sacrificed party interests, personal pride, and even traditional dignity on the altar of the national good.

It now remains the paramount duty of Congress at its very next session to secure itself and the country at large, by appropriate legislation, against a return of so regrettable a show of class tyranny.

The brotherhoods have won a doubtful victory, but organized labor has lost many of its stanchest friends.

A TARIFF AFTER THE WAR

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some Republicans, Mr. Hughes among others, are advocating the election of themselves on the ground that a higher protective tariff is needed in order to prevent Europeans selling goods to us "after the war." Do these Republicans mean that if, after the war, the people of poor, stricken Belgium or heroic France or brave Britain (not to mention other countries) have any goods to sell we ought to be ready with a higher protective tariff enacted by the next Congress to say to the widows and orphans, the maimed and blind soldiers, the bereaved fathers and mothers and wives and daughters, who have given their strong young men in this awful war in order that liberty and righteousness and love may prevail on the earth, instead of might and cruelty—to say to them, we Americans have grown rich out of the war, you have paid us billions of dollars for our goods, you have sent us hundreds of millions of gold, and you owe us also hundreds of millions of debt, and we are rich and prosperous and also secure in our lives and liberties because your brave men gave their lives and your noble women endured awful sufferings, and to carry on the war you bought our goods at high prices; but we are so mean and greedy and hard-hearted and have so little interest in your heroic sufferings for humanity that we have erected a tariff wall to prevent you from selling any goods here "after the war"? Will the men and women of America say that to the poor, bleeding, exhausted people of Belgium, France, Great Britain, Italy, or Russia? Not so long as Americans have any manhood or womanhood left. We as a people are not sunk so low in greed as that, and we do not so little appreciate that the Allies in this war have been fighting our battles for liberty and democracy on the earth.

If the Republican Party has fallen so low as that, then, indeed, it has been a "party of organized greed," if not a "party of organized ignorance." But the men and women of this country, and especially the men who work hard for their daily bread and who by their own hardships and sufferings in life know how to sympathize with the hardships and sufferings that the people in Europe are now enduring, will never, never want or sanction such a cold-blooded, hard-hearted proposition as to raise our already high tariff walls still higher for the special purpose of making sure that the poor, suffering peoples of Europe "after the war" shall not be able to sell any goods here, if they are fortunate enough to have any goods to sell. The workingmen of this country are not only "not merely economic units," "they are human beings," indeed, and so are the people of the country generally, whether the politicians and candidates for office are or not. Not until human sorrow ceases to have any influence on Americans will they become so inhumane as that.

Institutes for Teachers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The writer of the able editorial article which recently appeared in your paper does not understand the sentiment of the larger number of teachers. No one deplores more than the teaching body the conditions that make it necessary to keep the schools closed and the loss of time by the pupils. The institutes cannot make up for this loss of time, but they can "utilize the time of the teachers." The Board of Education states that teachers who do not attend the institutes will lose their salaries from Sept. 8 until school opens. Does this scheme consider the teacher a self-thinking person, capable of directing his energies to the best welfare of his pupils? Is he nothing but a paid employé whose time should be utilized? It is not helping the schools to place the status of the teacher as so much time given, but rather the amount of work accomplished. The teacher would gladly give up the short holidays and spend more hours outside for the extra two weeks which the board plans to utilize.

Help for a Needy Family.

Not all the heroism of today is being shown on the battlefields of Europe or in the homes of those left behind. Tony M., a slender but fine-looking lad of 16 years, and Nick, his brother, a year and a half younger, are the only support of their mother and four smaller brothers and sisters. The rent of $14 a month, the clothes that will wear out, the coal and other necessities would hang like a heavy cloud over the lads if help were not given. For many months the Charity Organization Society has met these deficiencies, encouraged their efforts toward a real home, and is looking out for better openings for the boys. During the coming year aid must still be given, and an earnest appeal is made for help in raising the $350 needed. Gifts for this should be sent to the office at 105 East Twenty-second Street, and will be promptly acknowledged. A contribution of $5 from Mrs. J. Lewis Hamar in response to a previous appeal for another family is acknowledged with thanks.

OSBORNE AIMS FIGHT AT STATE OFFICERS

WOULD STOP RECURRENCE

Karlin, Who Started Washington County Grand Jury Inquiry, Expects Indictments by Friday.

Three State officials will face indictments charging conspiracy and perjury if Warden Thomas Mott Osborne of Sing Sing Prison is successful in his attempt to bring to justice the members of the so-called Prison Ring who, he charges, conceived and directed the effort to ruin him last Spring by occasioning his indictment on charges of prison mismanagement, perjury, and personal immorality. Other men who formerly held State offices as well as convicts and ex-convicts will be involved in the charges if Mr. Osborne accomplishes his purpose.

Alexander Karlin, counsel for the Warden, said yesterday he hoped the first of these indictments would be found by Friday of this week. It was Mr. Karlin who gave District Attorney Wyman H. Bascom the information on which the Washington County Grand Jury has begun and investigation in Salem, N. Y., and Mr. Karlin believes it is sufficient to warrant indictments.

Mr. Karlin said Warden Osborne had worked for six months to obtain the information on which Mr. Bascom is now at work, and his efforts had convinced him that State officials outside the Prison Department had had a hand in the plot to "get" him.

"Mr Osborne is not seeking the indictment of convicts and ex-convicts primarily," said Mr. Karlin. "He wants to show the people of New York just what was done to embarrass a State official and to prevent a recurrence in his case or that of any other official. Some of his information has been gathered from public records and involves State office holders and ex-State office holders, as well as convicts and former prison inmates.

"The public has heard much of the alleged ring responsible for the persecution of Mr. Osborne, and now the public is to learn the facts. Sensational exposures may be expected, as no one will be spared in the investigation that has been started in Washington County."

Mr. Karlin explained that the investigation was being made by a Washington County Grand Jury because Mr. Osborne charged that the plot to oust him had been hatched in Great Meadow Prison, in Washington County. He said he would go to Salem tomorrow to present additional evidence to the District Attorney.

He declined to identify any of the persons at whom the investigation was aimed. He was reminded that State Superintendent of Prisons John B. Riley had been removed by Gov. Whitman after charges had been made that he had attempted to influence witnesses in the Osborne case by ordering them transferred from Sing Sing. Patrick H. MacDonald, who was tried on a charge of assault on Warden Osborne, was Mr. Riley's confidential agent. But Mr. Karlin refused to comment on these facts. It is known, however, that Mr. Osborne considers William J. Cummins, former head of the Carnegie Trust Company and now an inmate of Great Meadows, was a prime mover against him.

It is known, too, that among those to be called before the Salem Grand Jury will be some who were important witnesses before the Westchester Grand Jury which found the indictments against Osborne.

Some of Mr. Osborne's friends are said to have advised that Gov. Whitman be asked to order an investigation of the part played by District Attorney Frederick E. Weeks of Westchester County in the prosecution of Mr. Osborne, but it is understood this phase of the situation will be governed largely by what may be brought out before the Washington County Grand Jury.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Sept 5.—Warden Osborne declined today to discuss the case, except to say he would testify if called on.

It was learned that the habeas corpus writs for the production of five inmates of the prison in the county Court House of Salem were issued by Supreme Court Justice Henry V. Barst, but the Warden again declined to make public the names of the prisoners summoned.

Day-Kearny Wedding on Sept. 19.

The marriage of Miss Gertrude Smedberg Kearny, a daughter of the late Captain George H. Kearny, United States Navy, and Osborne Atwater Day, a New Haven lawyer, whose family have for generations resided in that city, will take place on Tuesday, Sept. 19, in Trinity Church, New Haven. Miss Kearny is related to the Kearny, Watts, Smedberg, and Renwick families of New York and a number of guests will go from this city to the wedding. Miss Kearny will have her sister, Miss Isabel M. Kearny, as her maid of honor and only attendant. Another sister married Professor James Farley McClennand of Yale University in 1912. Mr. Day's ushers have been selected from his fellow students of Yale.

Russ-Eisenbast Wedding.

The marriage of Daniel C. Russ of New Orleans and Miss Kathrine Eisenbast, formerly a teacher in Public School 50, the Bronx, was held yesterday at the home of the bride's father, John Eisenbast, 702 St. Ann's Avenue, the Bronx, the Rev. Dr. Bertram of St. Ann's Episcopal Church officiating. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Anna Eisenbast. Mr. Russ's best man was Edward Delano, a cousin of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Russ will spend their honeymoon in Virginia.

CITY HONORS LAFAYETTE.

French Ambassador and Prominent Citizens Speakers Today.

Lafayette Day will be observed today throughout the city. The chief exercises will be held at the City Hall this afternoon. The French Ambassador, the guest of honor, will reach the city from Boston at 3 o'clock, accompanied by Mme. Jusserand and his staff, and the Consul General and his staff. They will be met by the committee of which William D. Guthrie is the Chairman, and will proceed to City Hall accompanied by a mounted police escort.

The Mayor and other city officials will receive them and Judge Alton B. Parker will preside at the exercises. Robert Bacon, former Ambassador to France, and Dr. John H. Finley, head of the State Board of Education, are to be speakers. The Lafayette Fund has put on sale tricolored Lafayette buttons. A dinner will be held this evening at the Waldorf-Astoria, when the principal speaker will be Ambassador Jusserand.

MRS. V. W. HALL ENGAGED.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eliot B. Whiting to Wed Philip Reed.

Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Butler Whiting of 112 Riverside Drive have announced the engagement of their daughter, Mrs. Virginia Whiting Hall, to Philip Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis S. Reed of Omaha, Neb.

Mrs. Hall is a granddaughter of the late F. H. N. Whiting, and is a sister of Lieutenants Kenneth and F. E. M. Whiting, U. S. N. It was Lieutenant Kenneth Whiting who startled the naval authorities in the Summer of 1909 by allowing himself to be shot out of a torpedo tube of a submerged submarine, in Manila Bay.

Mr. Reed is a graduate of Harvard, and is associated with the National City Bank of this city.

The wedding is to take place very shortly.

Perdue-Bartlett Wedding.

Miss Eleanor C. Bartlett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus Clay Bartlett of Chicago, and Dr. William Perdue of Mobile, Ala., were married at noon yesterday in the Church of the Heavenly Rest. The Right Rev. Junius M. Horner, Bishop of Ashoville, N. C., officiated.

The wedding was a quiet one and was attended only by relatives. There were no attendants.

The bride and her parents have been residing at the Hotel Biltmore for some time. Dr. Perdue is a well-known eye specialist. After their honeymoon the couple will live in Mobile.

Ex-Mayor F. W. Wurster Ill.

Frederick W. Wurster, the last Mayor of the old City of Brooklyn, was stricken with apoplexy, it was learned yesterday, while at the Belgrade Lakes, Me. His condition is so serious that his son, Frederick W. Wurster, Jr., a Lieutenant in Squadron A, First Cavalry, is hurrying from the Texas border, where he has been on duty. Mr. Wurster is 66 years old. He is in the iron business and is a member of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club of Greenwich, Conn., the New York Yacht Club, and the Hanover Club.

A Son in Francis H. Geer's Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis H. Geer are being congratulated upon the birth of a son last week at Morristown, N. J. Mrs. Geer was Miss Helen Hartley Jenkins and Mr. Geer is the son of the Rev. Dr. William Montague Geer, vicar of St. Paul's Chapel, Lower Broadway, where the marriage of Miss Jenkins and Mr. Geer was solemnized last year.

Acknowledgments.

THE NEW YORK TIMES acknowledges receipt of $1.90 from "P. E. H." and $3 from "J. E. H." for the Summer home of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor. THE TIMES also acknowledges receipt of $10 from "W. D. F." for the Anti-Suffrage Military Relief Committee. This amount has been forwarded to Mrs. Nelson Henry, Chairman.

P. A. VALENTINE LEFT $10,000,000 ESTATE

Son Will Receive $1,000,000 When He Is 21 and Bulk of Property at 25.

NOTHING TO STEPCHILDREN

The will of Patrick Anderson Valentine of 8 East Sixty-ninth Street, who died at his Summer home, Danforth Lodge, Oconomowoc, Wis., at the age of 55 years, disposes of an estate estimated at more than $10,000,000. Mr. Valentine was for many years fiscal agent for Armour & Co. in Chicago and in 1905 came to New York because the interests of the company in the East required him to take up his residence here. He married the widow of his most intimate friend, P. D. Armour, Jr.

Mr. Valentine left only one child, Patrick Anderson Valentine, Jr., to whom he gave the bulk of his estate. He left nothing to his stepchildren, Philip D. Armour, 3d, and Lester Armour, but they inherited fortunes under the will of their father. Mrs. Mary Lester Valentine, the widow, who got a bequest estimated at $8,000,000 from her former husband, receives one-third of her husband's estate and the contents of the residence at 8 East Sixty-ninth Street.

The son, Patrick Anderson Valentine, Jr., receives two-thirds of the residuary estate, which is left in sole charge of his mother, with power to invest the funds as she sees fit. Her son, who is now 13 years old, is to receive $1,000,000 outright when he is 21, and the remainder of the bequest when he reaches the age of 25. His mother is permitted to expend such amount of the income as she chooses for his maintenance and education until he reaches his majority.

The only other bequests set aside in the will are $100,000 each to the decedent's brothers, Alister I. and Gordon Valentine of Chicago, and his sister, Clara J. Wilson of London. The will was made in 1905.

Mr. Valentine had accumulated a small fortune before he became identified with the Armour interests, but when he sought the aid of the late Philip D. Armour he had suffered a series of reverses on the Chicago Board of Trade and the New York Stock Exchange. His ability finally made him Mr. Armour's confidential adviser, and he won back more than he had lost. His wife before her marriage to Mr. Armour was Miss May Lester, daughter of John T. Lester and sister of Mrs. W. Vernon Booth. He married her in New York on March 8, 1902. His Chicago residence was at 3,700 Michigan Avenue, and, with the residence of J. Ogden Armour adjoining, it occupied an entire block.

Mr. Valentine was a member of the Union League, Metropolitan, New York Yacht, and Lotos Clubs in New York and of the leading clubs in Chicago. At the time of his death he was Director of the National City Bank and the Central Trust Company and Chairman of the board of the Central Leather Company.

Obituary Notes.

HENRY VARMAN FREEMAN, for seventeen years Judge of the Appellate and Superior Courts of Chicago, died today on a train on which he was going to his Summer home in Harbor Springs, Mich. He was 74 years old and was Professor of Law at the University of Chicago. In June, 1898, he became Presiding Judge of the Appellate Court.

FREDERICK W. KRAFT, known as the "Old Tanner," died on Monday at his home in Bronxville, in his eighty-second year. He perfected and owned a secret process for tanning piano leather, and was reputed to be worth $500,000.

Mrs. THOMAS O'CONNELL, wife of the Town Clerk of North Hempstead, died yesterday in the Nassau County Hospital at Mineola, L. I. Mrs. O'Connell was 25 years of age and before her marriage was Miss Mae Kiley of Brooklyn. Her home was at Manhasset.

Mrs. SABRA L. DURYEA, 70 years old, widow of Nicholas Livingston Duryea died on Monday at the home of her daughter in Bayside, L. I. Mrs. Duryea formerly for fifty years lived in New Lots, where she was a member of the Dutch Reformed Church.

Mrs. ELLEN ELIZABETH BOERUM, wife of Henry Boerum, is dead at her home, 1,009 East Ninety-sixth Street, Canarsie, leaving a son and two daughters.

MANUEL A. IRELAND, a letter carrier for many years and a member of Ceres Lodge 25, I. O. O. F.; Old Glory Council 72, Junior O. U. A. M., and the S. S. Cox Branch 41, N. A. L. C., died on Monday in the Kings County Hospital. He was born in Brooklyn fifty-one years ago and lived at 76 Railroad Avenue, that borough. His wife and son survive him.

ISIDOR FELBER, proprietor of the Monroe House at Lexington, Greene County, N. Y., died there on Monday, and the funeral will be held from his late residence, 223 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, today. Mr. Felber was born sixty-four years ago in Austria and was a member of Cambridge Lodge 662, F. and A. M. He left a widow, three sons, and a daughter.

REINSTATE WESTERN UNION.

Pennsylvania Railroad to Do Business with Both Telegraph Cos.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5.—After fifteen years of exclusion from the patronage of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Western Union Telegraph Company is again to do business with the great railroad corporation. The present exclusive contract between the Pennsylvania and the Postal Telegraph Company, which expires on June 25 next, is not to be renewed.

The Western Union, which once did all the telegraph business for the Pennsylvania Railroad, lost the contract during the Presidency of the late Alexander J. Cassatt, who after an angry difference with the Western Union officials had all the corporation's poles along the lines of the Pennsylvania system cut down.

The new policy will be to divide the business between the two telegraph companies.

ADMIRAL PRITCHARD DEAD.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 5.—Rear Admiral Arthur J. Pritchard, U. S. N., retired, for more than thirty years connected with the Paymaster's Department, died here tonight in his eighty-first year. He entered the navy as an Assistant Paymaster in 1861, three years later being promoted to Paymaster.

Admiral Pritchard served with Farragut during 1861-63, and took part in the engagements on the Mississippi River. During 1862 he was wounded and incapacitated for seven months. Following this he served on various stations and a number of vessels, his last post being at the Navy Yard in Norfolk, Va. He retired in 1898, and was made a Rear Admiral in 1906.

Admiral Pritchard was a member of the Loyal Legion, the G. A. R., and of the Union League and Republican Clubs of this city.

Florence Reed, Actress, Dies.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Sept. 5.—Florence Reed, an actress of a generation ago and the youngest sister of the late Roland Reed, the comedian, died this morning in a little house at 908 Wood Street. A policeman passing the house saw an old woman crying bitterly in the doorway. She was Laura Reed, Roland Reed's eldest sister. She told the policeman that her sister, Florence, had just died and that she was all alone and didn't know what to do. The sisters had been living together for years in comfort through the generosity of their niece, Florence Reed, a prominent actress, who recently married Malcolm Williams, a moving picture star.

WILLIAMS BRINGS NATIONAL TENNIS TITLE EAST AGAIN

CONDITION TELLS IN END

JOHNSTON GETS TWO SETS

In Fifth He Leads, 3-0—Score Is 4-6, 6-4, 0-6, 6-2, 6-4—Williams Good at All Points.

Amid the plaudits of 9,000 people, a new champion was raised to the pinnacle of tennis fame yesterday afternoon on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills when Richard Norris Williams, 2d, of Philadelphia, title holder in 1914, forced the abdication of William M. Johnston of San Francisco in the final round of this season's tournament. Only after a wondrous five-set match did the balance turn in favor of the Philadelphian and against the representative from the Golden Gate, and while the glory of achievement belongs to Williams, Johnston can take to himself a full measure of praise for the stand which he made to retain the crown. The verdict in favor of the new champion was recorded at 4—6, 6—4, 0—6, 6—2, 6—4, but these bare figures can never give testimony of the mighty struggle which was waged, of the varying fortunes of the conflict, which gripped the heart by its intensity.

Beside the victory of Williams stands the spirit of Johnston in defeat. The champion of a year ago must have known in that last set that his strength was unequal to the task of conquering the confident Williams; he must have realized it just as did the spectators, who could see the power of his game diminishing, ever so slightly to be sure, but still enough to indicate impending disaster. But Johnston fought on with the fine courage that is his, struggling against the impossible with a flash in his eye and a smile on his lips, and when the last point had been recorded he gave of his ebbing strength to jump across the net and congratulate his triumphant rival. Williams, too, was spent, although there had been little reflection of it in his play. He lay on the grass beside the court for several minutes following the close of the struggle, and then victor and vanquished linked arms and made their way to the clubhouse, while the spectators shouted their applause.

Johnston Rules the Favorite.

It was the climax of one of the most thrilling matches that ever marked the winning of a national championship. Prior to the contest Johnston ruled the favorite, partly from the fact that he was the champion and partly because he showed such astonishingly good tennis against Lindley Murray the day before. But there were plenty of supporters of Williams, who had scored a victory over the Californian in the East vs. West matches. Every indication, however, pointed to a struggle that would be memorable in the annals of tennis, and the fulfillment was realized. Not even the Davis Cup matches supplied more electrifying moments, and there was one whose knowledge of tennis has been gained from actual playing experience who said that McLoughlin at his best could not have vanquished either Williams or Johnston as these two played yesterday. However that may be, the match surely reached a plane which is seldom seen in any tournament.

It was a battle of speed and wits and infinite skill with the racquet, and the margin of difference was ever so slight. Near the end it was condition which told the story. Johnston could not maintain the pace. His slight figure tired under the strain, and Williams snatched away the coveted honor.

There was not so large a crowd present as at the semi-final round matches on Monday, but it was a better-ordered gathering. The partisanship which has run so high in some matches was in large part lacking, or, if present, it was not expressed in discrimination of one or the other player. Of applause there was plenty, but it volleyed from stand to stand and back again with equal favor according to which one made the shot that pleased.

Final Set Most Spectacular.

It was the final set which gripped the interest by supplying the most spectacular tennis in the test which was to give victory to one and accord defeat to the other. Johnston made his supreme struggle at the start, and before he could attain success fatigue set upon him, and he was unable to fight off the rally which was staged by Williams, who was already beginning to feel the flush of victory.

The fifth set opened with Johnston running off a three-game advantage, and the spectators gasped at the speed of his play. He seemed endowed with greater skill than ever, and Williams found himself unable to stem the aggression. But with three games to his credit Johnston snapped. The fire and dash of his earlier play slowly vanished, and Williams came forth in the light of conqueror. There was no slackening of his effort, and by a brilliant endeavor he cut down Johnston's lead. One game fell to his lot, then another, and when the third, which tied the score, was decided, the enthusiasm was unconfined. Williams was going at top speed, and it became apparent that Johnston was weakening. After the score had been tied, Johnston sat down on a nearby chair for a moment of rest.

Under the impetus of his successful effort Williams played with more abandon and succeeded in breaking through Johnston's service and winning the next game on his own. This gave him a lead of 5—3, with only a moment or two more until he should realize the fruits of victory.

Williams's Fervor Almost Fatal.

But just here Johnston rallied. He dashed a more successful game against the encroachment by Williams and won his own service without difficulty, but it was partly because Williams was over-eager to end the struggle. The Philadelphian was showing his first trace of excitement, and it proved fatal in attempting to handle Johnston's service.

Bringing the set to 5—4, although it was still in favor of Williams, seemed to put new life in Johnston, and he made a fight that was amazing in the final game. Williams raced away to a 40—0 advantage before Johnston could recover himself, but then he gathered his strength to send across two placement points, one a lob that nicked the baseline and the other a stroke that passed Williams on his backhand.

Johnston now made his supreme stand, a struggle that won for him the heart of every one in the big stands at either side. He battled with all his strength, with all the skill of his earlier play, to break through the service of Williams that he might carry the set to deuce, for even now all thought of victory had not been banished. He was hoping against hope and the spectators were with him. Twice the vantage rested with Williams but Johnston always drew it back to deuce. An out by Williams off his backhand gave the third vantage point to the Californian but Williams drove a placement down to one corner and Johnston lost his racquet in the plucky endeavor to make a return.

The end, however, was just a little way ahead. The Coast star drove a backhand stroke off service out of court and the match closed when he netted on another backhand shot, this also off service. The championship had been won and the East can now rejoice in having the crown on the Atlantic seaboard instead of in far-off California.

Although he had suffered one of the keenest disappointments of his career, Johnston showed not the slightest trace of chagrin as he came off the court. He was even jaunty, taking defeat in the part of a perfect sportsman who acknowledges the superiority of an opponent without one tinge of bitterness. The spectators sensed this and their cheers were as much for the vanquished as for the new champion.

Resemblance in Pair's Play.

To attain his victory Williams was forced to show a standard of play which he never reaches except under the stress of the closest competition. The two men were perfectly matched, and in their play itself there was a striking resemblance. Neither is the impetuous net player McLoughlin was in his prime, or which some of the Californians and some of the Easterners are now. During much of the time the play was from the baseline, for neither contestant would attempt the forecourt unless the opening was apparent and so well defined that passing strokes from the other side of the net were discounted. When they did come to the net, however, there was usually the finishing off of the point by whichever one attained the position, but neither advanced much inside the service line unless it was to make a smashing stroke.

The play sparkled at all times. Each was putting the full force of his skill to the test from the instant the contest started, and the driving, half volleying and volleying was a revelation of the heights to which real tennis can attain. The rallies were not long, for a quick finishing off of the point was the objective with both Williams and Johnston, but some of them were sustained to the point that applause broke from the stands before the count was lost or won. These infringements against the warning of Umpire Edward Conlin not to applaud until a point was actually closed were spontaneous and in a measure excusable under the spell of such play as was being evidenced.

Weather Conditions Ideal.

Conditions for the match were ideal. The weather was warm, but not too warm, and the rays of the sun were made a little less intense by the haze of the afternoon. Just before the match started clouds loomed up on the horizon and a thunderstorm was feared, but fortunately the clouds broke away. The two contestants came on the court sharply at 3:30, the time appointed, and after a few minutes of preliminary practice the match was under way.

Johnston started service and its effectiveness which was to show later in the match was indicated on the first stroke by Williams. He sent the return out of court but followed with a placement after a remarkable get, the stroke being made off his backhand. The Philadelphian drove out for the next point and then Johnston whipped through a forehand drive to Williams's backhand, which went for a placement. On the last point for the game Johnston played one of his opponent's soft strokes over for a placement. There was no more difficulty experienced by Williams in winning his service, Johnston having a deal of trouble in handling the stinging shots. Williams's points in this game were in three instances made on Johnston's errors off service, and the fourth was a backhand stroke that he played to Johnston's feet as the latter came to the net.

A merry battle followed for the third game, the contest going twice to deuce before the Californian could make good on his own service. Williams was leading in this game at 40—15, but the Californian, under the danger of being broken through, put more pace in his service, and there was a corresponding decrease in Williams's effectiveness. The last three points which gave the game to Johnston were all errors off service by Williams.

Another deuce game followed on Williams's service. The Philadelphian was leading at 40—15, only to have Johnston creep up as a result of two errors by himself, one a double fault. On the vantage point Johnston came to the forecourt and tried to kill a lob, but drove out. Another out followed. The next two games also followed service, and they were quickly played, hardly a rally being in evidence. During the eighth game Johnston was unsteady and three nets and out by him gave Williams the game without serious opposition. The same was true of Johnston's service as related to Williams. The latter tried to come to the forecourt to volley, but the ball was sent out of court. Once more Williams attempted the net, and this time Johnston burned over one of his forehand cross-courting drives, which always brought unstinted applause. Johnston volleyed out from the forecourt after a sharp rally, and then Williams gave him two points for the game, both on outs.

First Set Is Johnston's.

With the score 5 to 4 in Johnston's favor, it was a critical moment for the Philadelphian. He netted the first return of service off his backhand and was caught out of position by one of Johnston's forehand drives on the second. A net of another backhand stroke made the score 40 to 0 against him. There was an out off service by Johnston, but the Californian was only momentarily halted, for he drove a sharp stroke to Williams's backhand, and the latter netted in attempting the return.

The fact that this first set had turned against Williams did not betoken any serious weakness in his game, but it certainly did give the appearance of victory for Johnston. It had taken just seventeen minutes to conclude this opening encounter, which gives an idea of how fast the play was. What did portend ill-fortune for Williams was the manner in which the second set started, for Johnston opened by winning his own service and then breaking through that of the Philadelphian in a deuce encounter. For those whose hopes, and perhaps some of their money, were pinned to the play of Williams this was discouraging, for one breaking through had been enough to determine the first set, and it was not at all improbable that such might prove to be the case in the second set. The alarm, however, was needless as after events proved.

Williams was broken through, partly on his own errors, but they were not flagrant ones, being induced somewhat by the play of Johnston. A double fault on the vantage game came at a critical moment, and Johnston made the decision in his favor sure by slashing a return of service down the lines for a placement. The Philadelphian probably feared the loss of service less than any of his supporters. He set out to retrieve himself in the third game and did it so well that Johnston could not even make a substantial fight. Three placements, the first two off service and the third a cross courting stroke off a forehand drive, were almost enough to cause the overthrow of Johnston, and when an out by Johnston, after the first return of service, followed, the damage for the Californian was complete. Williams evened matters by taking his own service, but only after a hard deuce struggle. The vantage point went to Johnston when a footfault was called against Williams on his second service, but the Quaker City man won with a kill of one of Johnston's lobs that fell in the forecourt. The vantage point was three times with Williams before he could place the game to his credit.

Service Battles Follow.

The six games which followed saw a battle sharply waged in which every effort was bent toward the breaking through of service by the rival men or the holding of service, as the case might be. The fifth game went to Johnston on his own service at love and again the struggle was at Williams's door. Johnston led at 40—30 as a result of two placements and a net by Williams of an overhead stroke to kill, but at this critical moment the Philadelphian burned over one of his service aces to bring it to deuce. Johnston made an out off service on the vantage point and was the victim of a cross courting volley on one of the best contested points in the match. It came after Johnston had driven what ordinarily would have been a placement, but Williams succeeded in getting to the ball and stinging it back for a placement.

In the seventh game Johnston again had an easy time in winning his own service. Williams was having some difficulty in sending his strokes true at this point, his half volley being particularly weak, and his backhand, which had been strong, showed signs of failing him. Three of Johnston's points were on nets by his opponent and the other was an out off service. The eighth game, however, found the lapses far less apparent. Johnston could do nothing against the brilliant stroking by his Eastern rival. Williams scored the first point on a kill after two wonderful returns by Johnston when he was out of position. There was a net of a kill by Williams, the only point that Johnston gained, and then Williams threw all of his stamina into the game and closed it out to his credit. This was the first time in this set that he had won with ease on service.

It was the forerunner of what was to succeed, for the ninth game found Johnston weakening before the spirited endeavor of his antagonist, and he was forced to relinquish service. Leading at 30—15, Johnston doubled faulted. The call of it was late, in fact not until after there had been a second playing of the ball by him, and this upset his game a bit. Williams passed him with a forehand drive down the lines, and on the last point Johnston volleyed out after being drawn off balance. Johnston started well toward retrieving in the tenth game and led at 30—0 on Williams's service. Williams closed out the set, however, at 6—4. This set took twenty minutes to bring to a conclusion.

Johnston Wins Third, a Love Set.

The third set was a remarkable display of strength on the part of Johnston which boded ill for Williams. The new champion was broken through three times on his own service, Johnston crushing his way ahead by sheer force of play. It was a love set against Williams, and although several of the games were carried to deuce the Californian was always able to supply the necessary skill and strength to win his way forward. Johnston started service and carried off the first game by sharp placing. In the next Williams started with a double fault, which was an inauspicious beginning, as the outcome proved. The Philadelphian relinquished his service without much of a struggle, his forehand accounting for two of the errors which piled up against him.

In the third game the Californian raced away to a 40—0 advantage, when Williams braced and swept over three placements as Johnston attempted to volley from the forecourt. At 6—4 on points Johnston succeeded in pulling the game out of the fire. Williams double-faulted for the first point of the fourth game, as he had the first, and this was also true of his service in the sixth game. Johnston's placing game was too formidable for the Philadelphian, and Williams was broken through in a 5—3 contest, which was his last real effort. The final two games were easy victories for the player from the Coast, his Eastern rival getting only 1 point, a placement on a soft stroke that Johnston dropped in the forecourt.

The Philadelphian did not shine particularly during the progress of this period in the match. There was a wealth of strength in the play of the Californian, and it appeared that Williams was weakening to such an extent that he would be vulnerable in the next set.

The fourth set, however, found an absolutely different condition. Williams came to the court refreshed by the rest of seven minutes, and almost succeeded in duplicating the feat of Johnston in the third set. Johnston met with difficulty on his own service in the first game. His rival played a sharp placing game and led at 40—15. The prospect of being broken through thus early urged Johnston to greater effort in sending the ball over. The service was so well placed and sent with such speed that Williams was baffled, and Johnston obtained the game at 6—4 on points.

Williams won his own service handily by powerful forehand driving across court and down the lines, and followed by breaking through the Californian. Williams led at 40—30, but a kill by the coast star made it deuce. As in the second game the Quaker City man continued to play terrific shots off his forehand, and Johnston was unable to stem the tide. The rally by Williams predominated during the next three games, in which he scored nine placement strokes, and some of the errors by Johnston were really induced by his play. Johnston recovered long enough to win the seventh game on his own service, but Williams closed the set to his advantage on his own service at 6—2.

Johnston Rallies, But Is Fatigued.

Johnston's great rally was made at the start of the fifth set. The Californian was evidently beginning to feel the effects of the struggle and he bent all his endeavors to gaining a quick decision. Williams played well, but Johnston played better and three games were gained by the Californian. It began to be evident after this accomplishment that Johnston was not weakening. Williams won the fourth game on his own service, a service ace giving him the last point, which goes to show that there was much stamina left in his play. From this beginning Williams started out to overhaul the lead which Johnston had gained. The Californian lost his own service, which presented dangerous posibilities at this critical time in the match, and carried off his own so that the score was 3 all.

Johnston rested on a chair while Williams was moping his face with a towel, and when he came up to serve it was apparent that fatigue was now an even greater antagonist to him than Williams. On his own service the Californian succeeded in getting only one point, which was a woeful weakening of his play from that of a few minutes before.

This was the beginning of the end. Williams took his own service so that he was leading at 5—3, after having run five straight games. With defeat almost clutching him, Johnston rallied enough to take his own service, and then he set out to do what, at this stage, was almost impossible—the breaking down of Williams's service.

The Philadelphian was flushed with the sight of victory, while Johnston knew he was facing almost certain defeat. But the Westener set nobly to the task of bringing the set to deuce, and at times it almost seemed that he might succeed. Four times the set went to deuce, and then Williams was crowned the new champion when Johnston netted a drive off his backhand.

In the final round of the mixed doubles event Mrs. Barger Wallach and Dean Mathey defeated Miss Marie Wagner and Lyle E. Mahan, 6—2, 6—0.

MISS GROVE IS NET VICTOR.

Puts Coast Champion Out of Women's Open Tennis at Columbia Oval

Play started yesterday in the first annual open tennis tournament for women of the New York Lawn Tennis Club on the clay courts at Columbia Oval. Only a few matches were decided in the singles, and all of the favorites won. Miss Molla Bjurstedt, national women's champion, was among those who triumphed.

The best match of the first round resulted in the elimination of Mrs. D. P. Wood, Pacific Coast champion, by Miss Margaret Grove, the Hudson River title holder, at 12—10, 6—3. The summaries:

WOMEN'S OPEN SINGLES.—First Round—Miss Ina Kissell defeated Miss Grace Gilleadeau, 7—5, 7—5; Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Mrs. Edward Sohst, 6—0, 6—1; Miss Margaret Grove defeated Mrs. D. P. Wood, 12—10, 6—3; Mrs. Edward Lynch defeated Miss Adele Smith, 6—1, 6—4; Mrs. Ebehardt defeated Mrs. Pritchard, 6—1, 6—2; Mrs. Perry Wilbourn defeated Miss Marion Davenport, 6—2, 6—3; Miss Blanche Brine defeated Miss Madeline Lowerie, 6—0, 6—1; Miss Adele Cragin defeated Mrs. Paul Martin, 7—5, 6—1; Mrs. Carlebach defeated Miss Caroma Winn, 7—5, 6—3; Mrs. Seidenberg defeated Mrs. Parsons, 5—7, 6—2, 6—3.

Murray Forsakes New York.

Robert Lindley Murray, the Palo Alto tennis star, who has been prominent in metropolitan tennis circles during the past season, has given up his residence in Bayonne, N. J., and left last night for Niagara Falls, where he will take up his duties as a chemical engineer. Murray bade goodby to a number of his friends yesterday at Forest Hills, and remarked as he left that he hoped to be able to play in some of the tournaments in this section next year.

Miss Merritt Wins at Net.

In the tennis finals for the President's Cup yesterday on the courts of the Malba Field and Marine Club, Miss Dorothy Merritt defeated Miss Isabel Huggins, 6—3, 6—1. The first prize for men was captured by Dr. Stuart McLeod, who defeated B. M. Foster, 6—3, 6—1, 6—2.

TIGER FOOTBALL PLANS.

Squad Will Begin Work at Lake Minnewaska on Sept. 12.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 5.—Lake Minnewaska, N. Y., has been chosen by the Princeton football management for the early practice of the eleven. A baseball park will be used and temporary training arrangements are being made. The players will assemble there on Sept. 11 and work will begin the following day. The candidates will be under the personal direction of Coach John H. Rush.

The men will return to Princeton Oct. 6 for their first home game—against North Carolina—on the following day. Aside from the Holy Cross game, the playing place, of which will be definitely known in a few days, the original schedule will be carried out as follows:

Princeton vs. Holy Cross, Sept. 30; North Carolina at Princeton, Oct. 7; Tufts at Princeton, Oct. 14; Lafayette at Princeton, Oct. 21; Dartmouth at Princeton, Oct. 28; Bucknell at Princeton, Nov. 4; Harvard at Cambridge, Nov. 11, and Yale at Princeton, Nov. 18.

SIMPSON HAS 'TENNIS LEGS.'

Condition of Champion's Muscles May Affect His Running Saturday.

Bob Simpson, the University of Missouri hurdler and holder of the world's record of 14 3-5 seconds in the high hurdles, is a victim of "tennis legs." The calf muscles of the noted Western athlete are twisted like the famous sailor's knot, as the result of playing tennis for nearly two months, and it is possible that this may have a bearing on his showing in the national championships in Newark on Saturday. Simpson hopes to work the knots out of his muscles by several days of stiff training at the Weequahic Park track in Newark, where he is due today. His training will be supervised by Wilbur Hudson, coach of the Missouri A. C., who is not at all worried by Simpson's trouble, for he believes it can be overcome easily.

Other Western Association men due here today include McCawley, a 10-second sprinter of three years ago, who will endeavor to come back; Floyd, a pole vaulter; Frizell, high jumper; Mahl, sprinter; Bell, 5-miler; Hickson, hop, step and jump and running broad jumper, and Probst, a quarter and half-miler.

GIANTS HELP ROBINS TO VISIT TOP AGAIN

Dodgers Given No Quarter, but Win, 5 to 2, and Now Are Tied with Phillies for Lead.

The Dodgers, smarting under the loss of the National League lead on Labor Day, treated the Giants cruelly at the Polo Grounds yesterday by sheer strength of concentrated bat waving. They larruped out a 5 to 2 victory and climbed back in the front, which is now crowded to the limit, the Phillies being in the same upper berth. The Boston Braves have tumbled back to third.

When the Robins get their bats in action they surely do make a noise. For six innings yesterday Fred Anderson held them right under his thumb, and in the seventh Fred was knocked to smithereens in a shower of hits. Up to that time the Giants had the Dodgers 2 to 0, and a great depression came over the numerous Brooklyn fans present. So sad was it that they didn't make a peep after Benny Kauff got the second Giant tally with a home-run belt into the right-field grand stand.

If the Robins are worrying under the strain of the pennant chase, Manager Robbie doesn't show it. He still wears a uniform which took numerous extra yards of cloth to make possible of occupation. The Brooklyn fans, whose ardor slumbered through much of the game, broke out again in rabid demonstration when their pets piled up four runs in the seventh.

The Giants have been more or less rejuvenated, you can readily see that; but they broke yesterday under the same old kind of pitching that has kept them out of the hunt all season. The infield has been rebuilt and shows improvement. Heinie Zimmerman is at third and Holke, a left-handed youngster, is at first. These two new men did most of the hitting yesterday.

Lord Byron was on the umpiring job again, and can still talk to the ball players just as briskly as they can chat to him. The Brooklyn players were slow in coming to the bat between innings, so Byron said: "Come on, boys; you can't get base hits sitting on that bench."

The Giants garnered one run in the first inning. Old Jack Coombs, who was doing the firing for Brooklyn, was effective in his own slow fashion. Jack can take up more time thinking over what he is going to pitch than a woman can consume making up her mind to step off a street car. Coombs gave Burns a pass for a starter, and he stole second. Herzog was thrown out by Cutshaw. After Robertson had gone out the same way, Zimmerman got a very warm hit to short stop, and Burns scored. Zim then stole second, and Fletcher sent a single to centre. Zimmerman tried to score from second, but was tossed out at the plate by Jimmy Johnston.

The Brooklyns had a gala chance in the third, when, with two out, Daubert and Stengel singled. This action, with Wheat's pass, filled the bases. The visitors howled in their endeavor to have George Cutshaw make any old kind of a hit. Cutshaw fanned amid numerous groans.

In the fourth, Benny Kauff hit the ball into the right-field stand. The seventh inning didn't look so dangerous for Anderson. Miller was thrown out by Zim and Coombs fanned.

Then Johnston hit to left and went to third on Daubert's hit to centre. Stengel punched a single to right, scoring Johnston, and Wheat got a two-bagger to centre, the hit taking a bad bound, and Daubert and Stengel romped home. Cutshaw singled to left and counted Wheat.

Schupp was pitching for the Giants in the ninth, when, with two gone, Stengel got an infield hit. He went to third when Wheat got a double close to the right-field foul line and tallied when Fletcher dropped the relay back.

BRAVES NOW THIRD BEST.

Sink Two Notches in League Race as Phillies and Dodgers Advance.

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—The Braves dropped from first place to third and Philadelphia advanced from a second-place tie to a coupling with Brooklyn in the lead of the National League race as a result of the Phillies' 4 to 2 victory ovver Boston here today and Brooklyn's victory over New York. A second game between Boston and Philadelphia went five innings to a scoreless tie, when it was called because of darkness.

For five innings in the first game today Barnes held the Phillies to two hits, but in the sixth he was found for three bingles and a sacrifice fly, which, with a wild pitch and an error, accounted for three runs. In the second game Cravath was banished for disputing a decision at the plate. The scores:

JOHNSON APPLIES 'BRUSH TO YANKS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Walter Johnson toyed with the New York Yankees in the opening game of the series here this afternoon, allowing only one hit and striking out eight batsmen. The score was 2 to 0. Bill Donovan's invaders were helpless, not a member of the visiting crew reaching second base.

Johnson himself added to the score by jamming the ball to the left-field corner of the lot and completing the circuit for a home run. It was easily the longest clout inside the Florida Avenue inclosure this season. The ball bounded up against the bleachers and almost hopped in.

Opposed to Johnson was Nick Cullop, whom Donovan probably started because the Senators presented four left-hand batters. Cullop was reached for seven hits, but kept them well scattered. He was steady, and his mates backed him up well, two double plays helping to stave off impending trouble for the little southpaw.

Maisel was on second base, and handled himself nicely. Baker was also in the game, but failed to register a safe blow, in spite of the shouts from the crowd urging him to hit 'er over the fence.

With two down in the first inning, Peckinpaugh drew a walk, but Pipp fanned for the final out. Foster's error gave Cullop a "life" in the third, but he never saw the next sack. Oldring opened the Yank's fifth with a hit between Leonard and McBride, the only safe blow recorded by the visitors. Maisel hit into a double play and Walters filed to Smith. An error by Judge put Magee on the sacks in the sixth, but he was thrown out stealing, and after this inning Johnson sent the Yanks back to the bench as fast as they came to bat.

The Statesmen could do little with Cullop until the fifth, when the first run of the game went over. Smith had fanned, when Shanks poked a single to left and stole second. Judge walked, and then along came McBride with a double along the left-field foul line, scoring Shanks. Henry flied to Magee, and Judge was doubled at the plate.

Leonard and Foster both singled in turn to start the Senators' sixth, and when Maisel tossed out Foster at second Leonard pulled up on third. A double steal was attempted, but Leonard was caught at the plate, and kicked so strenuously at Umpire Evans's decision that the youngster was put out of the game. Way Morgan replaced him. Johnson's home run came in the eighth.

RED SOX IN EVEN BREAK.

Macks Take First Game by 5 to 2, but Boston Gets Next by 7 to 1.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5.—Boston broke even in a doule-header here today, Philadelphia winning the first game by 5 to 2, and the visitors the second by 7 to 1. In the opening event Philadelphia bunted repeatedly on Shore and Ruth, six of their hits being safe bunts, and these tactics won the contest. In the second game Myers twice filled the bases. Then by hitting a batsman, which was followed each time by a single and an error, three runs were scored in both cases. The scores:

ATHLETES TEST TRACK.

Los Angeles Men Try Newark Title Course and Call It Slow.

Six Los Angeles athletes, all representatives of the Los Angeles A. C., yesterday made their first test of the Weequahic Park field in Newark on which the national senior championships will be contested on Saturday. The men, who were piloted East by Robert Weaver, President of the Southern Pacific Association of the A. A. U., are Fred Kelly, Ompic high hurdles champion; Earl Thompson, who has twice beaten Kelly this year and has been beaten twice in return; Karl Nippe, a walker; Fred Watkins, a pole vaulter; Verle Murray, a hurdler from Whittier College, and Roy Bagnard, discus thrower and all around athlete. With the exception of Murray all of the Los Angeles athletes are in the best physical shape, and look it. Murray developed an abscess in his right ear on the way across the country, and while handicapped by it now he should be in condition by Saturday.

Kelly, Thompson, and Murray stretched their legs with a few practise spins over the hurdles. None of them tried the full distance, but Thompson showed enough speed to establish himself as a great hurdler. The track appeared somewhat slow to them, but will be much faster for the championships, as it is now undergoing a course of preparation calculated to increase its speed. Frederick W. Rubien visited the track yesterday.

Nippe, a short, stocky pedestrian who seems to have plenty of speed and just the build for stamina, dug his spikes into the cinders for about a mile and then retired. Watkins confined his efforts to a little vaulting for distance, but had no uprights to clear. Bagnard took a dozen tosses of the discus and called it a day's work. All of the men are pretty fine so far as their condition goes and are afraid to overdo themselves.

Other arrivals are Don Scott of the Mississippi Agricultural College, strong candidate for the half-mile senior title, and Dana Jenkins, a sprinter from New Orleans. These men are accompanied by R. L. Di Bendetteo, Secretary-Treasurer of the Southern Association of the A. A. U., and G. Gornley, an old Boston athlete, who is their trainer.

The first Western athlete to try out the Weequahic Park cinderpath was C. A. Hoenisch of San Francisco, who will compete in the middle distance events without club affiliation. Hoenisch arrived here alone on Sunday, and Monday was out in running costume on the track.

YALE PLAYERS ASSEMBLE.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 5.—Yale's football clan began gathering this noon, but less than a dozen had arrived tonight. Captain Black, athletic organizer; Michael F. Sweeney, and Trainer John Mack met the candidates. Only three attempted any exercise. They were Rex Hutchinson, fullback for the Freshmen two years ago, and a member of the ineligible eleven of last season; Galt, of the Freshmen last year and a strong candidate for tackle this Fall, and Stewart, substitute halfback for two seasons.

Walter Camp, after a two-year absence, visited Yale field to direct preparations for the reception of the players tomorrow when registration will be completed. Head Coach Tad Jones arrived late tonight. It is planned for the squad to begin field work and to organize a training table on Thursday.

CORNELL CANCELS GAME.

Paralysis Epidemic Also Causes Football Practice to be Put Off.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 5.—The Cornell University athletic authorities today decided to postpone the beginning of football practice this Fall for at least one week and maybe longer, because of the infantile paralysis situation. The tentative date for beginning practice is now Sept. 25 instead of Sept. 18, as originally planned, and it is possible that a later date may be substituted. A short time ago the university authorities decided to postpone the opening of the university for two weeks, to the week of Oct. 9 instead of the week of Sept. 25.

Graduate Manager Kent said today that the first game of the season, with Oberlin on Sept. 30, has been canceled and there is a possibility that the second contest, with Gettysburg, will also be called off. Coach Al Sharpe was not present at the conference today, but he agreed to the decision. Letters will be sent to all of the candidates urging them to get into training at once to be ready for hard practice.

Britton Outpoints Welling.

Denning Returns to Ring Tonight.

Jack Denning, the west side middleweight, who has been out of ring competition for several years, will attempt a "come back" this evening at the Pioneer Sporting Club in West Forty-fourth Street, where he is scheduled to oppose Eddie Nugent, the Nutley, N. J., boxer, in a ten-round bout. Denning's chief claim to prominence is his victory over Mike Gibbons at a local club several years ago, but he was later beaten in a return encounter. He has since been boxing instructor at the City A. C.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Sept. 5.—Southerners and Westerners occupied the centre of the stage in the first round matches for the national amateur golf championship over the east course of the Merion Cricket Club today, but when the smoke of battle had cleared away it was seen that the Eastern forces had made steady progress and were almost uniformly successful.

Chick Evans, national open champion, disposed of Nelson Miles Whitney, former Southern champion and winner of the recent National Golf Links invitation tournament, in a contest that was nerve-racking at stages, the open champion finally winning, 3 up and 1 to play. Bob Gardner continued in the tournament by defeating John M. Ward, the Garden City veteran, 6 up and 5 to play, after the former diamond star had made a fine rally from a very poor morning round.

The great surprise of the day, however, was the defeat of Eben Byers of Allegheny, national amateur champion of 1906, by the fourteen-year-old youngster from Atlanta, Bobby Jones. The Atlanta boy is a product of the teachings of Stewart Maiden, and true to his professional instruction, he chips his shots up to the pin with deadly accuracy and with an astonishing amount of back-spin that holds them just where they land. He outdrove Byers most of the way, but the really remarkable part of his play was his recovery from awkward positions, where the most hardened veteran might have been pardoned for losing his head or his courage. Not so with this boy, for he is full of confidence and never knows what it is to give up a hole until the other fellow is in the cup with the winning stroke.

Of the Metropolitan stars Max Marston pulled through easily from W. G. Pfeil of Huntingdon Valley, winning 5 and 4; Oswald Kirkby won an unexpectedly easy victory from Gil Tiffany of Mohawk, 8 and 6; Gardiner White defeated C. E. Van Vleck, Jr., of Baltusrol, 4 and 3; Frank Dyer of Montclair, Pennsylvania champion, defeated the intercollegiate title holder F. R. Blossom of Exmoor in overwhelming style, 9 and 8.

Anderson Defeats Sawyer.

John G. Anderson is still in the tournament by the inch that is as good as the proverbial mile. Ned Sawyer of Wheaton forced the Siwanoy player to the thirty-seventh hole and Anderson there produced the putt that won the match, while Sawyer brought out three that failed to accomplish the same feat.

Byers was not the only former national champion to fall by the wayside at this early stage, for the last putt of the match on the home green in the last contest of the day eliminated W. H. Fownes, Jr., national amateur champion of 1910, from further participation in the tournament. His opponent was C. B. Buxton of Huntingdon Valley, who was considered a rather easy mark for the former title holder until he arose in the majesty of outraged dignity and smote Fownes hip and thigh in the afternoon round, erasing a lead of 3 up that the Oakmont player possessed at the end of the morning round, and holding his much more important single hole lead to the bitter end.

Jesse Guilford of Woodland, Massachusetts State champion, had the honor of winning his match by the largest score of the day in defeating C. G. Comstock, Jr., of Sleepy Hollow, 10 up and 9 to play. Comstock was away off in form, and seemed unable to persuade any of his shots to go in that particular direction where they might have been of advantage to him.

Max Marston and W. G. Pfeil were the first players to get away in the morning, and from the very start it was seen that the Baltusrol player would have a walkaway. He was 6 up at the end of the morning round, and took things easy through the hot afternoon, winning by the comfortable margin of 5 to 4.

Gardner Plays Good Golf.

The second pair from the starting tee turned out to be Bob Gardner and John M. Ward. The Garden City player was short of the first green in 2, but, as the national champion took three putts when he reached the green, no harm was done and the hole was halved. On the second hole Ward was trapped on his second, and on the fourth he got an unlucky kick to his approach shot that sent it scurrying down the hillside from the green into the rough. Gardner was very lucky in his shot from the same location, and ran down a thirty-foot putt for a 3, placing himself 2 up. He made it 3 up on the long fifth hole, when the veteran took three putts, and increased his advantage by another hole when Ward topped his tee shot into the brook from the sixth tee, dropped back, and topped another into the ditch.

A second shot into the trap at the eighth green by Ward put the national champion 5 up, but the margin was reduced to 4 up at the turn, when Gardner pitched into the trap to the right of the green at the short ninth hole. Gardner was out in an approximate 39, playing fine golf on every hole except the first and the sixth.

The national champion played even better golf on the inward journey than he did going out, taking a 35 for a total of 74 for his morning's work. The Garden City player was unable to stand such a pace, especially when he persisted in taking a variety of putts on each and every green, and he was 8 down when the morning round was over. In the afternoon he plucked up new courage, and actually took away two holes of Gardner's morning lead, but Gardner still possessed a sufficient margin of safety to win half a dozen close matches, and the contest ended on the thirteenth green, 6 up and 5 to play for the title holder.

The Evans-Whitney match was the stellar attraction of the day, and it was followed by an unusually large gallery, even for a national championship. Still keeping to his accustomed program, Evans gave a varied exhibition, sometimes holing putts from an incredible distance away, and more often missing them from an equally incredible short distance, where it seemed as if a strong wind might have blown the ball into the cup.

As for Nelson Whitney, he ought to hold a public incineration of the putter that ruined his chances in the afternoon. Time after time, with a chance to square the match or take the advantage, he missed one putt after another with an ease and grace that must have raised a feeling of jealousy in the breast of the national open champion. Whitney had a high-class caddie who remonstrated with him more in sorrow than in anger anent his delinquencies on the green, and Whitney willingly gave ear to him, for it was Reuben Bush, his clubmate, with whom the Audubon golfer was accustomed to share the Southern amateur championship several years ago, turn and turn about.

Trouble is Plentiful.

The first of the match might have been staged to better advantage in a thre-ring circus than on a golf course. Evans was in a trap short of the green on his second, pitched away over the green into a hayfield on his third, and back on the green on his fourth. In the meanwhile the Southerner had put his ball on the green in two strokes, some twenty feet from the pin. Murder will out, and it might as well be known immediately that Whitney did not win the hole, for Evans unceremoniously bolted his twenty-five-foot putt into the back of the cup while his opponent covered the distance in three installments, taking a half in 5.

Evans took three putts on the second green and lost the hole. He also took three putts on the fourth green, but here he was saved through the efforts of his opponent, who obligingly bunkered his second shot and took a 5 with the national open champion. It was Whitney's turn to miss a putt on the green, and he accordingly did, losing the hole and squaring the match, but he took the lead again on the sixth, where the Chicago player was short of the green on his approach. Evans was short on his tee shot across the gully to the seventh green, and a par 3 by Whitney left the open champion 2 down. The eighth was halved, and the ninth was abandoned by the Southerner when he put his tee shot in a bunker and therein dispersed considerable sand without perceptibly improving his chances of winning the hole.

It took Whitney three strokes to reach the tenth green, where Evans placed his ball in two shots, but the open champion again obliged his opponent with three of his well-known putts and saved him from losing the hole. A Southerner is never to be outdone in courtesy, and, having been presented with a half on the tenth hole that he should have lost, Whitney more than returned the compliment on the eleventh, where Evans sliced his tee shot into a bunker, put his second in the rough, and his third on the green. Whitney was on the edge of the green on his second, and, to give Evans the hole, he was forced to take three shots to cover the short distance between his ball and the cup, provided the Chicago player sank his putt. Evans did the unexpected and sank the putt for a 4, whereupon Whitney did the expected and took three to hole out, losing 5—4.

Stymie Helps Whitney.

Whitney fell short of the brook on the thirteenth hole, and by the same token he was one down for the first time during the match. He squared things on the next hole, however, when Evans persisted in playing to the green by way of two bunkers. A stymie which the Southerner laid the national open champion on the fifteenth green gave him the lead once again, but he immediately lost it by putting his second shot into the quarry on the sixteenth hole. On the seventeenth hole Whitney drove to the green, while Evans was over. The open champion chipped out and went down in one putt, and, as somebody simply had to take three putts on each green, the Southerner felt it incumbent upon himself to shoulder the burden here, and he did, losing the hole. This disadvantage, with a half on the home hole, left him one down over the rest period.

Starting out in the afternoon he lost two holes in succession, the first by a missed putt and the second through spending a large part of his time in two bunkers. He won the third when Evans sliced out of bounds on his tee shot, and he was presented with the fourth on a figurative golden platter, garnished with rose leaves. He was on the green in 3, and ran up to the lip of the cup in 4. Evans was on in 2, had taken one putt, and was putting for the hole in 4. His ball hit the ball that Whitney had so carefully placed on the edge of the cup, knocked it in, and gave the hole to Whitney, 4—5.

Whitney's conscience smote him for this, and on the next two holes he was in the rough once, the bunkers three times, and the water once for a penalty stroke, accumulating two 7s and giving the open champion both holes easily. A fine 2 by Evans at the ninth hole left him 4 up at the turn. Whitney won the tenth, where Chick was bunkered on his tee shot, but lost the eleventh through the work of his reprehensible putter, taking another three putts from a short distance. He took three putts again on the twelfth hole, but here nothing could prevent him from winning, as the open champion hit a tree and dropped out of bounds on his second, and put his third in a sand pile near the green.

Whitney won the fourteenth in a stroke under par by placing a long iron shot within a foot of the pin, but the fifteenth was his great opportunity, and he missed it again with the little wooden putter that must be the bane of his existence. Both players were on the green in 2, with Evans lying twice as far away as Whitney. Chick putted up hill and was short. Whitney then putted, and got what might be called a fair drive, running past the hole at full speed. The open champion putted again and hung on the lip of the cup. With a four-foot putt to cut the lead to a single hole, Whitney missed miserably, and halved the hole in 5.

Sixteenth Is Halved.

The Southerner made a magnificent recovery from a poor drive on the sixteenth, sending a long iron shot from the rough across the quarry in the teeth of the wind, but Evans halved the hole and was dormie 2. When 2 down and 2 to play against the national open champion it is no part of a successful attack to begin by putting a tee shot into a trap, but this is what Whitney did, and moreover he went over the green on his second shot. A futile third shot convinced him that he had amply sufficient exercise for the day, and he struck his colors to the open champion 3 up and 2 to play.

The Anderson-Sawyer match had a dramatic ending. The Siwanoy player was 2 down going to the twelfth green, and had an awkward lie on his second shot, far short of the green, with a brook intervening. Sawyer, however, went out of bounds on his second, and fell short of the green on his third, giving Anderson a chance to pitch up and go down in a single putt, thus turning an almost sure loss into a solid gain. On the short thirteenth hole the Siwanoy player squared the match with an eight-foot putt for a 2. He became 1 down again on the fifteenth by bunkering his second shot, and missed golden opportunities to square the match on both the sixteenth and seventeenth greens by taking three putts each time. One down going to the home hole, he squared the match with a 4 when the Westerner put his second shot in a trap left of the green and took two useless shots to dislodge the ball.

The extra hole was followed by a large gallery and it was somewhat a repetition of the first afternoon hole of the Whitney-Evans match. Sawyer was on in 2 and Anderson was short. Anderson chipped up well and went down in one putt for a 4. Sawyer had a short putt for a half. He tapped his ball fair and true on the line, and it ran straight for the cup. To the astonishment of the assembled multitude it seemed to peer into the hole, hesitate at seeing another ball already in there, and then slowly but surely back away from danger and remain high and dry on the green. The shrinking modesty of the ball cost Sawyer his place in the tournament.

Little Bobby Jones got an early lead on his formidable opponent, E. M. Byers, and was 3 up at the turn in the morning round. Byers reduced this somewhat on the next few holes, but on the fifteenth hole he took three putts, on the sixteenth four putts, and on the seventeenth a like number, and was still 3 down at the end of the round.

Both players were going poorly on the outward journey in the afternoon and twice the former national champion was 5 down to the youngster. Jones drove 350 yards to a bunker on the right of the eighth green, chipped out on the edge of the green, and sank his putt for a 3. His tee shot was bunkered on the ninth, losing him the hole, but he was still 3 up at the turn. He pitched into the brook from the thirteenth tee, and endeavored to play the ball from the water. All he got for his trouble was a good ducking and a lost hole.

Three putts on the fourteenth reduced his lead to a single hole, and it seemed as if the boy wonder were about to ascend skyward at a rapid rate. It was the veteran who cracked, however, as Byers took three putts from a distance of fifteen feet on the fifteenth green, losing the hole. This put Jones 2 up again, and he clinched the match, 3 and 1, on the seventeenth hole by chipping from the rough and going down in one putt, while Byers required two putts after coming out of the same rough. The youngster will encounter Frank Dyer tomorrow morning, and as Dyer played a beautiful game today, he will probably be tested to the limit.

After being 4 down at the end of the morning round, Henry J. Topping, former Connecticut State champion, made a fine rally against W. P. Smith of Pine Valley and squared the match only to lose out by hanging on the lip of the cup at the home hole.

The home green was the scene of three other deciding putts about dusk. George Small of Baltimore ran a fifteen-footer into the cup to defeat R. D. Lapham of San Francisco; Perry Adair of Atlanta holed a short one that defeated L. B. Paton of Homestead, and a fine approach putt that gave him a half in 4 won for C. B. Buxton in his match against the medalist and former national champion, W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont.

Gardiner White won his match against C. E. Van Vleck by the simple process of winning four holes in succession near the end of the afternoon round, winning out 4 and 3. He was playing in fine style. Tomorrow morning he encounters Oswald Kirkby, however, and one of the metropolitan players must fall by the wayside. The first match in the morning should be one of the finest of the tournament, for Bob Gardner and Max Marston will cross niblicks at 9 A. M.

The summaries:

R. A. Gardner, Hinsdale, defeated John M. Ward, Garden City, 6 and 5.
R. T. Jones, Jr., Atlanta, defeated E. M. Byers, Allegheny, 3 and 1.
F. W. Dyer, Montclair, defeated F. R. Blossom, Exmoor, 9 and 8.
G. A. Ormiston, Oakmont, defeated A. Z. Huntington, Wyoming Valley, 4 and 3.
Jesse Guilford, Woodland, defeated C. G. Comstock, Jr., Sleepy Hollow, 10 and 9.
Oswald Kirkby, Englewood, defeated G. P. Tiffany, Mohawk, 8 and 6.
John G. Anderson, Siwanoy, defeated D. E. Sawyer, Wheaton, 1 up, (37 holes.)
R. E. Hunter, Midwick, defeated M. M. Jack, Merion, 3 and 2.
W. P. Smith, Huntingdon Valley, defeated H. J. Topping, Greenwich, 1 up.
Charles Evans, Jr., Edgewater, defeated Nelson M. Whitney, Audubon, 3 and 1.
D. C. Cockran, Baltimore, defeated G. W. Hoffner, Woodbury, 8 and 7.
Perry Adair, Atlanta, defeated L. B. Paton, Homestead, 1 up.
George Small, Baltimore, defeated R. D. Lapham, San Francisco, 1 up.
C. B. Buxton, Huntingdon Valley, defeated W. C. Fownes, Jr., Oakmont, 1 up.

OLYMPIC A. C. LOSES MEN.

Only Two Members of Champion Squad Will Enter Newark Meet.

The Olympic Athletic Club team of San Francisco, winner of the senior and junior national championships last year and regarded as a strong contender in the seniors this year, has been dismembered, and there will be only two San Francisco men in the titular meet at Newark on Saturday. Frederick W. Rubien, Chairman of the National Championship Committee, was notified yesterday that it would be impossible for Norton, Millard, Stout, Liversedge, Sloman, and Goeppert to visit Newark. This leaves only Carl Hoenisch of the Caledonian Club and W. F. Sisson of Leland Stanford University. Both men are here now.

This information was conveyed yesterday to Mr. Rubien in a letter from J. Eliot, President of the Pacific Association of the A. A. U. Had he been notified earlier, Mr. Rubien would have made arrangements to bring other San Francisco athletes here.

Marston and Butler in Final.

Russell Marston and William E. Butler won their matches yesterday in the semi-final round of the tournament being played at the Bellport Golf Club for the championship of Bellport. Marston beat James Doig, 2 and 1, and Butler beat A. E. Fitch, 4 and 3. The final match will be played later this week.

M'TAGGART RIDES TRIO OF WINNERS

First with Hanobala, Rose Water, and Dovedale—Blue Thistle Wins Nassau Stakes.

H. C. Hallenbeck's aged gelding Blue Thistle again demonstrated his usefulness when he won the Nassau Selling Stakes, the feature of a rather dull card, yesterday at Belmont Park. The crowd was small and there was the listless racing which generally follows a holiday.

Only four starters went to the post in the Nassau, among them being Harry Shaw, which won the race last year. The event is for three-year-olds and upward, over a mile route. The winner stayed close to the Powers entry for the first half mile, then in the next quarter assumed command, but the 120 pounds impost he carried began to tell on him in the last two furlongs, and he had all he could do to stave off the challenge of Republican at the end. The latter made a very poor start and was outrun by the field in the opening part of the race, but he gradually improved his position, although racing on the outside, and closed with gameness. But he had not quite enough to catch the winner, which finished a length to the good.

The only person who appeared not to be affected with the general lethargy which seemed to pervade everybody and everything around the course was young Johnny McTaggart, the jockey. He apparently was imbued with the idea that his chief object in life was to ride winners, and he was so successful at this commendable occupation that he took half the card, or, in other words, rode three winners. He was third twice; in the other race he did not have a mount.

McTaggart's most notable victory was on the colt Hanobala, the two-year-old from the stable of R. T. Wilson and a half-brother to Campfire, winner of the Futurity. The race was a selling handicap affair for two-year-olds. Six juveniles went to the post and the event was a rousing good contest, with Hanobala winning by a head from Aimee T. Gifford A. Cochran's Triple Crown was third.

Another close finish was that between James Butler's Paddy Whack, winner of the Highweight Handicap, and the imported Frizzle in a six-furlong race. The former just managed to nose out the Oneck Stable entry, while Frizzle was the same distance in front of Lady Hillington. Rose Water, with Johnny McTaggart up, ran a vastly improved race over her recent performance and easily defeated a field of four other thoroughbreds over a mile and a sixteenth course.

The summaries, with straight, place, and show odds:

ROAMER DEFIES STROMBOLI.

Will Meet Municipal Handicap Winner in Special Race Saturday.

A special long-distance race, as an added attraction and to settle the question of superiority between Roamer and Stromboli, has been arranged for next Saturday afternoon at Belmont Park. The contest will be a sweepstake for three-year-olds and upward, by subscription of $10 each and starters to pay $1,000 additional, the $2,000 all to go to the winner. The distance will be one mile and a half.

The race was devised after the outcome of the Municipal Handicap, run on Monday and won by August Belmont's Stromboli, which defeated Roamer. Andrew Miller, owner of the latter, was not at all satisfied with the race, and still thinks that Roamer can defeat the Fair Play gelding. The Chairman of The Jockey Club was perfectly willing to give Mr. Miller another chance, and arrangements for the special sweepstake resulted. James Butwell will never ride Roamer again, as Jack Gainsborough has dispensed with his services. This action was taken by the trainer immediately after the Municipal Handicap. Loftus will ride the Knight Errant gelding on Saturday.

So that the contest will not be a match race, which is against the rules of The Jockey Club, the Oneck Stable's Frizzle will also be entered, but it is not unlikely that the imported horse will be withdrawn at the last moment, as he was in the Municipal Handicap.

J. W. Coffroth, President of the Lower California Jockey Club, was at Belmont Park yesterday, and announced the postponement of the opening of his track from Nov. 4 to Nov. 11. He did not want to interfere with patrons who wished to vote, as Election Day will be on Nov. 7. C. H. Pettingill will be the presiding judge.

GALETON, FATIGUED, TAKES 2:24 TROT

Son of Barongale Wins in Straight Heats After Night Journey to Track.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 5.—After being shipped from Holyoke last night, reaching the Grand Circuit track at 3 o'clock this morning, Galeton, son of Barongale, won the 2:24 trot in straight heats this afternoon, beating a field of four other horses and making a new mark of 2:17¼. Azora Axworthy kept her half-mile record clean when she ran away from the field in the 2:16 trot. Empress of Russia was returned an easy winner in the 2:18 trot.

Galeton threw a shoe in July and has not been raced until this afternoon. She was driven by Harry Brusie. Baron Frisco made the 2:18 trot exciting, finishing right up on the Empress of Russia's neck in each heat.

NAPA YEARLINGS SOLD.

Seventeen Thoroughbreds of A. B. Spreckels Bring $6,500 at Auction.

Seventeen thoroughbred yearlings from the Napa Stock Farm, California, the property of A. B. Spreckels, were sold at public auction yesterday at Belmont Park. The youngsters were sired by Dr. Leggo, the imported Solitaire II, and Voorhees. The lot brought $6,500, an average of $384 a head.

James MacManus paid the top price of $1,200 for a likely looking bay colt foaled on Jan. 20, 1915, by Solitaire II.—Salvatrix. Addison Johnson paid $525 for a juvenile by Voorhees out of Chiffie.

Anderson's Condition Serious.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 5.—Gil Anderson of Indianapolis, whose racing car went into a fence at the Sharonville Speedway yesterday, was pronounced in a serious, but not necessarily dangerous, condition today. Anderson has a broken leg and multiple bruises, but the examination made this morning displayed no internal injury symptoms. Bert Shields, Anderson's mechanician, probably suffered a fracture of the spine near the base, and physicians hold out slim hopes of his recovery.

Schieflein Gets a One at Ekwanok.

Special to The New York Times.

MANCHESTER, Vt., Sept. 5.—G. G. Schieflein, the Mohawk golfer who came into prominence when he won the Mohawk invitation tournament recently, gained admission to the "One" Club of the Ekwanok Country Club yesterday on his first visit to the course. He played the 181-yard sixth hole in a single stroke. In the seventeen years of the club's history this hole had never yielded a one until this season.

YEARLING BRINGS $4,000.

Son of Trap Rock Commands High Price at Auction of Thoroughbreds.

Thoroughbred yearlings, by noted sires, were sold at auction last night at Durland's Riding Academy. There were twenty-four head in the lot, seventeen being the juveniles reared by O. H. Chenault of Lexington, Ky., by Ballot, Jack Atkin, Sain, Celt, and Ben Trovato. The remaining seven were the Keeneland yearlings, the property of J. O. and G. H. Keene of Lexington, Ky. They were by Ballot, Jack Atkin, Trap Rock, Ogden, and the great Star Shoot, which has sired so many winning two-year-olds this season.

The seven Keene youngsters brought a total of $18,500, or an average of $2,644 a head. The highest price of $4,000 was paid by W. H. Karrick, for a chestnut colt by Trap Rock out of Twilight Queen. The latter was a winner in 1908 and 1909, and held a splendid record when she was racing. The colt is engaged in the Futurity and the Breeders' Futurity of Kentucky of 1917.

Congressman George W. Loft paid $3,700 for a youngster by Peter Quince-Phebe G. The bidding for this colt was quite spirited. The young son of Peter Quince was started at $1,000 and was raised $500 at a clip, until he reached $3,500. Here there was a lull, until the extra $200 was placed on the colt, and he was knocked down to Mr. Loft's trainer.

A handsome young filly by Jack Atkin and Agnes Virginia, a full sister of Jocoba, winner of the Spinaway Stakes and other races and one of the best fillies out last season, also went to W. H. Karrick for $3,500. The same trainer bought a chestnut colt by the great Ballot-Micaela, a half brother to Petrovna, for $3,600.

The seventeen Chenault yearlings brought an aggregate of $10,025, or an average of a little more than $590 a head. The high-water mark was reached when Mrs. Sandy McNaughton paid $2,000 for a brown colt by Jack Atkin out of Lady Clara. The same owner paid $1,300 for a brown colt by the same sire out of the imported Africa.

GOLD CUP WON BY MISS MINNEAPOLIS

Sets New World's Record for Five Miles in Final Heat—Miss Detroit Second.

DETROIT, Sept. 5.—In one of the greatest performances ever seen in a hydroplane race, Miss Minneapolis of the Minneapolis Power Boat Association this afternoon won the ninety-mile Gold Cup race, and incidentally established a new world's record of 55.8 miles an hour for five miles. She took the cup by finishing second to Miss Detroit in the final thirty-mile heat today, which gave her 20 points, against 18 for the local boat.

The new record was made in the final lap, after Miss Minneapolis had broken a push rod in the fourth time around and fallen fully three-quarters of a mile behind Miss Detroit. The two speeders crossed the finish line one second apart. Hawkeye of the Lake George Club, third in today's heat, took third place in the race, with 13 points, and Peter Pan VII. of the Columbia Yacht Club, New York, fourth with 11 points. The latter boat, the only other starter today, was forced out of the final heat by engine trouble after covering four laps.

Miss Minneapolis's time today was 41:21, an average for the heat of 50.4 miles an hour. For the entire ninety miles her time was 2:07:48, or at the rate of 48.6 miles an hour. Miss Detroit averaged 47.6 miles for the three heats, which she covered in 2:10:43.

The start today was the prettiest of the three heats, with four boats crossing close together, only a few seconds behind the gun. Miss Minneapolis was again slightly in the lead, however, and kept ahead of Miss Detroit through the first three laps, increasing her lead to 500 feet as they crossed the line the third time around.

The next time Miss Detroit crossed nearly a minute ahead of the Minneapolis boat, with Peter Pan VII. a mile behind. Hawkeye was far in the rear, and, although she put up a game fight, was never able to do better than last place.

The Minneapolis's crew disconnected the broken rod and opened up at the start of the final lap. They probably would have overtaken the Detroit craft if they had had another half mile to go. As it was, they crossed one second behind the cup defender.

AN EXCLUSIVE MODEL

Only 300 Made for All America

The Hudson Super-Six will have an output of at least 45,000 cars more. That's the largest output for a quality car in the world.

But only 300 more are scheduled with this Town Car body. That's one for each four Hudson dealers.

So this stunning model—the handsomest Town Car you ever saw—will not be a common sight.

Built By Masters

Master craftsmen of international fame were employed in the building of this body. For sixty years they have held the top place among coach builders.

When motor cars came, foreign makers employed them to build bodies for their costliest cars. Also some first-class American makers. So for 15 years a very large percentage of the finest cars sold in this country have been equipped by these artists in bodies. The prices have run as high as $10,000.

This Town Car is their latest production. It shows a supreme effort in beauty and luxury. It is proof of the fact that the finest of fine cars, with the limit in elegance, can be sold for $2750 at Detroit.

Eight Luxury Models

The Super-Six motor is a Hudson invention, controlled by Hudson patents. It is 80 per cent more efficient than former types. From a small, light Six it develops 76 horsepower, solely by eliminating friction.

This motor makes all Hudson cars supreme. No other car of any type can match a Super-Six in performance.

For this great motor eight styles of bodies have been built, each an exquisite model. They will all delight you. Come and learn more about them while you can have your choice.

COTTON PRICE CUT BY HEDGE SELLING

NET LOSS 14 TO 22 POINTS

Movement of New Staple Indicates Either a Large or an Early Crop—Good Weather News.

For the first time since the advance in cotton started, a little more than a month ago, hedge selling by the South appeared to exercise a pressure which buying by the bulls was unable to counteract. The market opened after the holiday generally 6 to 9 points higher in response to firm cables and aggressive bidding by leading bulls. At one time prices were about 16 to 18 points over Friday's closing. Selling from New Orleans and other Southern points, however, proved to be a little more than the market could absorb readily and prices broke more than 30 points from the high level for the day and closed at a net loss of 14 to 22 points.

Cotton is beginning to move in liberal volume, and the receipts probably have been something of a surprise to those who have been talking about a very late crop. Judging from the movement of cotton, the crop is either fairly early or fairly large. Savannah receipts yesterday were nearly three times as large as they were for the corresponding day last year, while Houston, Tex., received 20,778 bales, against 10,838 for the corresponding day last year. New Orleans receipts today are estimated at about 4,750 bales, against 3,582 last year. Galveston receipts are estimated at about 17,000 bales, against 3,825 last year.

The first ginning report of the season will be published on Friday, giving the amount of new crop cotton ginned prior to September 1 this year. Figures will compare with 463,883 bales last year and 480,317 two years ago.

The weather over the holiday was somewhat more favorable, as Oklahoma received continuous and scattered rains on Sunday, although no moisture was reported for Monday. Scattered showers also fell in parts of Eastern and Central belts. These were beneficial rather than otherwise. The precipitation in Texas was light and was reported from only a few scattered localities.

The State entomologist of Georgia finds that boll weevils have committed serious ravages in thirty-six counties of the State, and that in eighteen of these the damage will run from 40 to 60 per cent. For the first time the weevil has reached the Sea Island cotton belt. Advices from Valdosta, Ga., one of the leading long staple cotton markets, reports that Sea Island cotton last Saturday went to 33 cents per pound in the face of phenomenal receipts for so early in the season.

Close observers take the view that the technical position of the market has been weakened by the big advance, and that it is practically without a short interest except of the floating professional character supplied by ring traders. Arthur R. Marsh, in the last issue of The Economic World, estimates the probable amount of cotton that will be available this season, including stocks carried over as well as the new crop, at 18,368,000 bales, and the probable consumption at 13,500,000 bales. Mr. Marsh makes a reasonable subtraction from last year's consumption figures on account of the inability of Germany and Austria to get the cotton which they used last year.

The market closed easy.

TRADE WITH MEXICO GROWS.

Total for Last Fiscal Year is $145,985,086.

Despite the unsettled conditions in Mexico, trade between that country and the United States broke all records in the Government's fiscal year ended June 30. A compilation by the Foreign Trade Department of the National City Bank of New York, issued yesterday, showed that notwithstanding the political and commercial upheavals in Mexico, it supplied the United States in the last fiscal year a greater volume of merchandise than ever before, while American trade with the republic south of the Rio Grande also was larger than in any other previous year.

According to the bank's statement, imports from Mexico in the fiscal year 1916 were $97,676,544, against $77,612,691 in 1915, and $92,690,566 in 1914, the former high record year. In the period under review the exports to Mexico amounted to $48,308,542, a gain of $14,000,000 over 1915, and $10,000,000 over 1914. Combining imports and exports, the total of 1916 was the largest in the history of the trade between the two countries, the exact figures for the year being $145,985,086, compared with $131,927,266 in 1913, the former high record year for commerce both ways.

These figures of trade with Mexico do not include the precious metals. The silver imports from Mexico in 1916 were approximately $19,000,000; in 1915, $16,802,000; 1913, $25,570,000, and in 1912, $28,147,000. The gold imports from Mexico were in 1915 a little over $6,000,000; in 1914, $11,000,000; in 1913, $20,000,000, and in 1911, $30,000,000.

The bank's statement pointed out that the chief growth of trade with Mexico occurred on the import side. In this connection it was shown that the greatest increase in American exports to Mexico since 1900 was only 75 per cent., while the increase in imports from that country since 1900 was 242 per cent. The chief imports from Mexico include coffee, vanilla beans, copper, sisal, mineral oil, hides and skins, rubber and substitutes, gum chicle, lead, and live cattle.

"The growth in the imports of mineral oil from Mexico to the United States," said the statement, "has been an important factor in our trade with that country. A decade ago our imports in crude mineral oil from Mexico amounted to but 15,000,000 gallons, but in 1916 was over 800,000,000 gallons, valued at approximately $12,000,000. This comes to us, not because it is required for consumption in the United States, which produced three-quarters of the mineral oil of the world, but because of our superior facilities for refining and marketing the product. This is also true of the $14,000,000 worth of copper imported in 1916."

The chief exports from this country to Mexico at the present time are machinery, railway and mining supplies, pipes and fittings, pumps and pumping machinery, wire, miscellaneous manufactures of iron and steel, boots and shoes, and other manufactures of leather, cotton goods, coal, wheat and flour, meat and dairy products, and cottonseed oil.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Notice to Creditors of THE CINCINNATI, HAMILTON & DAYTON RAILWAY COMPANY.

All persons, firms, associations or corporations having claims or demands against The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company, other than those secured by mortgage or conditional sale, duly filed or recorded, and other than those which have been heretofore filed with the Receivers, are hereby notified that the District Court of the United States, Southern District of Ohio, Western Division, in the cause wherein Bankers Trust Company is plaintiff, and The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company is defendant, in Equity No. 41, Consolidated Cause, on the 14th day of August, 1916, entered an order in which it is provided as follows:

IT IS ORDERED that the report of the Receivers, pursuant to the order entered November 2nd, 1914, in the cause in this Court entitled "Bankers Trust Company, Plaintiff, vs. The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company, Defendant, In Equity No. 41," with respect to claims, shall, upon the filing thereof, be forthwith referred to Frank H. Shaffer, who is hereby appointed Special Master for the purpose of taking evidence and reporting the same to this Court, together with his findings and conclusions of law and fact as to whether, and to what extent, any or all of said claims are valid and which thereof, if any, are entitled to priority over the mortgages sought to be foreclosed in this Consolidated Cause, and being the mortgage dated July 1, 1909, executed by the defendant, The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company, to Bankers Trust Company, as Trustee, and commonly known as its First and Refunding Mortgage; the mortgage dated July 1, 1909, executed by the defendant, The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company, to Central Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, and commonly known as its General Mortgage; and the Mortgage dated May 1st, 1891, executed by The Cincinnati, Dayton & Ironton Railroad Company to Central Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, of which United States Mortgage and Trust Company is now successor Trustee, and commonly known as its First Mortgage;

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that all persons, firms, associations or corporations having claims or demands against the defendant The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company, other than those secured by mortgage or conditional sale duly filed or recorded, and other than those which have heretofore been filed with said Receivers, are required on or before the 15th day of September, 1916, to file the same with said Special Master, which said claims or demands shall be supported by affidavit and shall set out the amount and nature of any security or lien held by the claimant or to which the claimant is entitled; and also any claim to preference or priority in payment from any of the assets in the hands of the Receivers, or the earnings therefrom or the proceeds of sale thereof, in priority to the bonds secured by either of the three mortgages sought to be foreclosed herein, being the same three mortgages heretofore specified.

AND IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that any and all persons, firms, associations or corporations who fail to file their claims as herein required, be, and the same are hereby forever barred from asserting a claim to payment from any of the assets of the defendant The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company in the hands of the Receivers or the earnings therefrom or any proceeds of sale arising therefrom.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that said Special Master publish notice of all the foregoing requirements of this Order in reference to the filing of claims with him and to the barring of claims not so filed, three (3) times a week for four (4) consecutive weeks in a newspaper published and of general circulation in Cincinnati, Ohio, and in a newspaper published and of general circulation in New York City, State of New York. Said Special Master is directed to take evidence and report the same to this Court, together with all claims filed before him and together with his findings and conclusions of law and fact as to whether and to what extent any or all of said claims so filed are valid, and which thereof, if any, are entitled to priority over the mortgages, or any thereof, sought to be foreclosed in this Consolidated Cause, being the same mortgages heretofore specified.

And on the 15th day of August, 1916, said Court made the following Order:

IT IS ORDERED that Gilbert Bettman be, and he is hereby, substituted as Special Master in the place of said Frank H. Shaffer, with all the powers and duties in said order of August 14th, 1916, prescribed.

The undersigned Special Master pursuant to said order will hold a hearing for the purpose of taking evidence and reporting the same to the said Court, together with his conclusions of law and fact as to whether and to what extent any or all of said claims to be filed with him or to be reported by the Receivers are valid, and which thereof, if any, are entitled to priority over the mortgages or any thereof sought to be foreclosed by said Consolidated Cause, being the same mortgages as in said order specified, on the third day of October, 1916, at his office, No. 1114 Union Trust Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

All claimants having claims or demands not heretofore filed with the Receivers, and not secured by mortgage or conditional sale duly filed or recorded should present them verified as required in the order to the undersigned on or before the 15th day of September, 1916.

GILBERT BETTMAN, Special Master,
1114 Union Trust Building,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

BANKRUPTCY SALES.

BANKRUPTCY SALE AS A WHOLE OR IN LOTS. NATIONAL PIANO COMPANY.

Pursuant to the terms of an order of the United States District Court entered August 22nd, 1916, the Trustee in Bankruptcy of the National Piano Company will offer for sale at public auction at 12 o'clock noon, Wednesday, September 20th, 1916, on the premises occupied by the Company in the factory building at No. 621 Albany Street, Boston, Massachusetts, all the fixtures, machinery, pianos, piano players, finished and in process of manufacture, actions, movements, wire, parts, varnishes, etc., and in general all parts or materials on hand used in the manufacture of pianos or piano players,—and the patents, trade names, and good will of said business.

INVENTORY.—A physical inventory of the property offered for sale, taken as of September 1, 1916, will be available for inspection by bona-fide prospective buyers on and after Sept 6th, 1916.

INSPECTION.—The factory will be open for inspection by prospective bidders on and after Sept. 6th, 1916.

METHOD OF SALE.—The property will be offered for sale in the following ways:

First: Bids will be received on the property as a whole, and as a going concern, including all of the assets in the hands of the trustee in bankruptcy, with the exception of the cash and receivables, the highest bid received to be publicly announced by the auctioneer. Each bidder will be required to qualify before bidding by depositing with the auctioneer in cash, or by certified check, the sum of $1,000.

Second: Bids will then immediately be received for the property divided into lots suitable for the trade. A statement showing how the lots are made up will be ready for prospective bidders at the factory on and after September 6th, 1916. Bids will be received on each lot separately. The highest bid received for each lot, and also of the total of bids for all the lots offered by the second method of sale, will be announced by the auctioneer.

The highest bidder for each lot, under this method, will be required to qualify by depositing with the auctioneer 10 per cent. of his bid in cash or by certified check.

The highest bid or bids received for the entire property, by either method, will be promptly reported to the Referee in Bankruptcy for confirmation of the sale.

The purchaser will be required to make payment for the property in cash; the property to be delivered to the purchaser or purchasers immediately after confirmation of sale.

All bids received are subject to confirmation by the court. Further information will be furnished on application to me, or to my attorneys, Swift, Friedman & Atherton, 30 State Street, Boston.

MEXICO CONFEREES REACH NEW LONDON

FACE FINANCIAL PROBLEMS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Sept. 5.—The members of the American-Mexican Commission which is to discuss means of adjusting troubles between the United States and the southern republic arrived here today on the President's yacht Mayflower. They will begin their deliberations at the Hotel Griswold tomorrow.

The Mayflower loomed up through the haze which hung over the river shortly after 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The Commissioners dined aboard and came ashore after 8 o'clock, going at once to the apartments reserved at the hotel. There was no demonstration of enthusiasm to greet them at the hotel. The lawn and piers were practically deserted when the Mayflower dropped anchor, but the flag on the main staff was dipped, and the Mexican colors were run up on one of the smaller poles on the building.

It was believed tonight that the Mexicans would have the advantage of the early conferences, as they would go to them with a well-outlined program in view, while the American conferees are said to have more freedom, but no prearranged plans, and probably will govern their work by the lead given by the Mexicans. Just what is the program which will be considered has not been made public, but it is admitted that, while the withdrawal of the troops from Mexican territory will be the main point at issue, so far as the general public is concerned, the real work of the Mexican delegates will be devoted to the financial problems and the railway situation.

Persons connected with the delegation complain that never before in her history has Mexico experienced such difficulty in obtaining a loan as at the present time. Santa Ana, Comonfort, and Juarez all were able to obtain funds, although under difficult conditions, while it has been practically impossible for the Carranza administration to get any loan whatever.

According to the Mexican Commissioners, tomorrow will be devoted to the presentation of credentials, after which the session will be adjourned. The Mexican Secretary of Finance, Luis Cabrera, will preside at the opening session. Secretary Lane tonight again stated that the American conferees had no plan of procedure, but that it was probable this matter would be taken up tomorrow. He expressed the opinion that the conferences would last more than a month and that arrangements might be made not to hold meetings daily, but to give the delegates time for reference to documents and for discussion among themselves.

It was learned, however, that the question of the removal of the punitive expedition from Mexico would be the first subject considered, leading to a general discussion of border conditions.

TALK OF LOAN TO MEXICO.

Wall Street Hears of Plan to Borrow $100,000,000.

With the beginning of the discussions at New London between Commissioners representing the United States and Mexico it was reported again yesterday that inquiries had been quietly made in Wall Street on behalf of the Administration to learn what success would await an effort to borrow $100,000,000 to be used in the rehabilitation of Mexico.

Leading bankers who are conversant with the situation say that they will not give serious consideration to any proposals looking to advances to Mexico, no matter whence they emanate, unless the United States Government is prepared to attach its unequivocal guarantee covering the payment of both interest and principal. This could not be done without authorization by Congress, which would be contingent upon Mexico's consent to the collection of customs duties by United States representatives.

VILLA "TRAPPED" AGAIN.

Bandit Now Reported to be in the Santa Clara Canyon.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 5.—Carranza officers in Juarez believe that Villa has been trapped in Santa Clara or Tepehuanes cañon, and that it will be possible to capture the bandit leader and 500 followers who are with him in his search for caches of ammunition in the Santa Clara-Namiquipa district of western Chihuahua.

General Trevino has sent additional forces to Namiquipa and Santa Clara, and has sent scouts to the western end of the Santa Clara cañon, according to General Gonzales, the Juarez commander, to prevent Villa from escaping to the west. The Tepehuanes cañon is a narrow valley three miles long, walled in by mountains on each side, with the two openings narrowing at the points where they emerge onto the mesa. This makes an ideal hiding place for the bandits, but an equally fine trap if the two openings can be guarded.

SICK RATE ON BORDER LOW.

Reports Show Less Than 2 1-2 Per Cent. for the Camps.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Statistical reports from medical officers on the border, received by the War Department today, showed the percentage of sick of both regular troops and National Guardsmen was less than 2½ in a hundred last week. In that time six deaths occurred, five among the guards and one among the regulars. The rate of guard sick was slightly less than that of the previous week, while that of the regulars showed a small increase.

Army medical officers regard the condition as unusually satisfactory for this season of the year.

NEW POWDER ANCHORAGE.

Hearing on Request for New Berths for Barges and Other Vessels.

The New York Harbor Line Board held a public hearing yesterday in the Custom House to consider changes in the present anchorages for barges and other vessels loading or containing explosives. The hearing was ordered by Secretary of War Baker as a result of the explosion on Black Tom Island July 30 last.

The hearing developed that the three present anchorages are at Riker's Island, East River; Jersey Flats, off Black Tom, and in Gravesend Bay. In addition to suggestions for having one or more of these changed to other parts of the harbor, the board asked discussion on the questions on the maximum quantity of explosives to be permitted at any one anchorage and the maximum amount per barge and the distance such explosive-carrying barges should be kept apart.

WROTE A DIARY IN HIS CELL.

Magistrate Apologizes to Speeder Who Recorded Harshness of Police.

Walter N. Polakov, an expert examiner for the Municipal Civil Service Commission, and formerly consulting engineer for the Board of Estimate, who lives in New Rochelle, produced a diary when he was arraigned yesterday in the Flatbush Police Court before Magistrate Louis H. Reynolds, charged with violating the automobile speed laws. It recorded his treatment by the police of the Bergen Street station following his arrest on Monday night.

Mr. Polakov read from it that a Lieutenant had refused to let him telephone for bail, and he had been put in a cell; that a policeman had visited another prisoner charged with speeding, and after receiving 50 cents, had returned presently, said he had "fixed everything," and had permitted the prisoner to leave the cell.

The diary also stated that a police attendant had refused to give him water, and, when he asked for medicine for a headache, had told him he was no messenger boy.

"Your Honor, I am almost crazy from hunger and thirst," said Mr. Polakov; "it is now nearly noon and I have not had a bite to eat or a drink of water since 4 o'clock yesterday."

"I humbly apologize to you for the City of New York in not haveing supplied you with food or given you proper consideration," said Magistrate Reynolds. "You are paroled now to go out and get something to eat. Return at your leasure this afternoon and we will consider the matter of the charge against you for speeding. I will see that this matter is taken up with the police authorities and a full investigation made."

Later Magistrate Reynolds found Mr. Polakov guilty of speeding and suspended sentence. The police explained they were compelled to hold Mr. Polakov bcause he was not a resident of the city. When a resident of the city is arrested for speeding he gets a summons and is not taken to the station house.

COMMISSION AT BORDEAUX.

Americans Studying French Industries Greeted at Fair.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—THE NEW YORK TIMES special correspondent at Bordeaux today telegraphs:

"The American Commerce Commission arrived here yesterday and was received by B. Guestier, President of the Chamber of Commerce, and a delegation including Maurice Damour, Deputy Secretary of the French Budget Committee. The members visited the dock in the afternoon, where they had their first sight of German war prisoners at work. Last night they attended a dinner presided over by Gaston Doumergue, Minister of Colonies. Another dinner has been arranged for tonight after a visit to the Bordeaux fair today. The visitors will arrive in Paris tomorrow night.

"All the members of the commission are much impressed by the fact that all labor seen so far is working for French military advancement, showing how the whole country is single-minded in the determination to beat Germany."

BORDEAUX, France, Sept. 5.—Gaston Doumergue, the French Minister of Colonies, today opened the industrial fair at Bordeaux. He referred impressively to the presence of the American Commercial Commission, which is making a scientific study of industrial conditions in France in behalf of American exporters, and alluded to "the dawn of victory now breaking gloriously."

CROWDS GREET PRESIDENT

But He Refused to Make Political Speeches on Trip from Kentucky.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—President Wilson returned this afternoon from Hodgenville, Ky. He will remain here until Friday, when he goes to Atlantic City to address the National American Woman Suffrage Association. Then he will motor to Long Branch and does not expect to return to Washington for more than a month.

With the present session of Congress practically over, the President regards the campaign as on. Last night he passed through the territory in which Charles E. Hughes spoke today. At Lexington, Ky., a crowd of several thousand persons with a band cheered him continuously until his train pulled out.

The President continued to refuse to make political speeches, expressing his attitude last night to a crowd at Winchester, Ky.

"I did not come down here on a speechmaking tour," he said. "God bless you all."

The cheering of the large crowds at every station through which the President passed caused him to smile broadly and shake hands with as many as possible. "I never received such receptions," he remarked.

After the Atlantic City speech the President has no engagements before Sept. 20, when he goes to St. Louis. During his stay at Long Branch, however, he expects to see many delegations and write several political letters.

53 TRAFFIC ARRESTS DAILY.

Magistrate House's New Court Heard 1,219 Cases in August.

In the new Traffic Court, presided over by Magistrate Frederick B. House, there were twenty-three court days in August and in that month there were arraigned 1,219 offenders against the traffic regulations, an average of 53 a day. One intoxicated chauffeur and a driver convicted of speeding for the third time lost their licenses by revocation.

Sixty one drivers were imprisioned in default of fines and 55 selected jail in preference to paying fines. Nineteen were sentenced to jail. Fines in August amounted to $15,808.

Of the number arrested, 553 were for minor offenses, such as failing to stop at the policeman's signal, failure to carry lights, driving on the wrong side of the streets, obstructing traffic and leaving automobiles unattended in the streets. For more serious offenses 3 were arrested for running away from the scene of an accident, 9 for driving while intoxicated, 45 for reckless driving, 371 for speeding and 20 for driving without licenses.

To Buy Horses from Jamaica.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Sept. 5.—It is learned here that the United States will purchase from Jamaica 500 mules and 200 horses annually for military purposes on the Canal Zone. A purchasing agent has been appointed in Jamaica, and he will spend $50,000 a year here.

London's Wool Sales Resumed.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The wool auction sales were resumed today, with offerings of 8,300 bales. There was a large attendance of buyers. Good merinos were unchanged, but faulty grades declined 5 per cent. Crossbreds were unchanged to 5 per cent. dearer. Russia bought scoured merinos. Cape of Good Hope and Natal grades were neglected.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A meeting of the dress goods buyers of the Dry Goods Alliance will be held tomorrow at 75 Spring Street.

A special meeting of the Retail Shoe Dealers' Association of New York will be held at 11 o'clock today at the Hotel Cosmopolitan, Chambers Street and West Broadway. The topics to be discussed include the merchandising of present styles in shoes, trading stamps, Sunday closing, &c. A representative of the Sheldon School will make an address on the value of an association.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday...3½@4 per cent. for the best names

Friday......3½

Foreign Languages on Labels.

Suggestive of the larger amount of exporting now being done by American manufacturers is the increase in the number of languages used in marking domestic products. This tendency has been noted for some time by the officials of the New York office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, and has their hearty approval. Many of the articles now being shipped out of the United States carry brief descriptions of the merchandise in Spanish, French, Italian, and other languages besides the English designation. Representatives of foreign mercantile houses visiting the bureau stated that they regarded the labeling of American products in one or more foreign languages as a decided help in popularizing the goods abroad.

Artificial Fruit Duties.

Following a disagreement between Collector Malone and importers of artificial bananas and oranges, the Collector yesterday took full duty on the merchandise and sent the papers in the case to the Board of General Appraisers for judicial settlement. It appeared that the goods were made from carved bone and carved ivory. The Collector disregarded the components used in manufacturing the merchandise, and exacted 60 per cent. duty under the tariff provision for "artificial fruit." The importers will maintain before the board that the artificial fruit provision is not applicable, the contention being that entry accrues at 20 per cent. as manufactures of bone, or at 35 per cent. as ivory manufactures. Customs officials seemed to think a decision in favor of the importers would render the artificial fruit paragraph nugatory.

A Modish Hat.

Smart in effect and modish is a hat shown by a big retailer which combines a fashionable fur and an up-to-the-minute color. It is a moleskin hat, with round, straight crown and no rim. The color is purple which is in two shades in clusters of grapes made of silk which encircle the top of the crown. Shown over this is a moleskin-gray veil of wide-meshed lace.

Brocaded Silk Gauzes.

Most beautiful in silks are the silk gauzes, chiffon brocaded with designs of silver. These come in all the delicate shades and some of the deeper tones. Some of the latter are brocaded in gold, but the silver brocade predominates. Both, however, are seen on the heavy silks and satins. Magnificent are the silver brocades on the different tones of gray as well as on black, which is worn either way with the foundation of the silver and the figure of the silk or the design in silver on black. Gold also appears upon the black and is a magnificent combination on a magenta satin.

Good-bye to Red Underwear.

Red flannel underwear has been growing scarce steadily since the outbreak of the war upset the dye industry, and it was said yesterday that there is not enough of it in this city at the present time, both men's and women's, to fill a twenty-five-dozen order of those grades that ordinarily job at $8.50 a dozen. On higher-priced stuff, whether it is worth the money asked or not, a retailer might do better, though this is more or less conjecture. Inquiries are coming in for this kind of underwear daily to the big jobbers, especially from the South and the Northwest. In the South there is a big colored demand for this merchandise, due largely to its alleged curative values where rheumatism is suffered.

Now Jute Is Soaring.

Not to be outdone by the recent jump in cotton prices, jute has taken an unusual spurt, according to cables received in the local burlap market from Dundee yesterday. These cables told of a rise of £2 per ton in the jute available for this month's shipment from Calcutta, the actual quotation being £34 10s. So far as actual sales of goods were concerned, there was not much doing in this market yesterday, most of the selling houses being busy catching up the loose ends left by the double holiday. As a result prices were more or less nominal. For standard forty-inch stuff they were 6.90@7c for eight-ounce goods, and 8.40@8.50c for 10½-ounce cloths. Ten-ounce goods in the same width were held at 8.15c.

Caution on Unsolicited Orders.

The National Association of Credit Men, in its September letter, again calls the attention of members to the fact that care should be taken in determining the acceptance or refusal of an unsolicited order from a new buyer. Very often, the letter says, these orders are accepted solely on the rating given a firm in a reference book. Very often the value of large amounts of merchandise has been lost, and successful prosecution of the thief is said to be very difficult. A favorite game for the "buyer" to play is to take the name of a well-known merchant, but to put on the order blanks a different address, relying on the wholesale credit man's merely looking up the rating of the real dealer in a reference book. The goods are shipped, but when attempts are made to collect it is found that the "buyer" has disappeared.

Tan Coverts to Come Back.

Well-posted factors in the secondary end of the local dress goods market are predicting a nice run on tan coverts in the near future, probably beginning early next month. The cloths that will be most in demand are 50 and 54 inches wide, and retail from $1.50 to $2.50 a yard. They can be used in suits, coats, or separate skirts, all of which is expected to help their sale. In the last week or so, one of the features in this end of the market has been the movement of satin-faced weaves, especially prunellas in solid-color, self-striped effects. These goods, which are used principally for dresses, are 42 inches wide and retail at $1 a yard. Broadcloths continue very active, especially in such shades as field gray, pigeon blue, russet, ashes of roses, Burgundy, plum, purple, and wisteria. Fifty and 54-inch goods, retailing at $2 to $4 a yard, are favored most.

Will Keep Up Later Than Usual.

Wholesale houses and manufacturers that deal direct with the retail trade are looking for the Fall rush of business to keep up at least two weeks longer than usual this year as a result of the delayed visits to this market of many buyers that grew out of the cloak and suit strike. This is especially true of the medium and smaller sized dealers who have but two or three buyers to make selections for the entire establishment. It is usually the plan of these buyers to fill their ready-to-wear needs first, and, not knowing what the chance of this would be, so far as coats and suits were concerned, when the time for their regular visits came, they held off until the trouble was over. As a result they are buying yard goods, hosiery, underwear, &c., from two to three weeks late. One Southern buyer who was seen in the Worth Street district yesterday said that it was a rare thing for him to be in these parts after Aug. 25.

Gray Goods Sales Were Limited.

While opinions differed somewhat in the local gray goods market yesterday concerning the inquiry for various cloths on the part of buyers, they were united so far as the amount of goods disposed of was concerned, which was not large. Prices were very firm, higher in some cases, and the mills were adamant in their refusal to let goods out below the levels they had set. Among the printcloth sales made were 39-inch 72-76s, which sold for spot shipment at 8 cents, while 56-44s in that width sold at 5¼ cents for October-December delivery. For spot lots of 38½-inch 64-60s the mills were asking 6⅜ cents, though it was said that contracts could be had for an eighth less. Not much was doing on heavy goods from all accounts. These are printcloth prices that were fairly average of the market at the close:

39-inch, 68-72s	*7¾c	38½-inch, 60-52s	5⅝c
39-inch, 56-44s	5½c	38½-inch, 60-48s	5⅜c

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Representative William S. Bennet of New York, Republican, in the House today, repeated his charge that Frederick C. Howe, Immigration Commissioner at Ellis Island, "is the most negligent commissioner that we have ever had." He added the further charge that Mr. Howe was spending too much of the Government's time in attending to his personal affairs.

Representative Bennet said that the partial inquiry made by the House Committee on Immigration and the records of the Bureau of Immigration substantiated his previous charges that Mr. Howe's régime at Ellis Island had resulted in immorality among certain classes detained there, that there had not been a proper segregation of the moral and immoral classes and that such reforms as had been made should be accredited to Matron Harris and not to the Commissioner.

The New York member referred again to the case of a woman known as "Juliette," who, he said, had been admitted on the personal recommendation of Mr. Howe, although she was known to be of immoral character. That Mr. Howe had made an "untrue statement" in his defense of this action was asserted by Mr. Bennet.

Bringing the new charge that Mr. Howe is neglectful of his duty, Mr. Bennet said:

"Commissioner Howe receives $6,500 a year and ought to attend to business. I have said that he is the most negligent Immigration Commissioner we have ever had. I understand that he is still a director in the People's Institute, although without pay, I believe. He is Chairman of the National Board of Censorship of New York. That is two things. One of the burning questions in our city is the municipal operation of public utilities. I find in THE NEW YORK TIMES of July 31 that Mr. Howe is President of the League for Municipal Ownership and Operation in New York City and engaged in a bitter controversy with the Public Service Commission.

"If he does what he ought to do that will take at least half of his time. Mr. Howe is also an author and a professional writer. Since he has been at Ellis Island he has written three large books, and I find also sixteen important magazine and periodical articles."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Industrials Rise Sharply; Railroads Lag—An Interrupted Movement Resumed.

The stock market divided itself into two distinct groups yesterday. The industrials were active and strong, while the railroads advanced only a little where they did advance, and in many cases lost ground. The rails, however, were far from being as weak as the industrials were strong.

The manner of the settlement of the threatened strike was no more liked in Wall Street than it had been last week, but for the most part when the Street came to count the probable cost of the eight-hour day it reached the conclusion that with earnings on the present scale the stronger roads at least would not be at all embarrassed by the additional cost which the eight-hour day may impose. That is still an unknown quantity. Moreover, the opinion was voiced yesterday that in all probability the railroads would be able in many cases to recast their schedules in a way to minimize the money cost of the change in the length of the working day. But there was enough uncertainty of the effect which the change will have, and enough active displeasure over the kind of legislation resorted to to save the country from a strike, to prevent the railroads following in the footsteps of the industrials, which moved forward with a good deal of vigor, although even in this group there were stocks which moved only narrowly.

The Mercantile Marine stocks were the most active in the list, and with United States Steel led the trading, which supplied total transactions for the day of just short of a million shares. The rise in the former was due to the expectation that with the company soon out of the hands of receivers the Directors will proceed with the formulation of a plan for the funding of the back dividends on the preferred stock. That such a plan would be worked out has been assumed in Wall Street ever since it was decided that the old company should be re-established in possession of the property, the common and preferred stock remaining undisturbed and the bonds being paid off. The move made in court yesterday looking to the lifting of the receivership helped to account for the impetuosity with which the stock rose.

So far as the strength of the industrial list was due to general considerations yesterday's market may be said to have represented the resumption of a movement which was interrupted by the railroad wage crisis. That has now passed and there is undoubtedly a feeling of relief that the railroads are running as usual, a feeling which is shared even in quarters where the view prevails that in the long run it might have proved better to have the matter come to a strike rather than to have averted it at the cost of legislation of the sort demanded of Congress in this case.

This feeling of relief permitted expression to be given again to the satisfaction which is felt over the continued activity in business. As it happened, the European war news added its quota to the favorable influences, and further help was given by the receipt of the largest consignment of gold which has yet reached our market, which has been the beneficiary of the greatest gold movement which has ever occurred. At the same time call money was firm because of the money taken out of the market by the subscriptions to the $250,000,000 British loan, the payments on which were made on Friday.

LONDON MARKET CHEERFUL.

Money in Increased Demand and Discount Rates Steady.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Money was in increased demand today for investment in Treasury bills. Discount rates were steady.

The stock market continued idly cheerful with a few bright spots. The usual amount of investment buying maintained high-class securities. Japanese bonds and Chilean issues were the most active, and consols advanced a fraction.

South African mines attracted the attention of big operators, especially Modderfonteins, Gedulds, and De Beers. Oil shares were strong. American securities were idle in the absence of a lead from Wall Street, but prices hardened near the close.

Trading Quiet on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Sept. 5.—Trading was quiet on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 63 francs 85 centimes for cash. Exchange on London 28 francs 6 centimes. Five per cent. loan 90 francs.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Canadian Rails Appear.

When the terms of the British Government's $250,000,000 secured loan were announced it was declared that $100,000,000 of the $300,000,000 security would consist of securities of the Dominion of Canada and the Canadian Pacific Railway. The list of Canadian collateral, given out yesterday, included also bonds of the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific. All of these bonds, however, were guaranteed by the Canadian Government, so that technically the terms of the original announce were correct and the security as good as was represented. The point of interest in the bond houses was that these securities of the two Canadian transcontinentals, which had not before been introduced in the New York market, had finally arrived. They came under the highest auspices—that is, with both Canadian and British Government guarantee. Under these auspices investors have the opportunity of becoming acquainted with them, so that offerings of additional securities of these unfinished roads may appeal to the New York market.

Torpor in the Rails.

In a market in which Mercantile Marines and many industrials were active and buoyant the railroad shares lagged. None of them derived any considerable speculative interest from the developments over the holidays in the railroad labor situation. The morning mail in the brokerage offices showed little regard for them among the speculators and investors in the interior. But some of them advanced, and their state was at any rate higher than that of the local tractions. In Brooklyn Rapid Transit, though it has no labor trouble at the moment, there was a fractional decline. Nothing at all was done in Interborough Consolidated common, and in the preferred only 200 shares changed hands, with no change in price. There were few transactions and only slight price changes in the bonds of the Interborough system.

Looking for Russian Loan.

With the successful flotation of the $250,000,000 British loan, following the similar advance of $100,000,000 to France, the way has been cleared for additional Russian financing. When the bankers loaned $50,000,000 to Russia a few months ago, on terms providing for the establishment of a banking credit of 150,000,000 rubles at Petrograd, they retained an option under which they might take another $50,000,000 in bonds on the same basis. It is expected that this will soon be exercised. Bankers concerned in the earlier loan said yesterday that conditions were shaping themselves for a repetition of the $50,000,000 transaction.

Midvale Meeting Today.

William E. Corey, President of the Midvale Steel and Ordnance Company, returned from his extended Western trip a few days ago, and at once issued a call for a meeting of the Midvale board, to be held today. Mr. Corey is notoriously uncommunicative on what he plans to do, but some of his Directors said yesterday that they did not look for a resolution calling for the inauguration of dividends at this meeting. The market does not look for a declaration at this time either. Wall Street would be greatly interested in an earnings statement showing the results to June 30 and the unfilled tonnage on the company's books.

A Lively Market

Traders say that there is an excellent undertone to the market when bad news develops, and its behavior when the situation clears seems to prove it. Yesterday, the first session following the rescinding of the strike order, saw nearly a million shares dealt in and a spirited rise in the industrials which offer attractive speculative possibilities. Even outside of the Marine issues, which almost monopolized attention, there was enough action to excite the cupidity of timorous adventurers who have been waiting for a long time for the skies to clear. Mexican Petroleum recovered favor suddenly with the beginning of conferences at New London looking to the withdrawal of the Pershing expedition, and the rubber issues, notably Goodrich, Kelly-Springfield and United States, had the best day they have enjoyed in a long time. The copper issues were again in favor, carrying American Smelting and Refining along with them. Steel common did not go as high as it has sold on this movement, but it closed at its top price for the day, and in that way furnished a better starting point for the next effort to get the price over par. Altogether it was a market with interesting possibilities. It was curious to note how little effect the talk of a strike on the Interborough had. After last week's unpleasant experience the renewed threat of trouble on the city's lines came as an anti-climax.

BRITISH GOLD POURS INTO TREASURY HERE

Assay Office Cramped Because of Great Influx of Metal from Canada.

CONSIGNED TO MORGAN & CO.

Gold Receipts in New York Since the First of the Year Amount to $331,500,000.

The United States Assay Office, adjoining the Sub-Treasury at Wall and Pine Streets, was almost swamped by an avalanche of gold which poured in upon it over the holiday. All previous records were broken by the receipt of 846 wooden boxes filled with gold bars consigned to J. P. Morgan & Co. for account of the British Government.

Most of the gold came in on Labor Day, when the financial district was all but deserted, but the last of the closely guarded boxes was not delivered until yesterday. The metal came from Canada, some of it from Ottawa, but mostly from Halifax, where it is supposed it was landed from an English cruiser.

So cramped are the facilities of the Assay Office, which had never been called upon to handle any such amount of gold as has been poured into it since the beginning of the war, that little headway had been made up to last night in clearing away the pile of boxes. As fast as the containers are broken open and the contents weighed a credit for approximately the estimated value of the gold is made to J. P. Morgan & Co. and the first check for $2,500,000 on account was delivered yesterday afternoon. Neither the Government employes nor members of J. P. Morgan & Co. had been advised of the total value of the shipment, the former estimating it at $27,500,000 and the latter at $25,000,000.

On the more conservative estimate the gold receipts since the first of this year amount to $331,500,000. Yesterday's arrival breaks all previous records for a single shipment.

Receipts by months so far this year have been as follows:

January	$15,008,000
February	6,016,000
March	9,776,000
April	6,122,000
May	27,322,000
June	122,735,000
July	62,108,000
August (estimated)	57,413,000
September	25,000,000
Total	$331,500,000

Most of the gold has come in the form of bars, the surplus store of sovereigns at Ottawa having been long ago exhausted. The bars are melted in crucibles, the dross skimmed off, and the metal poured into molds. The bricks thus made are worth about $8,000 each.

In the absence of an official explanation of the sudden dumping of such a huge amount of gold here at one time, it was suggested in well-informed quarters that fear of a railroad strike had induced the British officials to prepare for an interruption to shipments. Hitherto, most of the consignments have ranged from $2,500,000 to $5,000,000.

It will be weeks before the Assay Office forces can melt and weigh yesterday's receipts. To make room for the gold a large quantity of bars was removed from the Assay vaults and stored in the Sub-Treasury.

Great Britain is using the gold shipped here to supplement the proceeds of the sale of American securities and the sums provided by loans. In view of the fact that a new credit of $250,000,000 was opened in New York on Sept. 1 with the sale of two-year notes, the size of yesterday's shipment occasioned a great deal of surprise. Use of the three methods of creating credits has served to keep the sterling exchange rate at about $4.76, despite the enormous payments made for supplies.

MERCANTILE MARINE PLANS.

Another step in the rehabilitation of the International Mercantile Marine Company was taken yesterday when, in Newark, Vice Chancellor Howell granted an order modifying the injunction obtained on Aug. 18, 1915, when Chauncey Parker was named receiver for the company in New Jersey, which is the State of its incorporation. The effect of yesterday's order was permission to the stockholders and officers of the company to proceed with the election of officers and management of the property in the State of New Jersey.

The order paves the way for the election of the new Board of Directors which has already been agreed upon by the various reorganization committees. It does not, however, conflict with the powers of Philip A. S. Franklin, receiver of the company in New York, who has had practically all of the company's property in his custody and who alone has managed its affairs since his appointment Aug. 3, 1915.

Other steps will be taken as soon as the legal formalities attending the advertisement of the $40,000,000 new bonds to be exchanged for an equal amount of the outstanding bonds are completed.

Accompanying this progress in reorganization the shares of the company sold higher than ever before yesterday and were the distinctive features of speculation on the Stock Exchange. The turnover in common and preferred was not far from 300,000 shares out of a total of less than a million for the entire list. The common closed at 45⅞ and the preferred at 119⅝, with gains of 5⅛ and 11⅛ points respectively.

Accompanying the advance also were reports that a plan was in formulation for the funding of the 82 per cent. of back dividends on the preferred stock. Such a plan has been considered before. Representatives of the new board, which has been agreed upon, though not officially installed, said that no definite plan of this kind had been decided upon. It was also widely reported that the American International Corporation had increased its stock interest and was out in the market for control. This report also lacked confirmation.

Netherlands Oversea Trust Arranges for Shipments.

A. Barnaud, Commercial Agent in charge of the New York office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, yesterday made public a cable message from Erwin W. Thompson, American Commercial Attaché at The Hague, dealing with the transmission of American securities to the Netherlands. For the last six or seven months the British censorship prevented the free transmission of American securities between Holland and the United States, and also greatly retarded the payment in Holland of coupons maturing on American bonds. Thompson outlined the new plan in his cable dispatch as follows:

"The Netherlands Overseas Trust has now arranged a special commission for transmitting American securities and coupons. This commission is composed of prominent bankers of Amsterdam. The documents intended for transmission are to be presented to this commission for examination, and, if, in their judgment, there are no interests in the transactions inimical to the Allied Powers, this commission will transmit the documents under the seal of the Netherlands Overseas Trust, along with a manifest or list of said documents. A copy of this list must be filed with the British censor. It is supposed that this new arrangement will now make it possible promptly to remit to the United States the above mentioned documents."

TO PAY ROCK ISLAND DEBTS.

Receiver Authorized to Settle Some Claims and to Refund Others.

Judge Charles M. Hough, in an order filed yesterday in the United States District Court, authorizes Jacob M. Dickinson, receiver of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company, in the suit brought by the American Steel Foundries Company, to renew the $7,500,000 6 per cent. collateral trust gold notes due Aug. 16, 1916, upon such terms as shall be satisfactory to him, or to borrow sufficient sums to pay the notes at maturity, using as collateral, if necessary, the collateral now securing the notes. The order also authorizes Receiver Dickinson to transfer the notes to such parties as may be satisfactory to him, under agreements preserving the lien upon the pledged collateral.

Receiver Dickinson is further authorized to pay from funds in his hands $641,910 as principal and interest on obligations of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company to the Peoria & Bureau Valley Railroad Company, the St. Paul & Kansas City Short Line Railroad Company, and the equipment notes of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company; $225,000 as interest on the defendant's gold notes, $50,000 to the South Chicago Elevators, and $462,201.79 on the Rock Island, Arkansas & Louisiana first mortgage gold bonds, Des Moines, Iowa Falls & Northern Railway Company equipment notes, Haskell & Parker Car Company receiver's equipment notes, and the Bettendorf Company receiver's equipment notes.

IN AID OF FOREIGN TRADE.

A New Department Is Established in the Commerce Bureau.

A. Barnaud, commercial agent in charge of the New York office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, yesterday announced the opening of a new department in connection with the work of the bureau, namely, the "Division of Commercial Agents of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce."

This new division will be in charge of Elliot G. Mears and will deal with special investigations undertaken by the bureau in foreign countries. Nineteen special agents are connected with this division, eight of whom are now engaged in making investigations abroad. Most of the others are working out plans for investigations to be made shortly. The forthcoming investigations are expected to cover from one to two years in each case. Mr. Barnaud, in speaking of the new division, said:

"The opening of this division, in connection with the local office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, is a very advantageous move and will enable the bureau to make a close study of the present needs and future requirements of American business firms."

To Make Dyes and Chemicals.

The Ralph C. Fuller Company, for the manufacture of chemicals and dyes, was incorporated in Westchester yesterday with a capital of $1,000,000. Practically all of the stock has been subscribed for, arrangements are nearing completion for the purchase of buildings and equipment, and operations are soon to begin in the manufacture of chemicals and dyes. It is expected that H. S. Duell, Director and attorney, will be Chairman of the board.

Chandler Motor Co. Extra Dividend.

Directors of the Chandler Motor Company have declared an extra dividend of 1 per cent. besides the regular quarterly payment of 2 per cent., both to be made Oct. 2 to stock of record Sept. 18. The company inaugurated dividends at the rate of 6 per cent. last April and in July put the issue upon an 8 per cent. basis. It is expected that the current year's output of cars will approach 20,000, as against 8,000 in 1915.

The British Government had received up to Aug. 20 bonds under the foregoing classifications to cover the $100,000,000 security to be provided under Group 3, and it may be decided to include none of the securities of Sweden, Norway, Denmark, and Holland.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Buoyancy marked the closing dealings on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. There had been much profit taking earlier which had imparted hesitancy for a time. As it turned out, however, the selling was absorbed, and, under the lead of United States Steel common, the whole market rose late in the day.

On Being a Trustee

To most men who are qualified by success in their business to be Trustee of an estate, the trusteeship is just an added burden.

It means the care of another's property for a number of years,—constant watching of taxes, insurance, repairs, assessments, fluctuations in securities, etc. It requires organization and equipment.

This Company in its Trust Department is daily handling all the problems which come up in estate management, and its services, with all its experience, may be secured at no greater cost than that of the individual.

The officers will be glad to explain in detail the advantages in selecting this Company as Executor and Trustee.

"Exact Information and Expert Unbiased Opinion for the Investor."

The Union Trust Company of New York has leased for a term of years the banking floor of the Century Building adjoining its Main Office at 80 Broadway. The additional space is to be used by the Trust Department of the Company, but the entrance will be through the Company's own building.

The Growth of the Trust Department has been steady and consistent. In forty out of the fifty-one years since the company began business the aggregate amount of property held for personal trusts has shown increases, and since 1900 this aggregate has been more than tripled.

The fact that the Company is now caring for property for the third and fourth generations of those who originally entrusted their property to it clearly indicates satisfaction on the part of its clients.

EGYPTIAN COTTON AT $23.

Government to Help Solve Moratorium Deadlock in Egypt.

ALEXANDRIA, Sept. 6, (via London.)—To solve the moratorium deadlock, Egyptian cotton merchants have agreed to put on the market 87,500 cantars at $23, (a cantar is equivalent to a hundredweight.) The Government will advance the difference in the price up to $25, which will be reimbursed by an extra tax of 1 millienne (half a cent) on all Bourse transactions, to be deducted from the brokerage.

It is hoped that in this way the weaker Bourse positions will be liquidated and also that the inevitable further rise will result in a satisfactory adjustment of the stronger positions.

The Bourse will reopen on Thursday.

TO GET JUST ONE CENT.

New Low Record in Bankruptcy Returns Set in Middle West.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 5.—Creditors of E. G. Hadden, a local grain dealer who was adjudged bankrupt several months ago, will receive the smallest final dividends ever paid on a claim in a bankruptcy court, according to John F. Harper, referee.

On a claim of $2.90, the L. A. Meyer Company, one of the creditors, will receive a check for 1 cent. The Hotel Pfister will receive 7 cents on a claim of $8.15. The claims aggregate $36,128.12, with assets of $104.56 to divide among many creditors.

PROPOSALS.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
OFFICE OF SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC WORKS,
Albany, August 31st, 1916.
NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS.

Sealed proposals will be received by the undersigned at his office in the Capitol at Albany, N. Y., until twelve o'clock noon of Tuesday, October 3d, 1916, at which place and hour they will be publicly opened and read, for improving the New York State canals, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 147 of the Laws of 1903 and of the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, and Chapter 570 of the Laws of 1915, as follows:

1.
Erie Canal—Section 1.
For constructing a spillway at Waterford side-cut, adjacent to Barge Canal Lock 2, and installing taintor gate, with operating equipment.

Erie Canal—Section 5.

Erie Canal—Sections 5 and 6.
For constructing lighthouses, range towers, beacons, etc., and for furnishing and installing buoys and lighting equipments for aids to navigation on Oneida and Onondaga Lakes.
Sheets 1 to 18, inclusive.

Erie Canal—Section 4.
For constructing a junction lock at Mohawk.
Sheets 1 to 10, inclusive.

Contract plans, Sheets 1 to 5.

Plans may be seen and detailed specifications, engineer's estimate of quantities, proposal blanks, form of contract, and bonds required and other information for proposers may be had at the office of the Superintendent of Public Works at Albany, N. Y., at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Middle Division at Syracuse, N. Y.; at the office of the Assistant Superintendent of Public Works for the Western Division at Rochester, N. Y., and at the canal office, Spaulding's Exchange, Buffalo, N. Y.

Copies of detailed plans or drawings may be obtained from the State Engineer and Surveyor at Albany, N. Y., upon payment to him of the cost of producing them.

Monthly estimates will be paid of ninety per centum (90 per cent.) of the work done at the contract price. Every proposal for said work must be accompanied by a money deposit in the form of a draft or certified check upon some good banking institution in the City of Albany or New York, issued by a national or State bank (or trust company in the case of terminal contracts) in good credit within the State, and payable at sight to the Superintendent of Public Works for five per centum (5 per cent.) of the amount of the proposal.

The person whose proposal shall be accepted will be required to execute a contract and furnish bonds within ten days from the date of notice of award delivered to him or them in person or mailed to the address given in the proposal.

Upon execution of the contract and approval of bonds, the certified check or draft will be returned to the proposer unless the same shall have been presented for collection prior to such time, in which case the amount of the deposit will be refunded by the Superintendent of Public Works.

The deposits of bidders other than the one to whom the award of contract shall be made will be returned immediately after the award has been made.

The amount of bond required for faithful performance will be ten per centum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, and an additional bond, known as the labor bond, in the sum of ten percentum (10 per cent.) of the amount of the estimated cost of the work according to the contract price, will be required as security that the contractor will pay in full at least once in each month all laborers employed by him upon the work specified to be done in the contract.

In the event that more than one surety company is offered as surety on said bonds, co-insurance only will be accepted.

Each proposal must be addressed to the Superintendent of Public Works, Albany, N. Y., and must be endorsed on the envelope with the name of the construction for which the proposal is made.

Award, if made, will be made to the person or persons whose proposal shall be lowest in cost to the State for doing the work and which shall comply with all provisions required to render it formal. Before any award shall be made the lowest bidder will be required to satisfy the Superintendent of Public Works of his ability to provide suitable equipment and materials for the proper performance of the work.

The right is reserved to reject all proposals and readvertise and award the contract in the regular manner if, in the judgment of the undersigned, the interests of the State will be enhanced thereby.

W. W. WOTHERSPOON,
Superintendent of Public Works.

SEALED BIDS WILL BE RECEIVED BY the Board of Water Supply at its offices, twenty-second floor, Municipal Building, Park Row, Centre and Chambers Streets, New York City, until 11 A. M. on Tuesday, September 12, 1916, for Contract 178, for grouting the rock above the Eastview tunnel of the Catskill Aqueduct. The grouting will be above two stretches of the tunnel, aggregating about 4,000 feet in length. The work is located in the Town of Mount Pleasant, Westchester County, New York.

At the above place and time the bids will be publicly opened and read. Pamphlets containing information for bidders and contract drawing can be obtained at the above address, at the office of the Secretary, by depositing the sum of ten dollars ($10) in cash or its equivalent for each pamphlet. For further particulars apply to the office of the Principal Assistant Engineer at the above address.

International Mercantile Marine Company (International Navigation Company)

NOTICE OF ABANDONMENT OF PLAN OF REORGANIZATION DATED AUGUST 3, 1915, AND OF THE ADOPTION OF A NEW PLAN

To the Holders of

Certificates of Deposit of The New York Trust Company as Depositary and its Agents, issued under the certain Deposit Agreement, dated October 2, 1914, for Four and One-Half Per Cent. Mortgage and Collateral Trust Gold Bonds of International Mercantile Marine Company; and

Certificates of Deposit of the Fidelity Trust Company as Depositary and its Agents, issued under the certain Deposit Agreement, dated November 12, 1914, for First Mortgage Sinking Fund Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds of International Navigation Company (now International Mercantile Marine Company); and

Certificates of Deposit of The New York Trust Company as Depositary and its Agents, issued under the certain Plan and Agreement of Reorganization, dated August 3, 1915, for preferred and common stock, or Stock Trust Certificates in respect thereof, of International Mercantile Marine Company.

All of said Deposited Bonds, Stock, and Stock Trust Certificates are now held by the Committee under the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization of International Mercantile Marine Company, dated August 3, 1915; and

To the Holders of

Undeposited Four and One-Half Per Cent. Mortgage and Collateral Trust Gold Bonds of International Mercantile Marine Company; and

First Mortgage Sinking Fund Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds of International Navigation Company (now International Mercantile Marine Company):

Notice is hereby given that the Plan of Reorganization dated August 3, 1915, has been abandoned, and in place thereof this Committee has approved and adopted a New Plan for the readjustment of the debt of International Mercantile Marine Company (hereinafter termed Marine Company), which New Plan has been prepared and adopted by the committees representing respectively the preferred stock and the common stock of the Marine Company. A copy of the New Plan has been or will be filed with the Depositaries and their Agents acting under said Agreement, dated August 3, 1915, and notice of the filing thereof is hereby given by publication as provided by said Agreement, dated August 3, 1915. All holders of Certificates of Deposit who do not, within ten days after the last publication of said notice, notify in writing the Depositary or its Agents issuing such Certificates of Deposit, that they do not assent to said New Plan will be deemed to have assented to said New Plan, and will be bound thereby as fully and effectually as if they had personally, individually, and affirmatively assented thereto. Prior to the expiration of said period, non-assenting depositors may surrender their respective Certificates of Deposit to the Depositary or its Agent issuing the same, and may withdraw the securities represented thereby upon the payment of their share of the expenses of the Committee to date of withdrawal as apportioned by the Committee, which has been fixed by the Committee at One Per Cent., viz.: Ten Dollars for each One Thousand Dollar bond and One Dollar per share for each share of preferred or common stock, or Stock Trust Certificate in respect thereof withdrawn.

Holders of the First Mortgage Sinking Fund Five Per Cent. Gold Bonds of International Navigation Company (now International Mercantile Marine Company), and of the Four and One-Half Per Cent. Mortgage and Collateral Trust Gold Bonds of International Mercantile Marine Company who have not already deposited their bonds with this Committee, may obtain the benefits and advantages of the said New Plan by depositing their bonds, together with all unpaid coupons, with the respective Depositaries of the Committee designated for that purpose, or their Agents, on or before September 15, 1916.

This Committee will not receive further Deposits of Stock or Stock Trust Certificates.

REORGANIZATION

Wabash Pittsburgh Terminal Railway Company

The properties of the Terminal Company offered for sale under the foreclosure decree of August 15, 1916, having been struck off to bidders in the interest of the Reorganization Plan of June 25, 1915, it is intended as soon as practicable after the confirmation of the sale and the delivery of deeds for the property purchased to put the new Company into possession, and thereafter to distribute the new securities to holders of certificates of deposit who have complied with all of the requirements of the Plan.

The Reorganization Committee desires that the fullest opportunity be given all holders of First Mortgage Bonds to participate alike in the benefits of the Plan. Accordingly holders of certificates of deposit for First Mortgage Bonds issued under or subject to the Plan, in respect of which no payment has been heretofore made under the Plan, will be permitted to make payment of $310. for each $1,000 of First Mortgage Bonds represented thereby until the close of business on September 6, 1916. (The penalty of $10. per each $1,000 of bonds is intended to represent interest on the payments required under the Plan.

Holders of undeposited First Mortgage Bonds may deposit the same under the Plan, receiving certificates of deposit therefor until the close of business on September 6, 1916, but only upon making payment at the time of such deposit of $310. for each $1,000 of First Mortgage Bonds.

The holders of the few certificates of deposit outstanding bearing notation showing the payment of some, but not all of the instalments payable in respect of the bonds represented thereby, may, until the close of business on September 6, 1916, make payment of such unpaid instalments, but only upon payment of a penalty of $2.50 in respect of each $1,000 of Bonds represented by such certificates of deposit.

Under the arrangements made with the underwriting syndicate, said syndicate will supply such part of the cash requirements set forth in the Plan as shall not be furnished by holders of certificates of deposit and will receive therefor the new securities offered to bondholders under the Plan and not taken and paid for by them. Before the consummation of the Plan it will be necessary to obtain from said syndicate the cash it is obligated to supply and to deliver to it the new securities to which it will thereby become entitled. Thereafter it will be impossible on any terms to receive further deposits of First Mortgage Bonds or to permit holders of certificates of deposit to make payments under the Plan.

Under the Plan only holders of certificates of deposit issued thereunder or subject thereto bearing notation showing payment in full of all amounts required by the Plan are entitled to receive new securities under the Plan or to obtain any rights or benefits thereunder. The failure to pay in full all amounts required by the Plan within the period fixed shall forfeit all rights and interests of such defaulting holder of a certificate of deposit in the bonds or certificates represented by his certificate of deposit or the avails thereof and in all previous instalments paid.

All payments and deposits must be made to and with Central Trust Company of New York, the Depositary under the Plan, at its office, 54 Wall Street, New York City.

COMMODITIE SMARKETS.

WHEAT.

The wheat market was active and strong with prices showing net gains of 4¾ to 6⅛c from the final of Saturday. World's exports for the week were 12,599,000 bushels, compared with 12,406,000 the previous week, and 7,656,000 last year. In the local cash market No. 1 durum was quoted at $1.74⅝; No. 2 hard, $1.66⅝; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.78⅝; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.76⅝, all free on board, New York. Export sales for the day were estimated at about 500,000 bushels.

CORN.

The corn market was moderately active early in the day, with the near positions showing some heaviness, but subsequently an active demand developed, and at the close of the day values were strong, with net gains of 1¼@2⅝c. World's exports for the week were 4,120,000 bushels, against 3,462,000 last week, and 3,264,000 last year. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at 99¼c cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hog products was quiet, and, after a firm opening in sympathy with the strength in live hogs and on small hog receipts, prices developed a slightly easier tone, although the close was firm, with grain. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 8,000; estimated for Wednesday, 16,000. Kansas City received 8,000 and Omaha 700.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The cottonseed oil market was active and very feverish, with wide and erratic price changes. Early in the day there was very heavy buying, which sent the market up rapidly, but on the bulge long oil came out in large quantity, and prices experienced a very sharp setback. Toward the close values again firmed up, and final quotations were 26 to 40 points net higher. Total sales were 51,900 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

Official reports of frost in the southern portion of Brazil, together with continued dry weather throughout the coffee-raising sections of Brazil, caused renewed activity on the buying side of the coffee market, and prices showed net gains for the day of 15 to 19 points. Total sales were 53,500 bags. The local spot market was firm, with Rio 7s quoted at 10c and Santos 4s at 11⅞c. Range of prices:

The local market for refined sugar was quiet and unchanged at 7@7.25c for fine granulated. There was only a light inquiry noted, buyers preferring to hold off and await some adjustment in prices before buying very extensively. An easier tendency developed in the market for raw sugar, with a local refiner showing a buying interest, and it was rumored that one lot of about 10,000 bags Cubas, afloat, sold at 3⅛c, cost and freight, equal to 4.89c, duty paid. Quotations follow: Centrifugal, 4.89c; molasses, 4.12c; cost and freight, 3⅛c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts, two days, 7,826 packages. Stock is coming in slowly, but the trade is so well supplied that demand does not show much force and there is a generally easy tone. Possibly quotations are being shaded occasionally rather than miss a sale. Creamery higher than extras, per pound, 34@34½c; extras, (92 score,) 33¼@33½c; firsts, (88 to 91 score,) 31½@33c; seconds, (83 to 87 score,) 29½@31c; thirds, 28@29c; creamery, unsalted, higher than extras, 35@35½c; extras, 34@34½c; firsts, 32@33½c; seconds, 30@31½c; State dairy, tubs, finest, 32@32½c; good to prime, 29½@31½c; common to fair, 26@29c; renovated, extras, 29@29½c; firsts, 27½@28½c; lower grades, 26@27c; imitation creamery, firsts, 28@28½c; ladles, current make, firsts, 27@27½c; seconds, 26½c; lower grades, 24½@26c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 26c; No. 2, 25@25½c; lower grades, 23@24½c.

EGGS.—Receipts, two days, 9,636 cases. There is more stock coming in than is indicated by reported receipts, which are usually short immediately after a holiday. Many lots of express shipments, started during the latter part of last week when the railroads placed embargoes on freight shipments, are now coming in. Trade is quiet, as a good many dealers bought more or less stock in advance of requirements a few days ago. There is a feeling that receipts will run lighter later in the week, but holders are not disposed to carry stock along at the recent advance, and the market shows a tame tone, with an easier feeling on the higher priced grades. Ordinary and lower qualities are in moderate supply and without material change in values. Storage eggs are rated steady, but the trading is not large. Nearby white eggs are scarce and strictly fancy qualities are wanted rather beyond the supply, prices for such showing some further improvement. Fresh gathered, extra fine, per dozen, 34@35c; extra firsts, 33@33½c; firsts, 31@32c; seconds, 28@30c; thirds and poorer, 25@27c; dirties, No. 1, 25@25½c; No. 2 and poorer, 20@24c; checks, good to choice, dry, 23@23½c; undergrades, 18@22c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, storage and insurance paid, 30c; firsts, 28¼@29½c; seconds, 26½@28c; lower grades, 23@26c; refrigerator, State whites, 31@32c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery whites, fine to fancy, 45@48c; ordinary to good, 36@43c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 34@45c; Western and Southern, gathered whites, 33@36c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby, hennery browns, 38@40c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 30@35c.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

An interesting transaction involving the sale of the northeast corner of Madison Avenue and Thirty-first Street was consummated yesterday after lengthy negotiations by William A. White & Sons.

This corner, which has a frontage of 24.8 feet on the avenue and 78 feet on the street, is at present improved with a six-story bachelor apartment house, known as The Cloister, and has been owned by Mrs. Eleanor Jay Chapman since 1862.

When the property adjoining it on Madison avenue, and, also, on Thirty-first Street, was accumulated some years ago, an attempt was made to include this corner in the operation, but the negotiations failed, and the present Terry & Tench Building, twelve stories high, was built all around it.

The present buyers are the Associate Owners, which is controlled by William H. Harris and George C. Rosenfeld, and the purchase is made for the purpose of protecting the light and air of the Terry & Tench Building, adjoining, which is owned by the Associate Owners.

The property sold has an assessed valuation of $120,000.

Sale of Columbia College Leasehold Property.

The Columbia College leasehold property at 61 West Forty-eighth Street, consisting of a five-story English basement dwelling, on a lot 21.6 by 100.5, was sold yesterday to James Powers. This is the fourth time this leasehold has changed ownership in the last three years. The buyer proposes to alter the building, which was the former home of Dr. George Emerson Brewer, into stores and bachelor apartments, for which there is a rapidly growing demand in this section since the recent announcement that Columbia College had filed plans for the alteration of some of the old dwellings for business occupancy. Wertheim & Clear were the brokers in the transaction.

Bronx Sale.

M. T. Ring sold for John Van Steenburgh the two-story and basement dwelling at 2,262 Hughes Avenue to Mrs. F. J. Cintura.

Brooklyn.

The All Water Front Realty Company has sold bungalows and plots to the following at Hamilton on the Bay: H. M. Lockwood, W. R. Dawson, Wm. A. Perry, E. J. Cooper, E. P. Wadnek, and G. C. W. Frazer.

I. Salzberg sold for Mr. Helm to M. Umans the one-family cottage, 1,521 Forty-eighth Street, on a plot 40 by 100 feet.

Complete $500,000 Queens Deal.

The Matthews Building Company has completed the purchase of all unimproved lots within the area bounded by Steinway, Twentieth, Grand, and Jamaica Avenues in Queens County. The purchase involves about 500 city lots with an aggregate value of $500,000. It is the announced intention of the company to erect on the property 300 brick tenements to accommodate from three to six families each. The average cost will be $4,500. Specifications were filed last week with the Queens Building Bureau by the company for the erection of ten tenements of three stories each. They are to be built on the east side of Thirteenth Avenue south of Grand Avenue.

Long Island.

Jacob Graeser has purchased from B. Ralph two plots, each 100 by 100, at College Point. One is at the southeast corner of Seventh Avenue and Sixteenth Street and the other on the south side of Seventh Avenue, near Fifteenth Street.

T. J. O'Brien sold to M. F. Cozens a plot, 50 by 101, on the east side of Fifteenth Street, near Tate Street, Flushing.

The Roman-Callman Company sold for B. Carey to C. K. Brosnan the two six-family flats at 103 and 105 Fourteenth Avenue, Long Island City; also resold for Mr. Brosnan 103 to Fanny Novotney and 105 to Charles B. Kistler.

Gatan Ajello is preparing plans for the erection of an eleven-story apartment house to occupy a plot, 100.2 by 47.3, on the northeast corner of Lexington Avenue and Fiftieth Street.

The structure, estimated to cost $300,000, is to be built by the recently organized Kalfa Realty Company, Harry Falk, President.

I. Townsend Burden, Jr., has had plans prepared for a dwelling and several outhouses at Greenvale, Roslyn, Long Island. The buildings will cost about $75,000, according to the architect, A. C. Mizner.

Mortgage Loans Placed.

John Finck has placed the following mortgage loans: $90,000 at 4½ per cent. for Hudson Motor Car Company of New York, covering 243-249 West Sixty-seventh Street; $100,000 at 4½ per cent. for T. Goldsmith, covering Central Park West, southwest corner Ninety-fourth Street; $10,000 at 4½ per cent. for Ida L. Eisele and Edward Keller, covering 367 West Fifty-sixth Street; $40,000 at 5 per cent. for Swift Realty Company, covering 512 West 135th Street; $8,000 at 5 per cent. for Estate of C. Stueber, covering 302 East Thirty-fourth Street; $20,000 at 5 per cent. for Estate of Harry Goldman, covering 263 East Tenth Street; $18,000 at 5 per cent. for Arenal Realty Company, covering 46 West Sixty-sixth Street; $19,500 at 5 per cent. for Nicholas Cunningham, covering 311 East Seventeenth Street; $31,500 at 5 per cent. for F. Hein, covering 571 Eighth Avenue, northwest corner Thirty-eighth Street; $10,300 at 5 per cent. for Neelar Realty Company, covering 132 East Forty-fourth Street; $16,000 at 5 per cent. for Frances Gerber, covering 369 West 117th Street, and $20,000 at 5 per cent. for L. E. Corner, covering 710 West End Avenue.

Builders' Association Meeting This Evening.

A meeting of the recently organized Builders' Association of Manhattan will be held this evening at the Hotel Marseilles, Broadway, corner West 103d Street. Special conferences between committees of contracting plaster association representatives whose men are at present on strike will be one of the important matters up for discussion at this meeting and a large attendance is expected.

Camps Leased.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. and Duryee & Co. have leased the Ward Camp on Upper St. Regis Lake in the Adirondacks to Clifford V. Brokaw; also the McCreight Camp at Blue Hills Me., to Mrs. William Noe.

Dwellings Leased.

Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company has rented for Mrs. Frances Brooks to Police Commissioner Arthur Woods the four-story American basement dwelling at 119 East Thirty-sixth Street.

Bryan L. Kennelly has leased for Henry J. Hanigan to the Catholic Centre for the Blind, for two years, the dwelling 119 West Seventieth Street, on a lot 15 by 100.5.

Commercial Leases.

Pease & Elliman have leased for the Schulte Realty Company to Paul Wiener for a long term of years at an aggregate rental of $50,000, the store and basement at 122 East Fourteenth Street. The same brokers have leased for the Schulte Company the basement store at 168 William Street, southeast corner of Beekman Street, to Hyman & Co.

Schindler & Liebler have leased for a term of five years the large store at the southeast corner of 150th Street and Amsterdam Avenue to Charles L. Bowen for a café.

Cammann, Voorhees & Floyd have leased for Thomas M. Martin the five-story building 38 Pearl Street, to the Engels Express Company, Inc., for a long term of years.

Morris Rose has leased for Mary L. Starr to the Grammas Sweets the entire building at 207 East Fifty-ninth Street, for a term of ten years. The present building will be rased and a modern structure erected in its place.

Fine Brooklyn Homes
For One and Two Families at Big Savings
Prices $5,000-$15,000

These are real houses—built to endure. Their construction is of the sturdy, trouble-proof kind which keeps repair bills at the minimum. They are well laid out—large rooms, spacious closets, no waste space. To build a house like them to-day would cost about 50% more than we are asking for these.

Remodeled to Suit You

We would remodel these houses to suit purchasers at net cost, and sell them for

$500 Cash, Balance as Rent, or Terms to Suit Purchasers

Three Houses Ready for Inspection

The three houses briefly described in this announcement have been thoroughly gone over. We suggest that you see them at once. One of them may suit you perfectly. They will certainly show you what ideal homes these substantial residences make when tastefully remodeled.

These houses will be open for inspection Saturday and Sunday, September 9th and 10th, from 2 to 6 in the afternoon.

Park Slope—749 Carroll St., east of 7th Ave., two blocks from Prospect Park, and within 10 minutes' walk of 2 subways; 3-story and basement brown stone; 10 rooms and 2 baths—the last word in appointments, electric light, parquet floors, hot water heat, new open plumbing.

Stuyvesant—554a Monroe St., east of Lewis Ave.; two-and-one-half story and basement brown stone; 10 rooms and bath, new open plumbing, electric light, parquet floors.

697 President St., a short walk from Prospect Park. Within 8 minutes of two subways and "L"; two story and basement brown stone; 8 rooms and bath; open plumbing, electric light, parquet floors on parlor floor and in dining room; furnace.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—A storm of moderate intensity was central Tuesday night off the south coast of North Carolina and moving north northeastward. It was attended by wind of moderate gale force in the vicinity of its centres and rains on the South Atlantic Coast. Storm warnings are displayed on the Atlantic Coast from Wilmington to the Virginia Capes.

There have been showers in the last twenty-four hours in the North Atlantic States, the region of the Great Lakes, the upper Mississippi Valley, and over the Rocky Mountain region.

Temperatures have not changed decidedly in any section, and readings are near or above the normal in all parts of the country.

Indications are that the weather will be unsettled with probable showers Wednesday and Thursday in New England, New York, the upper Ohio Valley, and the region of the Great Lakes. In the Middle Atlantic States local rains and somewhat lower temperature on Wednesday will be followed by partly cloudy weather on Thursday. In the South Atlantic and East Gulf States, Tennessee, and the lower Ohio Valley the weather will be generally fair Wednesday and Thursday.

Temperature will be somewhat lower Wednesday in the Middle Atlantic States, and it will change little elsewhere east of the Mississippi River during the next forty-eight hours.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be moderate east, probably fresh over south part, overcast weather and showers; Middle Atlantic Coast, increasing easterly, rain, followed by fair; South Atlantic Coast, moderate, variable, overcast.

FORECASTS TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York—Probably showers Wednesday and Thursday; cooler in south portion.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Probably showers and cooler Wednesday. Thursday partly cloudy.

New England—Probably showers Wednesday and Thursday.

Western New York—Local thunder showers Wednesday and probably Thursday.

3 A. M.	72	68	4 P. M.	74	84
6 A. M.	73	66	6 P. M.	73	81
9 A. M.	73	70	9 P. M.	70	77
12 M.	76	78	11 P. M.	65	71

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 74; for the corresponding date last year it was 72; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 70.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 67; at 8 P. M. it was 78. Maximum temperature, 84 degrees at 4 P. M.; minimum, 63 degrees at 2 A. M. Humidity, 87 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 78 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 30.10 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 30.02 inches.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

About 1,000 candidates aer expected to compete in two pending examinations for stenographer and typist, one in the city service, for females only, and one in the Federal service, for males only. Applications for the city service examination will be issued Sept. 14 and may be obtained at the Municipal Building.

The Board of Estimate's Committee on Salaries and Grades and the Bureau of Standards Committee will hold public hearings during this month to discuss the specifications compiled by the Bureau of Standards previous to their adoption by the Board of Estimate. The hearings will be open to all employes, employes' associations, employers' representatives, taxpayers' associations, civic bodies, and other associations interested. The dates of the hearings are Sept. 12, 19, 26, and Oct. 3, subject to change.

There were two eligibles on the list for pathologist, established by the commission last week. The test was held July 14, when six candidates competed. There is one vacancy in the Charities Department at $1,500. The eligibles are Zachary Sagal, 91.70, and Charles G. Darlington, 85.70.

United States.

The commission announces that in view of the fact that there are sufficient eligibles to meet the needs of the service in the following option (scientific) subjects, these subjects will not be given in connection with the scientific assistant examination scheduled to be held on Oct. 11 and 12 at the places marked "E" in Sect. 2 of the Manual of Examinations for the Fall of 1916: Agronomy, animal husbandry, dairying, entomology, forage crops, home economics, and calorimity, horticulture, plant breeding, plant physiology, pomology, poultry husbandry, soil bacteriology, and soil surveying. Information in regard to Spring examinations and application forms for such examinations may be obtained from the commission after Jan. 15, 1917.

Examination will be given in the following optional subjects in connection with the scientific assistant examination of Oct. 11-12: Farm management, grain standardization, marketing, and distribution, plant pathology, seed testing, rural organization, French, German, Italian, Russian, and Spanish.

It has been found that the needs of the service will require an examination in the optional subjects of rural organization. This subject requires questions on the formation, classification, promotion, procedure, and practices of rural economic, and social organizations. The usual entrance salary is $1,400 a year, but persons showing in the examination that they are unusually qualified are occasionally appointed at higher salaries, not to exceed $1,800 a year.

EDUCATION NOTES.

Pending the opening of the public schools arrangements have been made by the Board of Education providing for the establishment of school athletic centres, which were inaugurated yesterday, when the vacation playgrounds were also reopened so far as possible. The idea is to provide recreation while making the playgrounds as safe as possible under the epidemic conditions. The Board of Health will furnish the teachers in charge of the centres with daily bulletins giving the names and addresses of reported cases of sickness, and records will be kept of the names and addresses of the children in attendance.

President Willcox has issued directions, upon the suggestion of Dr. C. Ward Crampton, Director of Physical Training, for the establishment of 10 athletic centres in the schools during the week of Sept. 5 to 9, 30 centres from Sept. 11 to 16, 60 centres from Sept. 18 to 23, and 100 centres from Sept. 25 to 30.

A test suit is being brought in the Supreme Court in the name of Frank M. Bogert, a retired teacher, acting for the Brooklyn Teachers' Pension Committee, alleging that the city is diverting money saved on teachers who are on leaves of absence into a general fund instead of into the retirement fund.

Director John W. Davis of the Bureau of Attendance, as a result of the follow-up system established by the bureau shortly after its inauguration about two years ago, has been instrumental in bringing about the formation of occupational and information classes for children awaiting employment, elementary school graduates, and pupils with employment certificates. Some of the boys have been induced to go back to school, some have been placed in higher schools, and others have entered the navy. The pupils are permitted to select any subject in which they are particularly weak, and, should they so desire, spend part of the day in looking for work.

The forty-three new cases of infantile paralysis reported yesterday, continuing the low average of the last few days, led Department of Health officials to predict with confidence that the public schools may open safely on Sept. 25, the date tentatively fixed. United States Public Health Service surgeons said also they expected to discontinue their certificate service and leave town within ten days.

Health Commissioner Emerson will make a formal announcement later of the date for the opening of the schools, and Dr. Charles E. Banks, Senior Surgeon of the Public Health Service, will make another announcement of the termination of the certificate service, but officials of both organizations, from the chiefs down, believe that these announcements will fulfill the present predictions.

It is expected that the number of new cases reported today will be greater than the number announced on Sunday, Monday, or yesterday, for it is almost certain that some cases were overlooked in the three successive holidays, but the authorities to not anticipate that today's reports will denote any discouraging advance of the epidemic.

Emerson Replies to Critics.

Health Commissioner Emerson, in reply to critics who have charged that many of the deaths attributed this Summer to poliomyelitis were in fact caused by Summer complaint, yesterday issued this statement:

> Anticipating the criticism which has appeared in the papers recently regarding the causes of death attributed to poliomyelitis, the Department hof Health took the precaution at the beginning of the epidemic to assign physicians to the individual investigation of every case of death reported from poliomyelitis to determine the actual manner of death and the possibility that the death might have been improperly attributed to this epidemic disease.
>
> This investigation has been carried out from the early part of July up to the present time, and the results show that in practically every case of death attributed by physicians to poliomyelitis, the death occurred from respiratory paralysis in a way so characteristic as to avoid all possibility of conmusion with deaths from diarrheal diseases.
>
> The deaths have occurred in the great majority of cases within two or three days of the onset of the disease, and during this time gastro-intestinal symptoms have been rare.

The Commissioner also took up the criticism voiced yesterday in a letter to THE TIMES from John S. Thompson of the actuary's department of the Mutual Life Insurance Company and others, who said that the weekly death rate from infantile paralysis could not be fairly estimated from the actual deaths and numbers of new cases reported daily in any week, because the cases reported on any day had their origin in days and weeks preceding. On this subject Dr. Emerson said:

> In reply to the comment that the basis for case fatality rates, that is, deaths in proportion to the number of cases reported, are inaccurate, I would call the attention of critics to the fact that deaths in this disease follow so shortly after the onset and report of the cases as to justify using the weekly report list as a basis for calculating a weekly death rate.
> In order to remove all possibility of doubt from this question, the rate is being calculated according to the dates of onset of the disease, and it will be found by this method also that there has been a noticeable advance in the rate of deaths in proportion to the reports of cases from the beginning of the epidemic.

It was announced at the Willard Parker Hospital that 127 ounces of blood had been obtained since Saturday from fourteen persons who had had poliomyelitis.

Movie Order Modified.

Deputy License Commissioner Kaufman said yesterday that on last Friday he mailed notices to the motion picture proprietors in the city, granting them permission, in view of Dr. Emerson's opinion to admit children of more than 12 years to their theatres. He was surprised that many exhibitors had not received these notices on Monday, the day when the modified order went into effect.

Ernest C. Hunt, Secretary of Hunter College, yesterday sent out notices saying that the instructors and students of the college, together with the high school and model school, would report for duty two weeks later than the date originally assigned.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Reports of cases of infantile paralysis in the State outside of New York City received today led State Health Department officials to believe that the disease is on the wane up-State.

One patient in the Bronx and two in Brooklyn reported as suffering from poliomyelitis were yesterday discharged as "no cases."

Emerson Still to Receive Gifts, Though Total Exceeds Sum Asked.

Health Commissioner Emerson said yesterday that he would not yet close the brace fund for which he issued an appeal several weeks ago. The Commissioner asked the public for $15,000 in the first appeal, but when he saw that the number of children who would need braces would be greater than he had anticipated he asked for $23,000. The total of the fund is now $26,708.15, but the Commissioner, in order to be quite sure that he has enough to buy braces for every one who needs them, will continue to receive contributions. Any surplus not needed for braces, he says, will be turned over to the Central Relief Committee on Infantile Paralysis, which will have need for all of the money it can get for the benefit of victims of the epidemic.

The Department of Health yesterday received these contributions amounting to $167:

Children of the Manhasset Country Club, Shelter Island, $40; Bungaloafers Bund, $26; Mrs. J. R. Wolf, Deal Beach, $20; Marian, Edith, and Eleanor Rosenfeld, $15; Gordon and Abelson children, Springfield, N. H., $12; "Teacher," William F. Heissenbuttel, 20 Lafayette Street; Master R. F. Smith, Hamilton, N. Y., and Mrs. Edith M. Lehmer, Nebraska City, $10 each; Belle Van Vlack, Revere House, Narragansett Pier, $5; Mrs. Walter R. Lambert, Lydia M. Doolittle, Cincinnati, Ohio; Baby Eugene Keiner, 1,888 Crotona Parkway, the Bronx, $2 each; two little girls, Mabel Daumont, 527 Fifth Avenue, and Anonymous, $1 each.

THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday received contributions amounting to $179.47 for the brace fund and for toys, and in addition to this amount, $125 from "H. G." of Melville, L. I., in a check made payable to Health Commissioner Emerson, and $25 from Muriel and Annette Potter, in a check payable to the Department of Health.

The contributions through THE TIMES were:

Collection at Wentworth Hall, Jackson, N. H., $75; Tag Day at Arverne, N. J., $37.32; Anonymous, $15; Mrs. E. L. Smith, $10; "Contributed by seven grateful children in memory of their dear departed grandmother," $7; H. A. W. R., Dianne Brown, and Mrs. Matthew Rosenbloom, $5 each; Dorothy and Richard Lardner, $5; Mrs. I. Goldberg and daughter, $5; Carll and Petzl, $2.15; R. F. A., and R. D. B., $2 each; Laura, Elizabeth, and George, $1; E. A. K, Rena Denzer, and Petzl Terry, $1 each.

The Tag Day at Arverne, N. J., was held under the direction of Dorothy Mayer, and her assistants were: Ruth Marks, Marcella Irvine, Sadie Rosenkrantz, Ethel Kaplan, Dorothy Kaplan, Julia Kasser, Rose Davis, Frances Lembe, Hattie Columbus, Jennet Rosenberg, Bertha Gassler, S. Marks, N. Marks, L. Hernstein, D. Kohn, L. Kaplan, R. Tuchman, and S. Tuchman.

DEATH LEAP FROM HOTEL.

Mrs. Irene Landes Commits Suicide at the Ansonia.

Mrs. Irene Landes of Evergreen Cottage, Far Rockaway, jumped from a window on the thirteenth floor of the Hotel Ansonia, Seventy-fourth Street and Broadway, yesterday forenoon and was instantly killed. She fell into the rear court, narrowly missing several workmen removing ashes. Her body struck the top of the ash receptacle and glanced off to the pavement.

The woman had been seen wandering about the hotel corridors for an hour before the act. She was not a guest at the hotel, but employes thought little of her presence, supposing either that she had an appointment with a friend or that she had strolled in to get a view of the river from one of the upper floors. Sydney Leach, an elevator operator, saw her climb to the sill of an open window as his car ran by the thirteenth floor. Before he could check the car and reach her Mrs. Landes had jumped.

Harry Cavanaugh, manager of the hotel, had the police called in, and an investigation disclosed a slip of paper in her pocketbook bearing her name and the Far Rockaway address. When Evergreen Cottage was called on the telephone a woman who first responded became hysterical when she learned of the accident. Then Frederick Nathan, a brother of Mrs. Landes, took the receiver and listened carefully to the description. A few hours later Henry Nathan, another brother, identified his sister's body.

Mr. Nathan could offer little explanation of his sister's act, except to say that she had recently suffered from a nervous breakdown, and he thought her act was due to a sudden fit of insanity.

Mrs. Landes's husband, Mr. Nathan said, was Abraham Richard Landes, a salesman for a leather house in Manhattan. They were married in 1909, and had one child. She was about 24 years old. Mr. Landes was out of town on business yesterday. It was said at Evergreen Cottage in Far Rockaway that Mrs. Landes had left there yesterday morning about 9 o'clock, ostensibly to visit a dentist.

OYSTER BAY LIFTS POLIOMYELITIS BAN

Town Board Yields to Citizens' Committee, Deputy Health Commissioner Protesting.

GROSS SLANDER, HE SAYS

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., Sept. 5.—The Town Board of Health lifted the stringent infantile paralysis quarantine tonight after the Citizens' Committee, organized to fight it, presented the resolutions adopted by the citizens last week condemning John D. Rockefeller, Andrew Carnegie, and the "medical bandits" for the "reign of terror." They were read to the accompaniment of great applause.

Colonel Henry M. Bennett, Chairman of the Citizens' Committee, produced witnesses and affidavits showing cases wherein children had been rushed to isolation hospitals and homes shut up when it later developed that a child was suffering with nothing more serious than teething. He also showed that physicians were unable to agree on many of the cases which had been quarantined.

Dr. George A. Draper, formerly with the Rockefeller Institute and now a Deputy State Health Commissioner at Roslyn, defended his profession and entered into a long technical explanation of infantile paralysis. He asserted that Bennett was "grossly slandering the physicians," and added that simply because a child was not paralyzed did not indicate it did not have the disease. For that reason, he maintained, it was necessary to enforce a strict quarantine. In telling the history of the disease, Dr. Draper asserted that it had just been proved that adults could carry the disease in their throats and noses. This was another good reason why a strict quarantine should be maintained, he said.

"Then what protection have we from the physicians who go from house to house?" demanded an irate father whose child had been taken away. "They do not disinfect themselves and they can carry it into houses where the children are all right."

Dr. Draper said that this was a serious phase of the situation, but said that generally the physicians kept out of the "cough or speech line" of the patient.

Bennett started the excitement by accusing the city and State Health Departments of being the "main instigators of the propaganda to terrify the people for financial profit." He read letters from physicians in various parts of the country upholding his attitude, and read from several medical journals to show that the physicians had become hysterical. He then produced a number of fathers who told of the way in which their children had been removed, their homes quarantined, and of the discovery later that the child did not have infantile paralysis.

"There have been cases where a physician insisted that a boy with a cast in his eye had the disease when he was born with the cast and another case where it took three doctors to discover a child was suffering with toothache," asserted Bennett.

At times the meeting almost got out of control of the officials, so worked up were parents who appeared to support Bennett. When the board finally adopted the resolutions lifting the quarantine there were cheers.

"We have finally got the authorities back to a common horse sense view of the situation," said Bennett.

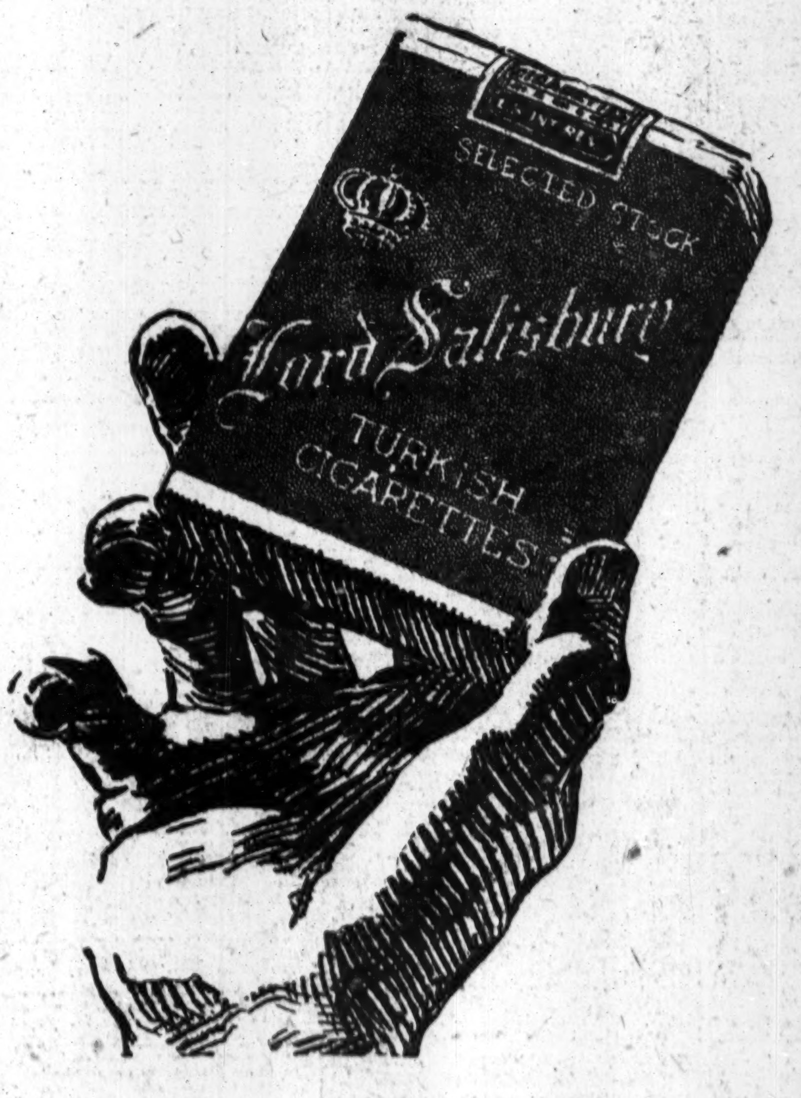
Rev. Dr. C. H. Parkhurst

Humanitarian



Dear Dr. Parkhurst:

From my infancy I have heard you spoken of as one of the most forceful and fearless ministers in the United States, if not the entire world. You always have an opinion and the courage to express it. Moreover you deal strictly with the truth.

If it is wise for people to buy pure foods, is it not also wise that they buy pure cigarettes? Inasmuch as the LORD SALISBURY cigarette is the only 100% pure all-Turkish-tobacco cigarette in existence that sells for as little as 15 cents for 20; is it not the logical cigarette from the standpoint of quality as well as the standpoint of price? In other words do you not advocate purity in the commodity as well as in the mind and heart?

W. K. Cochrane

Pres. W. K. Cochrane Adv. Agency

Dr. Parkhurst writes his answer:

I am myself not a smoker and am therefore not qualified to judge between different brands of tobacco, but I do not hesitate to say that if men will smoke, they owe it to themselves as a simple matter of health to use tobacco of the purest quality.

Yours very sincerely,

C. H. Parkhurst
